Rains, slides wreak havoc

Heavy rains forced the closure of at least 12 roads on the Lower Mainland today and more flooding is forecast for tonight.

About 40.8 mm. of rain fell in a 30-hour period from 10 p.m. Saturday to 4 a.m. today with another 15 forecast through midnight tonight.

The Lougheed Highway was closed, forcing motorists to use alternative roads already clogged with traffic.

In Victoria, where 172 mm. (six inches) of rain has fallen in the past eight days, another 50 mm. (two inches) is expected to fall overnight but the only detour so far is in Esquimalt at Lampson and Lyle.

"I'm afraid it's going to get a hell of a lot worse," said a Burnaby RCMP spokesman.

Other Burnaby trouble spots were Byrne Road off Marine Drive; Royal Oak at Gilpin and Gilmour between Dawson and Still Creek.

The Low Level Road in North Vancouver, opposite waterfront grain terminals, was closed due to a dirt slide from an adjacent bank.

In Coquitlam, Schoolhouse Road and the Cape Horne interchange were closed while in Surrey the intersection of 84th Ave. and 152nd St., and 168th St. between 64th Ave. and 67th Ave. were closed to traffic.

In Vancouver City, flooding closed Yukon at Commercial Drive and Marine Drive at Knight Road. There was also flooding in low-lying areas near First Ave. at the Highway 499 freeway exchange, police said.

At Port Moody, residents were still digging out following Friday's massive mudslide — and the unnamed creek which started it all was swelling again from overnight rain.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said Sunday after touring Port Moody with Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe that the provincial government will offer any assistance it can to slide victims.

No one was hurt in the slide but one home was destroyed and several others badly damaged. Residents of about 30 other homes had to be evacuated as a precaution.

Officials from the Provincial Emergency Measures Program (PEP) conducted a survey on the weekend and arranged temporary housing for people forced to leave their homes.

"They will assess the damage and give us an overview and we will respond to that. We will advise the government to give all the assistance that the provincial government can give," McCarthy said.

PEP co-ordinator Frank Clegg surveyed the area Sunday and ordered provincial works crews and engineers into the area to clean up the mess.

Port Moody mayor Ian Young and Coquitlam mayor Jim Tonn have asked the government to proclaim a disaster area where the mud struck. The pair sent a joint telegram to Wolfe Sunday requesting immediate aid in clearing away the debris and asking that "full compensation" be given to people who suffered losses.

Young said municipal workers have determined the chances of another massive slide occurring in the area are limited but they have cautioned those removed Friday not to return to their homes until the situation has been cleared by experts.

Wolfe said it is still too early to declare the area as a disaster area.

"The government stands ready to support that if proper determination is made," he said. "It's provided for under legislation but after all, we have to have some assessment made by those who are experts in this field."

ON THE INSIDE

Carter turns hawkish

President Carter, who vowed to rid the world of nuclear weapons, has requested a whopping $18 billion rise in the U.S. defence budget and won approval for new NATO nuclear arms. Page 5.

Canada would win: poll

Quebecers would vote more than two to one to keep their province part of Canada if the sovereignty-independence referendum were held at once, the latest poll says. Page 30.

Rhodesia ceasefire signed

Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, today initialled arrangements for a Rhodesian ceasefire. Page 48.

Sports

Philadelphia Flyers defeated Buffalo Sabres and tied New York Rangers on the weekend to close within one game of the National Hockey League record of 28 games without defeat while Montreal Canadiens went down to their fourth straight loss on Saturday, losing to Winnipeg Jets. Page 16.

Chicago Bears sneaked into the National Football League playoffs in unusual fashion Sunday. Bears beat St. Louis 42-6 while Dallas Cowboys scored two touchdowns in last three minutes to beat Washington and hand Chicago a wild-card berth on basis of a point spread over Washington. Page 16.

Great Falls Americans have pulled out of the Western Hockey League, reducing the league to 11 teams, and players will be up for grabs in a dispersal draft. Victoria Cougars split weekend series, defeating Brandon and losing to Regina. Page 17.

Wide rift appears over U.S. hostages

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The armed militants holding the U.S. Embassy clashed angrily with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh today and declared their 50 American hostages would not be home by Christmas but would be tried as spies.

Ghotbzadeh, who said he was speaking with Ayatollah Khomeini's authority, told reporters at least some of the hostages may be freed in time to spend Christmas with their families while the others would be held to "testify" before an "anti-imperialist" commission as witnesses — but not as defendants.

He said the shah's departure from the United States had opened the door to a resolution of the crisis.

But the militants holding the Americans hostage for the 44th day contradicted Ghotbzadeh's remarks and insisted that all of the Americans would be hauled before an Islamic court and tried as spies — a charge punishable by death.

"We will try to do our best to defuse the crisis; I certainly don't want to have this crisis forever," Ghotbzadeh told The Associated Press.

"We take it as the first victory for our determination in this case and obviously the atmosphere is being changed to some extent," the foreign minister said. "A part of the process of defusing the crisis has presented itself and we hope by that, with the other positive steps taken with the United States and the international community, we come to resolve this problem."

Rebates for oil firms?

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark may announce this week a proposal to give Canadian oil companies rebates from a special tax on oil revenues, Conservative party officials said Sunday.

The rebate — which would give back part of Clark's proposed energy self-sufficiency tax to Canadian companies — would allow greater expansion by Canadian companies in the domestic oil industry, now dominated by foreign-owned multinationals.

The proposal was to have been unveiled this week by Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn as part of a comprehensive energy policy but the defeat of the government and the calling of the Feb. 18 election now moves the announcement from the sphere of government policy to that of campaign promise.

Clark will be first off the mark in the campaign this week, leaving today for a cross-country tour with his wife Maureen McTeer and key advisers.

He will be in Vancouver Thursday.

Clark intends to hammer away at the long list of proposed legislation that died with the defeat of his government.

Soggy Yule in the cards

If you're doing any dreaming these days, don't dream about a white Christmas.

The Victoria weather office is expecting a soggy one.

"With the present weather pattern the chances are very remote that it will snow for Dec. 25," forecaster John Yarema said.

"The chances are strong it will rain."

But, he added, that's hardly surprising because it has snowed for the holiday only twice in the past 20 years.

And there has been a drizzle or worse for 10 of the 20 years.

Yarema said golf clubs or fishing rods are a more practical gifts than sleds in Victoria because on the remaining eight occasions the weather has been mild and sunny enough for outdoor sports.

OPEC ministers discuss price rise

CARACAS (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets in this Venezuelan capital today to raise its base price for crude oil again but many of the cartel's 13 members have jumped the gun and boosted their prices as much as 33 per cent.

World oil prices were about 100 per cent more than they were last year as the cartel's oil ministers convened.

"The industrialized countries can pay whatever we ask," Libyan Oil Minister Izzedin al Mabrak told a reporter. "They have shown they can stand a price increase."

Libya, which breached the OPEC ceiling of $23.50 U.S. a barrel in October, announced another price increase Sunday and said it would decrease production next year. It increased the price of its high-quality crude oil — prized for its high yield of gasoline — by $3.73 to $30 a barrel retroactive to Nov. 1.

Europe battered

LONDON (AP) — At least 11 people were killed as hurricane-force winds, snow and heavy rain swept across Britain and parts of western Europe at the weekend.

Winds gusting to more than 190 kilometres an hour were reported in Ireland and Scotland. On the Continent, trees were felled, roofs were ripped away and structures toppled by the fierce winds.

In Glasgow, a woman was struck and killed by a falling chimney. In Sussex, southern England, winds blew a light plane into a quarry, killing the pilot.

One Danish seaman was reported missing when he was swept off the deck of his vessel at sea.

In France, a woman was killed when her car was hit by a falling tree branch and a workman died instantly when he was blown off a house under construction.

In Liege, Belgium, police said a woman was killed when heavy winds blew a wall down on top of her.

In central Norway, five buses skidded off icy highways Saturday, killing three youngsters and injuring 30. In the Valais alpine region of Switzerland, a bus carrying 26 children skidded off a road and plunged into a meadow, injuring seven.

Sidney man, seagull meet every day for breakfast

WADDELL

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Each morning, rain or shine, Jim Waddell leaves his home in Sidney and drives into Victoria with a basket of bread crusts and herring by his side.

At Finlayson and Douglas he looks up at a lamppost and spots the one-legged seagull peering down on the busy street from its crossbar perch.

The bird recognizes the car. He gives his tired old wings a flap and follows behind.

Waddell, 68, drives to a house in the 500-block Frances nearby.

He gets out and approaches a garage.

The seagull has landed on the peak of the roof and let's out a mild squawk as if to say: "You're late."

"Come on old friend," Waddell cajoles and casts a herring on the shingles. The bird, unable to walk, slides down the roof on his tail and takes the offering in one swift gulp. The rest of the herring and the bread crusts are similarly dispatched.

The feeding done, the gull flies off. Some days he can barely make it over the clothesline crossing the property next door. His wings have clipped it more than once. But that's because of his age. The bird is at least 25 years old.

The morning ritual has been going on ever since a cold January day in 1955 when Waddell and his wife Doris spied a young gull, its right leg missing above the knee, trying to compete with the other gulls for the food the Waddells threw to them from the lawn of their house at 511 Frances.

The bird hopped about but got practically nothing and the Waddells took pity.

Gradually they got the crippled bird to stay behind after the others had flown off and trained it to go on the roof of a garage next door.

Waddell would climb on to a coal shed and push herring bits toward it.

Eventually they gave the bird a name — Stumpy, of course.

Stumpy, often accompanied by his mate, a white and pale grey gull like him, has become a fixture on the block. Sometimes they bring along the brown mottled chicks they've raised over the years.

If Stumpy isn't on the roof,

Stumpy. . . a ritual that started 25 years ago with the one-legged seagull

Seagull gets fed

Waddell calls its name and the bird appears.

In 1972 Waddell, who once ran a cleaning business in the city, sold his house and moved to a duplex at 9523 Maryland in Sidney.

Over the years he's returned to Frances Avenue almost every day to help out his former neighbor, an elderly woman, 96, and to feed the gull with the herring he gets from friends and relatives and well-wishers.

Stumpy awaits each visit recognizing Waddell's car as it approaches.

The daily pilgrimage was placed in jeopardy earlier this year when Waddell developed a heart problem and twice had to undergo surgery.

But his wife took over. A non-driver she had her sister drive her into town each day to tend to Stumpy and the neighbor.

Waddell's health is getting better, to the point he has resumed the routine.

But how long it will last, no one can say.

No wrongdoing: Campbell

Dan Campbell said today there was "nothing sinister" in his handling of Social Credit party campaign funds.

The former intergovernmental relations director whose resignation was announced Friday by Premier Bill Bennett told a press conference he has given Attorney-General Allan Williams a sworn declaration about his actions.

Campbell insisted there was no wrongdoing involved in the disclosures by fired Socred researcher Ellen Mackay about party election spending.

In the declaration given to Williams the former Bennett aide said the $1,000 bill he handed to her during the campaign "was given on the basis of trusting Miss Mackay to spend the money for the purpose for which it was given, namely accommodation and other living expenses."

Mackay has said Campbell told her he did not want receipts. She also spoke of a party at a Vancouver Chinese restaurant thrown for campaign workers by Campbell during the election campaign in May.

In his declaration, Campbell said: "That entertainment was not paid entirely by Dan Campbell. The facts are that each table looked after its own costs."

As for the party's failure to report $246,000 of campaign expenses, of which $65,000 were directly under his personal control, Campbell said the law does not prohibit making an amended expense report and that's what was done last week.

Campbell, who released a one-page notarized statement, would not not answer any questions about it.

Indonesia quake kills 8

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — A powerful earthquake jolted the southern part of Sumatra island this weekend, killing at least eight people, seriously injuring more than 600 others, and destroying thousands of homes, officials said today.

Losses on the Indonesian island are expected to reach $8 million, officials said, and at least 13 mosques, several schools, five bridges and a jail were destroyed by the Saturday quake. Communications with the worst-hit areas were cut off and some roads were blocked because of landslides.

Officials of the Meteorological Institute in Jakarta said the quake, measuring between 6.0 and 6.5 on the open-ended Richer scale, was triggered by a strong earth movement and not by a volcanic explosion as earlier reported.

Rains, mud slides wreak havoc were wondering if their damage was covered by insurance or if they would be losers because the disaster may be classified as an "act of God" resulting from the two days and nights of heavy rains.

Residents began pitching in Saturday to help those who have suffered personal loss in the mudslides. Establishment of the Port Moody Slide Fund with proceeds to help the victims, was announced Saturday by Mike Foley, president of the Port Moody Lions Club.

Foley said donors may leave cash or cheques for the fund at Port Moody city hall, the Westminster Credit Union or Port Moody branches of the Royal Bank and Bank of Nova Scotia.

Mayor Young said the slide started 600 metres over the southern boundary of the City of Port Moody and the District of Coquitlam in the 900-Block Porter.

Richmond was experiencing residential flooding but main roads were open.

The storm over Victoria s caused by rare Arctic system reaching the city, forcing a mild, moist storm high into the air. The moist air is at 2,000 metres, forcing the rainfall. Normally it would pass near the surface as cloud on its way to drop moisture on Vancouver.

Flooded basements are the main problem in the capital region but municipal crews report the over-all situation is under control.

The deluge is expected to turn to showers early Tuesday. The outlook for Wednesday is for cloudy periods and more rain.

Victoria City municipal engineer John Sansom said the situation is better than on Thursday when two days of heavy precipitation had created minor flooding problems at various points in the city.

"We are on top of the situation at this point and there are no serious problems of a general nature, although there is a good deal of basement flooding."

In Saanich, municipal crews also reported the situation under control.

Problems could escalate if the rains continued through the week because the ground is saturated now and any further precipitation will run off towards low-lying areas rather than being soaked into the ground.

In Oak Bay municipal pumps are working full time but there are no serious road problems.

Public works crews have also been busy pumping the flooded basements of residents, but no real crises occurred over the weekend.

Bowker Creek threatened to overflow, but didn't and is now receding.

Esquimalt has a bit of a drainage problem in some areas.

The municipality received a number of reports of basement flooding over the weekend.

The Langford-Colwood area is wet but roads are bare. A flat section of highway between Sooke and Glen Lake was closed Friday because of flooding but is now open.

Road conditions in the Sooke area are adequate but there are patches of water in low areas.

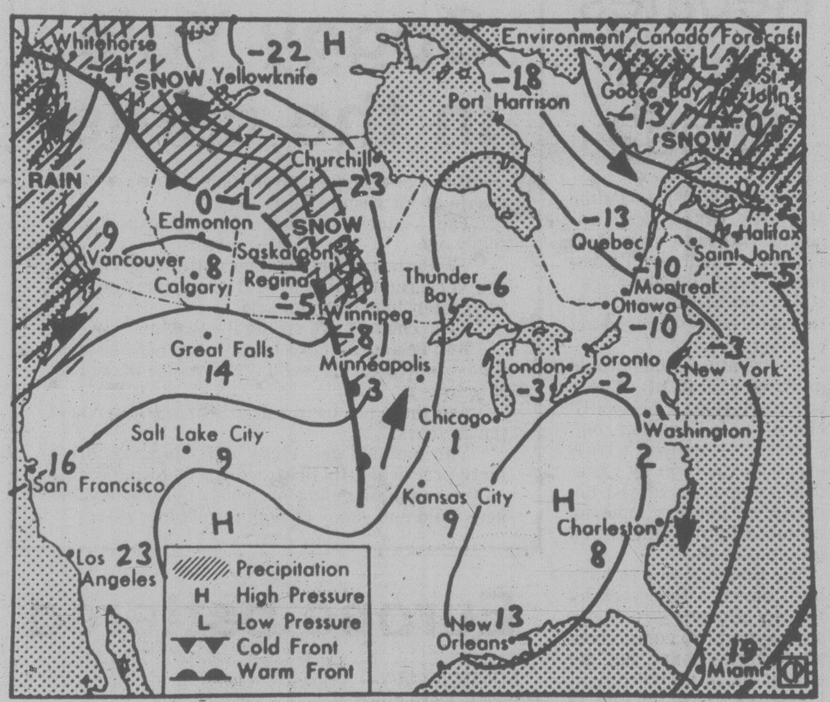

Map valid until noon Tuesday

A low pressure area over the Gulf of Alaska is pumping moist warm air onto the west coast with southern sections getting most of the precipitation. A heavy rain warning has been issued for the Greater Vancouver area where continued heavy rain is expected to dump up to 50 mm by midnight tonight. Occasional heavy rain will continue over most of the south coast today. A snow warning has been issued for the Columbia Kootenay region where locally 20 to 30 cm of snow is expected to fall today. Tuesday will see some improvement most areas with generally cloudy skies at occasional shower activity.

NEED A FRIEND? A bird in the hand could be worth another one if you'd like to provide a home for this fine-feathered specimen, a domestic fancy pheasant. The bird was picked up as a stray and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would prefer to see it go to someone experienced at looking after birds, possibly a home where pheasants are already kept. Anyone filling the bill can contact the SPCA's Victoria animal shelter at 3150 Napier Lane, 388-6627. (John McKay photo).

Laury fights to free a 'killer'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twice a week, three times if it's a holiday weekend, Laury Lewis leaves her house in suburban Surrey and drives to the Fraser Valley community of Agassiz.

Usually her three children accompany her on the three-hour round trip to Mountain Institution, a federal maximum-security prison.

She's been making the trip for three years, since her 40-year-old husband, Jim, was given two life terms for the so-called kettle-bomb slaying of a newly-wed East Indian couple in New Westminster in 1972.

He was convicted of mailing Gurmail and Parmjeet Sidhu a bomb concealed in a kettle on behalf of the girl's father, Santa Singh Tatley, who objected to her marrying a commoner. Tatley was also convicted.

Besides raising William, 17, Bobby, 13, and 11-year-old Patricia, Mrs. Lewis works full-time as an assistant office manager for the highways department.

When her regular working day is over she assumes a multiple role that includes advocate, clerk and law student as well as persistent and passionate petitioner on behalf of the husband she believes to be unjustly imprisoned.

Since Lewis was convicted the family has tried — and lost — almost every avenue of appeal, including one to the Supreme Court of Canada earlier this year.

"Oh it was discouraging, all right," says Mrs. Lewis. "But I found that instead of getting down about it, I kept getting mad . . . and I guess that kept me going to the next step."

Last Friday the family tried the last avenue open to them — they applied to the federal justice minister for a new trial.

Vancouver lawyer John Laxton's letter to Justice Minister Jacques Flynn requesting the retrial challenges the credibility of a key prosecution witness who said Lewis mailed a parcel and told the witness to listen to the radio for news about "a boom or blast." It also questions evidence about delivery of a parcel to the Sidhu home.

Mrs. Lewis says prison staff have been among the most helpful in her campaign to clear her husband's name, allowing her longer visiting hours while she was preparing appeals and even bringing her lunches.

And several residents of Merritt, the central B.C. community where the family lived at the time of Lewis' arrest, have offered to be character witnesses for him.

Mrs. Lewis says the lowest point in her battle was just after her husband was convicted.

"We just couldn't believe it. It took me several months to get over the shock. It took the kids longer, especially Patricia."

Patricia still cries about the situation, but not as often.

"She's quite open now; she'll tell her friends each weekend that she's off to see her dad at the Agassiz jail."

Fire guts B.C. school

CASTLEGAR, B.C. (CP) — A weekend fire which destroyed the Kinnaird Elementary School in this southeastern B.C. community has resulted in an extra week of Christmas vacation for 270 students.

The blaze, which fire department officals believe was deliberately set, started shortly before midnight Saturday and reduced to ruins the one-storey school valued at $1.3 million. There were no injuries.

John Dasch, secretary-treasurer of the Castlegar school board, said this week's classes will be cancelled and students will not have to return until Jan. 7. Half of the students will take classes in the Kinnaird Hall, adjacent to the school; the rest will go to seven vacant classrooms in other schools in the district.

Firemen said that when they arrived on the scence they noticed fire had broken out at three different points in the one-storey building.

"The fire ran from one end of the building to the other as fast as you could run," said fire chief Rene Archambault. "We believe it was arson the way it went. I'd strongly suspect it."

"It was an inferno. The whole building was engulfed within 10 minutes after we got the call."

Star Trek isn't bad, but its no Old Yeller

Paramount Pictures in Hollywood said on the weekend Star Trek — The Motion Picture grossed a record first week box office total of $17,060,837 in the United States and Canada.

That must have meant the Capitol Theatre, where the movie is playing in Victoria, was busier than it's ever been for an opening, right?

Not necessarily, said Capitol manager John McRae, although there have been long lineups.

Opening night was the closest the movie came to filling the 1,307-seat theatre for ST—TMP. About 1,250 Trekkies showed up.

Attendance at the last show was around 1,000.

"There have been busier shows," McRae said.

There was Old Yeller, for instance. For that Walt Disney favorite, McRae said there would be lineups at the theatre when he arrived at 9 a.m., and even with two extra showings a day, there would still be people around at midnight.

"There's no doubt, though," McRae said today, "that business is very good."

And it should stay that way, with matinees starting when the kids get out for the Christmas holiday.

"We did set a box office record the first week."

But "box office" means money, and McRae shared an interesting view of the record first week record of more than $17 million. He suggested it's a good idea to "remember the depleted dollar." Adults are now paying $4 to get into a first-run movie. There was a time when they paid $1.75, and kids were paying something like 50 cents.

So in terms of numbers of people actually showing up to see a movie, maybe it isn't as great as it sounds.

For McRae, the original Rocky and One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest were "great box office."

Shared responsibility

When the lives of children are lost at sea, a marine mishap takes on an added emotional impact. The tragedy last week on the north coast is no exception.

Three adults and seven children died while on a 100-mile voyage from Prince Rupert to Kincolith aboard a 32-foot fishboat. They were delivering food and Christmas presents to relatives living in the Portland Canal Indian village.

The visit was to be a surprise, so nobody was told they were coming. One of the cardinal rules of boating had been broken. Since nobody knew their expected arrival time, nobody knew they were missing. Several days elapsed before a search was started.

The vessel was eventually found dashed against the rocks on the Alaska side of Dixon Entrance. It is believed that the boat's steering failed and it drifted north.

A spokesman for the United Fisherman and Allied Workers Union says the lives might have been spared if the Coast Guard or Workers' Compensation Board made regular inspections of small fishboats.

Similar demands were made a few years back when an unprecendented number of fishermen and boats were lost during a stormy March roe-herring season.

Government agencies have since have improved public awareness programs designed to educate fishermen about boat safety and stability. However, only lip service has been paid to undertaking an inspection program of small boats. The lack of money and manpower has been the biggest factor in deciding against it.

Governments now take some responsibility for the safety inspection of cars, airplanes, trains, buses and boats over 15 tons in size. It would seem that yearly safety inspections of fishboats under 15 tons could at least guarantee some minimum safety standard.

Yet, even with legislation forcing the upkeep of old boats, it would still be impossible to legislate the wisdom and common sense needed to deal with the sea, or with any other endeavor that presents the same risks.

Exciting concept

A reconstruction of Shakespeare's Globe Theatre in Saanich? It does sound like a pipedream, but the municipality should be congratulated for giving the theatre's promoters a chance to make their dream a reality.

Of all the proposals on how to use the 7.7 acre Maltwood property, a Shakespearean Festival would seem to the one least likely to survive the test of economic viability. But in the long haul it is certainly the only one with the potential of adding a spectacular dimension to the state of the arts in Victoria, not only for residents but also for visitors.

The Lord Chamberlain Players Society, the local group behind the proposal, has been given seven months to prove the viability of the Globe. At the end of that time, they are expected to have completed working drawings for an 800 to 1,000 seat theatre and arranged the financing.

Society president Konrad Boyce has estimated the cost of the Globe at $600,000 and intends to raise the money through government grants and donations.

The society plans to build its theatre in a separate building on the property, leaving the existing structures intact and available for restaurant facilities. By giving approval in principle to the Shakespearan festival, council has not jeopardized its $375,000 investment in Maltwood, other than having to wait several months before seeing a return. It seems a small price.

False security at the polls

WASHINGTON — In the last few weeks, with the help of the Ayatollah Khomeini and Senator Kennedy, President Carter has gained 18 to 20 points in the political popularity polls. In the summer, he was regarded as a sure loser, and in December he is now regarded as a likely winner, all because of his deft handling of an Iranian crisis he should have avoided in the first place.

It makes you wonder — not about the accuracy of these polls, for they are very accurate — but about the flighty judgment of American public opinion. Carter hasn't really changed all that much this year. He wasn't as bad as the polls suggested in the spring, and isn't as good as the polls are suggesting now.

In fact, Carter lost points in the polls for facing up to the neglected problems of Panama, Taiwan, the Palestinians and military arms control, when by any fair historical analysis, he should have gained. And he has gained points in the polls by his compassionate but clumsy handling of the shah of Iran, and by his blundering over the so-called Soviet "combat brigade" in Cuba, when he should have lost.

Riding the yo-you

Similarly, Kennedy has been going up and down in the polls like a yo-yo. When he wasn't running, he was so far ahead in the Democratic Party polls that it seemed almost a pity for Carter to think about anything else except going back to Plains, Ga. After Kennedy started running, the last of the Kennedys was sacked on almost every play.

Kennedy didn't really change either between his highs and his lows. Everything that has brought him down in the last few weeks — Chappaquiddick, his family problems, his school record, his liberal credentials, his tendency to rely on style rather than on substance — all were known when the polls had him at the very top.

But he had the bad judgment to discuss these embarrassing questions on national television with Roger Mudd, and also, in a misjudgment of timing, to tell the unpopular truth about the shah of Iran. Accordingly, like Jimmy Carter, his fortunes changed, and will no doubt change again many times in response to the news and a fickle public.

One and only one presidential candidate has managed to penetrate the art of remaining high in the polls — Ronald Reagan. He has been as steady and silent as the Western Star. As an actor-turned-politician — a very slight turn — he learned the lesson of the whale: you get harpooned only when you are spouting on the surface. And it is this gift of distant illusion, of staying apart, that keeps him going without any other visible means of support.

John Connally of Texas is loitering along in the polls among the also-rans, because he hasn't mastered Reagan's gift of meaningless generalities and mystifying clarifications. Big Jawn is as subtle as a punch in the nose. You bet he's for Big Business, he says. The Japanese, he adds, had better shape up, or they can sit in their Toyotas and listen to their Sonys on the docks of Yokahama rather than trying to dump them in the United States!

Connally even had the temerity to suggest that we were getting into a bloody mess in the Middle East, and should have a wholly new policy that defended American interests as well as Israel's interests and the oil states' interests, even if the Israelis and the Jews in this country didn't like it. Nothing has hurt Connally in the polls more than his effort to be tough and frank. This sort of frontal attack works fairly well for the Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Oilers, but it hasn't worked for Connally in the polls. The odds now are that with his wild-card, he won't make it to the playoffs.

Governor Brown of California has done even worse in the polls than Connally, because he broke every rule in the political book. He even suggested that the people should begin to think about the last 20 years of the century in a different way. He expressed the opinion that the defense budget of the United States was too high; that it was crazy for the nations of the world to spend $450 billion a year on "defense" budgets, when half the children in the world were going to bed hungry every night; and that maybe we should be thinking about protecting the environment of the earth and exploring the mysteries of outer space.

Meanwhile he went off to Africa to explore the mysteries of Linda Ronstadt, and, instead of gaining points in the polls, he lost both the Puritan and the jealousy votes.

What is interesting about these public opinion surveys is how indifferent the people seem to be about candidates like Howard Baker of Tennessee, George Bush of Texas and John Anderson of Illinois.

These three men have several things in common. They are all Republicans. They have more experience in the problems of governing in Washington than either Reagan or Connally. By ordinary standards, they would be regarded as the rising generation of a party that has been out of power for many years. But in the popularity polls, they are almost invisible.

No deception

Jimmy Carter has a more sympathetic view of the polls now, especially since his fortunes are rising, but he is not deceived. At this point in the past pesidential election campaign of 1976, he was almost invisible at the bottom of the also-ran column, but finally made it to the top.

He is well aware of the personal struggles, and the political accident that got him there then, and of the tragedies in Iran that have brought the sympathy of the American people to his side in the last few weeks, and raised his standing in the polls.

But he is also aware that the crisis in Iran will pass, in release or tragedy for the hostages, but that the problems of the Middle East will endure — not to mention the problems of the Middle West — and that the cost of living, of interest rates, of unemployment, and of housing shortages will probably have more effect on the popularity polls in 1980 than anything else.

Victoria Landmarks

Some Victorians using Blanshard Street may not realize that Richard Blanshard was the first Governor of the Colony of Vancouver Island.

Created by the Imperial Government in 1849, this first British colony in western North America lasted from 1849-1866. It was a difficult colony to govern, Blanshard discovered. Nearly all its inhabitants were employees of the Hudson's Bay Company. They naturally regarded the Chief Factor as their boss and the real ruler of the colony.

On Aug. 30, 1851, Governor Blanshard appointed a Legislative Council of James Douglas as senior member, and John Todd and James Cooper. Then, announcing his resignation as governor, he said that, until the arrival of a new commission, the senior member should fill the position.

Thus James (later Sir James) Douglas was the second governor, and served until 1863 when he was replaced by the third and last governor, A.E. Kennedy.

The treasured original Journal of the Minutes of the Legislative Council 1851-1861 is in the Provincial Archives. In 1918, the text of this Journal was printed. In it we find our early legislators considered liquor sales, schools, roads, wooden bridges, the macadamizing of some streets, the sale and registry of lands, the registrations of voters, a lighthouse at Race Rocks, the encouragement of agriculture.

On May 1,1860, there was the first reading of "A Bill to prevent the Use of Stove-pipes, and render Compulsory the Building of Brick and Stone Chimneys within certain Limits of the Town of Victoria."

Unfair labelling

On page 37 of your Dec. 7 edition, a report comes to the conclusion that British Columbia is a haven for "heathen" and "non conforming" persons who do not belong to "established" churches of various denominations.

This may be or not may be true, but labelling the people of our province as "heathen" is not just or fair.

It is probably true that many of our citizens do not attend regularly the various services of organized churches, but they do not deserve to be labelled "heathen". As a matter of fact, people in general do respond quite generously to most appeals for contributions to the United Way, the dailies appeal for help to provide toys for children, food baskets for needy, and some financial assistance to the less fortunate among people.

British Columbians from all walks of life have always shown much generosity and goodwill.

When Christ was asked by one of his disciples or by a member of the audience gathering around Him what he should do to obtain admission to the Kingdom of Heaven, His reply was "keep the Commandments", not to attend a church service once a week.

Judging by the response to many appeals from many national, international and local sources, we can honestly dismiss the "heathen" lable as unfair. Maybe many of us are "free spirits" but, as a whole, we are warmhearted, generous, unselfish and charitable. — E. I. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

No whimsy

Regarding the humorous report of the Cameo Street cow herd and the touching write-up on the "gentle" bull:

On behalf of my neighbors, I would like you to know that the stampedes are neither comical nor whimsical. — Mrs. G. Hodgson, 727 Cameo Street.

Game declining

I've just returned from a day inspection tour of the Nechako Reservoir which was one of the best hunting areas of the province. Five of us spent about six hours a day walking in good game areas (8 days in all). In this time we never saw or heard another hunter, and I would say that hunting pressure is not a factor in this area. Even in the conservation area of Tweedsmuir Park where there is no hunting, the game population has nearly disappeared.

We spent the same number of days seven years ago and we saw a great deal of game at that time (deer, caribou and moose). There was never a day when we didn't see deer and moose, some days as many as 30 deer. Now there is no deer and we saw no caribou, not even any tracks, and we saw only 10 moose in 8 days. I found five wolf kills; two calves, a two-year-old cow, a big dry cow, only just killed, and a big bull killed less than a week ago. We heard wolves every day and covered an area of over 100 miles.

I think it is a great shame that due to false education and misleading information on radio and TV we have educated a generation that knows little about game management, and the realities of wildlife in general, which in the end stops our managers from managing. With reasonable predator control programs (without eliminating the wolf) we could still have just as much game as during the 1950s and 1960s when we had game management and control programs. Staff in the Fish and Wildlife Branch gained a lot of respect and experience on how best to carry it out. Now with the false education system on Wildlife Management, and how the balance of nature works, the pressure groups have made it impossible for wildlife managers to take action to save what little is left of our game.

I don't blame those working in the Fish and Wildlife Branch as I've seen first hand the abuse they get if they even try to carry out control methods in cattle areas, and it would be ten times worse if they were to practice control in our game areas where nothing has been done for over 10 years. Jack Radford, Sam Bawlf and Rafe Mair have had the dubious honor to preside over the destruction of our game. I've always asked for more money for the Fish and Wildlife Branch, however, they are so limited in their actions on management and predator control, due to the uninformed actions of the pressure groups and news media, that I've come to the conclusion we will lose nearly all our game animals left and heavy expenditures would not be justified. — Cyril M. Shelford, Terrace.

Exhausting ritual

As the days go by and Christmas approaches, it is not uncommon to hear the usual complaints about over-commercialism, the numerous advertising materials we receive constantly through the media, the offers of "specials" to convince us that the more we spend the more we save.

What was originally meant to be a day of worship, of reunion of families and friends gathering around a modest tree and a table with a few extras, mostly homemade goodies, has become an exhausting ritual in some cases, creating problems when people cannot meet their own expectations and those of the ones dear to them.

Yet it would be unfair to blame newspapers, magazines, merchants and travel agencies for this state of affairs, which we have brought upon ourselves by demanding more and more when a little less would be in order considering the circumstances under which we live, the uncertainty of the immediate future and the dismal conditions of people all around the world.

Compared with the magnitude of the tragic events brought to our attention in written and spoken words, the small problems of a few gifts, beyond our means to afford, are rather insignificant.

If we are powerless to bring about a humane solution to the daily prolonged agony of those kept in captivity, of those exposed to death by diseases and starvation, let us at least pause for awhile in our search for pleasures and good times and think of them all. — E. I. Lattes, #432-200 Dallas Road.

Sell deep-freezes

I was amazed to see recent news reports that Ottawa had hired "an Englishman" to teach (?) Eskimos how to handle a kayak! Astounding! — W. R. Morgan, 101-105 Island Highway.

Open road

Last summer a small notice appeared in the papers that the Municipal Council of Saanich was to debate a by-law closing Torquay Drive between Kenmore Road and Shelbourne Street. A small group of people had petitioned council saying it was a danger to their children, mostly because of youths driving in a dangerous manner to and from Lambrick Park School.

Sure enough, our council did just this. About two weeks ago a barricade was put up in front of the school and vehicles were no longer able to go through!

Last week I spent many hours telephoning over a hundred homes along and off Torquay Drive asking their opinions on the closure. Of those with an opinion exactly 75 per cent wanted it reopened and 25 per cent wanted it left closed. Those who wanted it left closed nearly all cited the safety of their children for their reason. This seems to me a poor excuse for forcing the closure of a well used through road.

The municipality and the school board deserve much of the blame for putting the parking lot for Lambrick Park School on the north side of the school facing Gordon Head School. Perhaps this parking lot should be made into basketball courts and a new parking lot laid out on the south side of the school. As far as dangerous drivers are concerned this is a policing problem, not a reason to close the road. Many schools have this problem without taking such drastic measures.

The complete closing of the street has not been decided upon as I have been informed that the council is waiting to hear from residents as to their views. My telephone poll seems to show that what we would wish is to have the street reopened and improved with sidewalks. — Glen Truax, 4471 Torquay Drive.

Act three

It was said of Henry Temple, a rather autocratic nineteenth century Bishop of Exeter, England, that when he granted an interview it resolved itself into a three act drama:

Act 1 — Who are you?
Act 2 — What do you want?
Act 3 — NO!

Recent press reports would seem to indicate that the Premier of British Columbia; some of his ministers and executive officials have been tending to emulate the good Bishop's example but with Act Three altered to "No Comment"

In any event the implication would seem to be that, even in a democratic system, it is still the privilege of government officials to decide what will, or will not, be discussed in public which is of course, most undesirable. — G.B. Key, 303 141 Bushby Street.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Kissingerese

In Henry Kissinger White House Years — I presume that's the title; there is no colon after the name, and the byline is placed on top of what would ordinarily be the title — all the doubts are "grave" and all the misgivings are "serious." Never a mild doubt or a lighthearted misgiving.

Worse, he writes of "opening gambits," a redundancy — in chess, a gambit is an opening move. And worst of all, on page 580, the man who was national security adviser from 1969 to 1975 makes the stupefying mistake of spelling adviser with an "o." (Yes, that's how to spell "stupefy" — not "stupify," a blunder perpetrated in this space recently.)

With those minor nits picked, let us examine the vivid Kissingerese, the vocabulary of the modern super-diplomat, as set forth by the only secretary of state to have had two presidents working for him.

Demarche

"Ambassador Rabin . . . presented a demarche from Golda Meir . . ." "I found Vorontsov's demarche encouraging . . ." This French word (originally meaning "to trample underfoot") means "move" or "line of action," and in diplolingo has come to mean a political or international maneuver. With enough demarches, a country could achieve detente, or go to war.

Condominium

"We would not participate in a Soviet-American condominium . . ." "We would give no encouragement to visions of condominium, and we would resist any attempts by Moscow to achieve hegemony over China or elsewhere." The Latin word dominium means "lordship"; "condominium" means "joint rule or sovereignty," and was popularized by German political writers in the 18th century.

A "Sino-Soviet condominium" is a tenant-owned apartment house in the Black Sea with a Chinese restaurant downstairs.

Hegemony

With the preferred pronunciation accenting the "gem," soft "g," this word — meaning "dominance" — comes from the Greek hegemon, or "leader." According to Kissinger: "Though this later became a hallowed Chinese word, it actually was introduced by us." As an etymologist, he's a better statesman: the dirty word for leadership was used a generation ago in the translation of Mao's "dig tunnels deep, store grain and never seek hegemony."

Modalities

In the White House Situation Room (which could as easily have been named the "What's New Room," since "situation" is as vague as it is voguish) an assistant secretary of state urged, "I think we should not offer to discuss with the Chinese modalities of a meeting, such as communications, personnel, timing, security, etc . . . Our discussion of such modalities will be interpreted as a firm commitment to a higher-level meeting . . ." This venerable word, having to do with form rather than substance, has been snapped up by the foreign-policy reaucracy: in medicine, it is a method of treatment, and in diplomacy, it denotes conditions under which agreements take effect as well as the trappings of negotiation.

Interlocutor

"This unsolicited comment did not utterly mystify my interlocutors . . ." "Brezhnev, who had physical magnetism, crowded his interlocutor." This is a useful word, meaning "someone who engages in conversation or dialogue," from the Latin for "to speak between," the same root as "locution" and "loquacious." In American usage, the word calls up a vision of a master of ceremonies at a minstrel show: "Mis-tuh Interlokkiter" is the straight man, in the middle, who questions the end men. As a result, "interlocutor," in the United States, came to mean "questioner" or "interpreter." But in Kissingerese, the usage is broadened to "one who engages in discourse." This is a useful stretch of meaning, since no other single word covers the other person engaged in a colloquy.

Neuralgic

"Cuba was a neuralgic problem for Nixon." To the Soviets, "Peking was a 'neuralgic' point." Apparently this is a new vogue term in diplomacy, taken from the severe pain along a nerve, meaning "more than usually distressing" and requiring fast fast fast relief.

Up to now, we have been dealing with standard diplolingo; however, Kissingerese has also adopted certain substandard forms for informal use:

Chivy

"Opponents deliberately chivied the Administration until harassed officials . . ." "Chivy," pronounced with the ch as in "chin," is an ancient slang verb, meaning "to chase, hound, harry, pursue," and has an interesting background: Cheviot Hills, called Chevy Chase, was the scene of the Battle of Otterburn in 1388. The losers were said to have been "chevied," or "chivied" — perhaps from the local hunting cry — and the word now means "to subject to vexatious, petty maneuverings that annoy and confuse an opponent." Much of this takes place among Washington officials who live in suburban Chevy Chase, Md.

Chutzpah

"With amazing chutzpah, Brezhnev's letter argued that the Soviet departure from Egypt was in part an implementation of the troop withdrawal proposal . . ." This Hebrew term, which has come to us via Yiddish, means "effrontery, impudence, brass" and has been enshrined by Kissinger in diplomatic usage on matters dealing with Middle East "intransigence" (an unpronounceable word rooted in "unwilling to transact business in a negotiation").

Nonstarter

"Though Option A was a nonstarter, the failure to achieve it could always be blamed on the lack of vigilance of our negotiators." The origin of this term is obscure. One speculation roots it in auto racing; assistance with its background would be appreciated by lexicographers the world over. The term has been in general use long enough to lose its hyphen.

Loose change

"Brezhnev, never able to forgo the temptation to pick up some loose change, proposed a bombing halt . . ." "The Shah . . . could have . . . striven . . . to pick up whatever loose change could be found by manipulating the rivalry of the superpowers for short-term ends." This colorful locution seems to mean "unworthy diversion," or "insignificant and temporary advantage," as in the rifling of pants pockets for a few coins when an entire wallet filled with cash could be lifted by a skilled negotiator.

Thus, Henry Kissinger White House Years, if that is indeed its title, or Henry Kissinger-White House Years (there is a line separating the name from the "time frame" on the title page, though not on the cover), provides the student of diplolingo with a feast of neologisms and a guide to current Foggy Bottom usage.

The one-starred tome even hints at new coinages in its sequel: "This was coupled with the proposal of 'proximity talks,' a procedure by which an American diplomat would shuttle between the two delegations housed in nearby hotel rooms." We all know that was the predecessor phrase for "shuttle diplomacy," which we will read about in Henry Kissinger State Department Years, or Henry Kissinger After the Fall, or Henry Kissinger Henry Kissinger, or . . .

Carter: From dove to hawk

By JIM KLURFELD
Newsday

BRUSSELS — This was the candidate who promised to cut the defence budget and the president who, in his inauguration speech, vowed to rid the world of nuclear weapons. Last week the same man requested a whopping $18 billion rise in the U.S. defence budget and won approval for one of the most significant increases in NATO nuclear weaponry in recent history.

The metamorphosis of Jimmy Carter from dove to hawk has been gradual but now appears to be almost complete. According to high-level administration officials, it is a transformation dictated by a combination of factors, including the need to gain conservative votes for the SALT II treaty and a gradual realization that the steady, unrelenting 20-year increase in Soviet defence spending could not go unanswered.

"Iran is just the most immediate reason — it provided the excuse the president needed to do what he had already decided had to be done," a U.S. defence official said here last week. "Obviously the SALT treaty is an important reason — but don't think for one minute that Jimmy Carter doesn't believe in what he is doing. He has been converted. It has been a slow, gradual process, but he honestly believes that this nation must make a much greater defence effort."

In fact, the NATO decision last week to install hundreds of U.S.-made nuclear missiles in Europe is a vivid illustration of the change in Carter's thinking. When he first took office, he talked of making unilateral arms control gestures in an effort to bring the Soviet Union into the arms control process. He even cancelled the B-1 bomber without attempting to trade it off for a Soviet concession.

Now he is taking the opposite approach. The United States successfully convinced the NATO allies that before starting any arms negotiations they must first commit themselves to a new arms program. That, say officials, is the only way to give the Soviets an incentive to bargain in good faith.

It is significant that this is a position Carter reached before the Iran crisis and before Senate hawks made the SALT treaty hostage to a major increase in defence spending. The president came to believe that the Soviet's steady deployment of the mobile and highly accurate SS20 nuclear missile changed the military balance in Europe and had to be answered before the opening of talks on limiting nuclear weapons in Europe, according to senior defence officials.

That decision was made Wednesday by NATO — reluctantly, but decisively. Although it has received little attention in the United States, the decision is viewed in Europe as being as significant in its implications as the Iranian dispute. Indeed, it is so controversial that the Dutch and Belgian governments, which supported the overall decision but with significant restrictions on their own participation, might still fall because of the their acquiescence.

U.S. officials said they were pleased with the NATO decision, but admitted privately that the reservations expressed by The Netherlands and Belgium will spur the Soviet Union to intensify its propaganda campaign aimed at blocking modernization. It is likely that Wednesday's vote is only the first skirmish in what is likely to be a protracted battle between the Soviet Union and Western alliance.

The United States would have preferred a unanimous decision, and had placed intense pressure on The Netherlands and Belgium not to separate themselves from the other allies. Indeed, the U.S. offer to remove 1,000 older nuclear warheads unilaterally from Europe was made in large part to convince the Dutch government and parliament to support the modernization plan, according to one high-level administration official. But this decision does put into action a $5 billion program that is to be completed by 1983.

The second part of the NATO decision, to pursue arms control agreements, also relates directly to Carter's announcement of the defence spending increase. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Wednesday that it was unlikely that the alliance could proceed on any new arms control negotiations until the Senate approves SALT II. And it has become clear that without a major defence-spending increase, the Senate would be unlikely to ratify the SALT treaty.

The major proponent of a spending increase has been Sen. Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat whose vote on SALT is considered crucial to its chances of passage.

By making the announcement he did Wednesday, Carter met Nunn's two conditions for his support of the treaty: the major defence spending increase and a public commitment by Carter to that increase.

However, even with the new willingness to support military programs as a result of the Iranian crisis, the president might find his proposal controversial. At a time when inflation is viewed as the prime domestic issue and when federal spending is being restricted, an $18 billion increase in defence spending will cut into social programs. Those programs are favored not only by Carter's top rival for the nomination, Sen. Edward Kennedy, but also by the entire liberal wing of the Democratic Party.

Fill the woodbox high

. . . after all the presents were opened, my Father and I would bundle up against the cold and fill the woodbox beside the big black and nickle plate stove to overflowing. "Mother needs a good steady fire to cook old Tom turkey," my Father said, loading my arms with pieces of bark. Soon the house was filled with the tantalizing smell of sage and onions and the sizzle of the turkey roasting.

Bear in the flaming pudding

. . . When I was very young, I didn't care for Christmas pudding. Anyway, I was always too full of turkey and stuffing to find room in my straining tummy. But the adults would 'ooh' and 'aah' as the holly bedecked pudding was brought forth, dancing with the brandy's blue flame. When I grew older, I always reserved a special space for that most delectable of endings to the Christmas feast . . . pudding!

Francana, Merrill get extension

CALGARY (CP) — Francana Oil and Gas Ltd. and Canadian Merrill Ltd. have announced a share exchange offer by Francana as part of a proposed reorganization of the two companies has been extended indefinitely.

The extension allows for a ruling by the Quebec Superior Court on an injunction sought by certain Merrill shareholders.

The offer was originally to expire Friday. The Calgary companies said a new termination date will be announced after the court ruling.

The proposed reorganization calls for Merrill business to be transferred to Francana and for Merrill shareholders to become Francana shareholders on the basis of 1.9 Francana shares for each outstanding Merrill share.

Mystery buyer for bank

TORONTO (CP) — A mystery buyer has made a $13.2-million offer for a nine-percent stake in Continental Bank of Canada.

The bid for 1.2 million shares at $11 a share was made through Merit Investments Ltd.

Myron Gottlieb, president of Merit, said the bid was a one-shot effort with the buyer willing to take whatever part of the shares that are offered.

"After tha, we are out of the market. The purchase is not a continuing program."

CPR to buy new diesels

WINNIPEG (CP) — CP Rail has announced it is buying 75 new diesel locomotives to help move the increased tonnages of prairie export grain and other traffic expected in the 1980s.

"This is the largest single order placed by CP Rail since it converted from steam engines to diesel locomotives in the late 1950s," W. W. Stinson, executive vice-president of CP Rail, said in a statement issued here.

"It reflects our commitment to the government of Canada to do our share in transporting export grain from prairie elevators to shipping terminals at the Lakehead and the west coast."

today's markets

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 10:56 a.m. PST was 2,566,512 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 136 advanced, 85 declined and 141 remained unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, dropping .10 at $6.90 on 9,900 shares. Proflex Limited remained steady at .13 on 8,000, Taro Industries was unchanged at $4.15 on 5,300 and Daon Development Corp. gained ¼ at $13¼ on 4,700. Canadian Javelin Ltd. was up .03 at .90 and TDI Venture remained unchanged at .28.

On the resource and development board, Scottie Gold Mines was up .40 at $4.50 on 330,000 shares and Carolin Mines Ltd. gained ¼ at $15¼ on 201,700. Windmill Enterprise dropped .03 at .92 on 87,500 and Thunderwood Exploration gained .06 at .53 on 63,166. Tournigan Mining Warrants gained .13 at .35 and Copper Lake Exploration was up ½ at .37½.

Warrior Resources led trading on the curbs exchange, gaining .25 at $2.85 on 45,700 shares. Santa Sarita Mining was down .05 at $2.85 on 28,850, Gillian Mines was up .03 at .93 on 26,200 and Regis Development Corp. gained .02 at .22 on 26,000. Westward Energy remained unchanged at $1.45 and Continental Minerals gained .05 at $1.00.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market rose extremely sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading was halted at the opening in shares of Scott-LaSalle Ltd. pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $1.20.

Trading in shares of Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. resumed at the opening and the stock lost 1 to $13 by 2 p.m.

At the company's request, the Ontario Securities Commission rescinded a cease-trading order which was imposed Friday, also at the company's request.

Canadian Occidental's parent, Occidental Petroleum Corp., said Friday its projected earnings for 1980 might be lowered because the Peruvian government is renegotiating its petroleum contracts with Occidental and the Lybian government has requested a revision in the terms of its agreement with the company.

Among industrials, Gulf Canada rose 6¾ to $123¼, Premier Trust 5 to $65, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 4 to $104, Texaco Canada 3 to $83 and Wainoco Oil 2 to $34.

Nowsco Well Service fell 1½ to $44½, J. D. Carrier Shoe 17 cents to 40 cents, Magnasonic Canada 30 cents to $2.00.

New York

The stock market moved ahead slightly in active trading today as Wall Street waited for developments from a meeting of oil-exporting countries in Caracas.

At the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting, which convened today, Shiek Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia said he did not expect any further price increases beyond those announced in the past week by various OPEC members.

Saudi Arabia and several other countries considered to be OPEC's "moderates" announced price hikes last week to $24 a barrel, in what was interpreted as a move to forestall some larger increases sought by the militant forces within the cartel.

London

The London stock market fell sharply near the close of moderate trading today.

The Financial Times index was down 6.6 to 424.4, reflecting nervousness over rising world oil prices.

Industrials and oils had the largest declines.

Canadian shares eased.

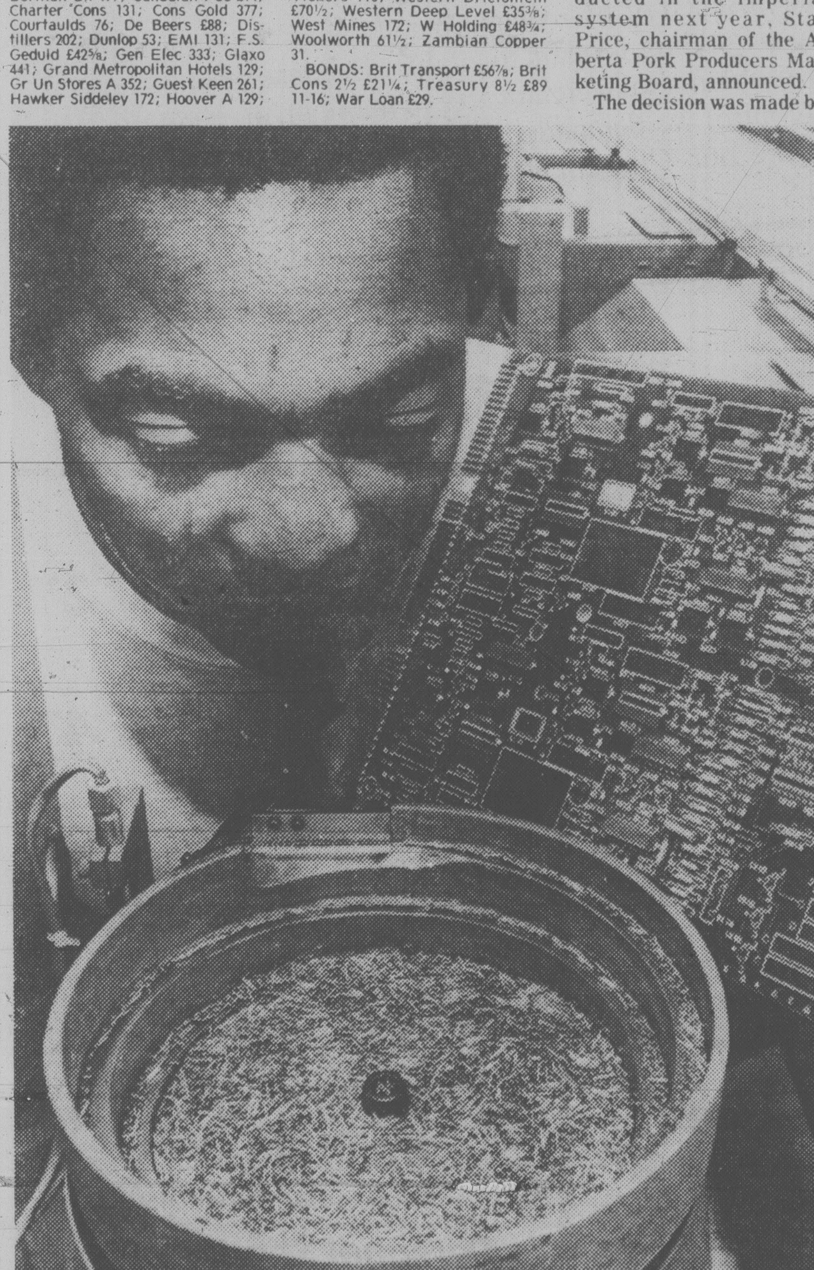
Hog marketers say no to metric

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian hog marketing business will continue to be conducted in the imperial system next year, Stan Price, chairman of the Alberta Pork Producers Marketing Board, announced.

The decision was made because of a lack of direction from government and the confusion concerning deadline postponements, he said.

Since metric requirements are not being enforced at the retail level, Price said, all meat transactions between packers and retailers will stay in the imperial system.



PIN INSERTER, a machine which uses vibration to orient thousands of connector plugs or 'pins', is tended by a technician. The pins are oriented so operators can quickly attach electronic components to circuit boards such as the one at the right.

Energy development mark of '80s

CALGARY (CP) — Leaving behind a frustrating and confused decade, Canada's petroleum industry is rushing enthusiastically into the massive energy developments of the 1980s.

In the gleaming new towers of steel and glass that rise almost daily in Calgary to proclaim the era of western wealth, executives are preparing to send vast legions of men and machines into action from the Arctic islands to the limit of Canada's Atlantic territorial waters.

In the older, more sedate buildings on Toronto's Bay Street, monuments to another generation of power, conservative bankers estimate the cost of 1980s energy projects at $330 billion. So great is the share of national wealth destined for energy that few believe the industry will have any financing problems.

Old obstacles are toppling: The great intergovernmental tax war of the 1970s is over, technological problems of heavy oil and oil sands are being solved, the long-barren Arctic and eastern offshore areas have finally yielded promising oil and natural gas finds and lucrative new gas exports are again in prospect after being barred since 1971.

The legacy of the 1970s, however, will still cause problems. Oil supplies will be tight this winter and costly oil imports will increase before they decline.

It is a far cry from the early part of the decade, when Alberta oil went for $3 a barrel and the problem was lack of markets — eastern consumers preferred cheaper offshore oil.

Bemoaning U.S. reluctance to accept Canadian oil, industry and government spokesmen alike said Canada had oil enough for 600 years of production and gas for 300 years.

None of the optimists considered how much of that oil had been found, how much could be extracted with existing technology or what prices would be needed to cover the cost of extraction.

Arab oil states graciously began the process of providing the required prices, but visions of Canadian wealth rudely disappeared as predicted increases in recoverable reserves failed to materialize.

With the worst of all timing, federal and provincial governments began an oil revenue war in 1974. Their goal: larger shares of oil money. Their weapon: piling taxes on the oil industry and telling the other level of government to lower its taxes or see the industry die.

Predictably, exploration and development collapsed. Oil drilling rigs fled south.

As 1979 drew to a close, all concerned appeared to have learned painful lessons. Though Ottawa and Alberta remained in disagreement on pricing and taxation measures, there was growing consensus on the broad thrust of pricing and development policies.

Oil that just eight years earlier was $3 a barrel had become $13.75 and would likely be at least double that by the end of 1982. In the new metric terms that accompanied the oil industry's attempt to develop realistic and precise estimates of its reserves, the Canadian domestic price was $86.53 a cubic metre.

The cheapest world price, Saudi Arabia's $18 U.S. a barrel, was $132 Canadian a cubic metre, and some spot sales cost twice that.

Canada's oil production of 1.7 million barrels a day had to be supplemented with average net daily imports of 270,000 barrels.

Federal officials began the year warning that without strong conservation efforts, import needs would triple to 800,000 barrels a day in 1990, but improved supply-demand forecasts caused them to reduce that estimate to 500,000 barrels.

The immediate outlook remained grim enough to persuade the National Energy Board, which had expected to be able to supply U.S. Midwest refineries with 55,000 barrels a day of light oil until 1982, to cut shipments to 14,000 barrels daily for October.

Even that amount — 12 minutes of Alberta production — could not be spared in November, when exports were eliminated altogether except for hard-to-refine heavy oil and "oil swaps" that would be repaid by U.S. deliveries in the East.

Spurred by tight supplies and soaring prices, the industry made significant progress in all key areas:

Oil sands: The $2.2-billion Syncrude mining plant achieved 100,000 barrels daily production, although that faltered as winter descended; the older plant of Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd., now Suncor Inc., received approval for an expansion to 62,000 barrels daily from 45,000; also approved was another mining plant, the $5.6 billion Alsands project that would produce 140,000 barrels daily in the mid-'80s, and a $6-billion project by Esso Resources Canada Ltd. to use steam injection to extract 140,000 barrels a day of deep oil, beginning in 1986.

Heavy oil: Estimates of 40 billion barrels around the Alberta-Saskatchewan border city of Lloydminster, with only 15 per cent recoverable by conventional means, hastened plans for two heavy-oil plants costing $5 billion each.

Alberta conventional fields: Intense re-examination of geological data helped locate new fields, some at expensive depths, while complex techniques were introduced to squeeze more oil out of almost-depleted reservoirs. An innovative Esso proposal to inject carbon dioxide at Judy Creek to gain an extra 210 million barrels over two decades would cost $2 billion in capital and operating expenses.

Mackenzie Delta: Another Esso project, involving a $270-million pipeline south from Norman Wells, N.W.T., would bring a modest 25,000 barrels a day, but it would be the first northern oil received in the south after decades of exploration.

Beaufort Sea: Dome Petroleum Ltd.'s leadership in Arctic waters, amply aided by special tax concessions, paid off with discovery of Kopanoar M-13 in 1979, an oil well that could be on top of a seven-billion-barrel field according to expert speculation. If half could be recovered, that alone would be a 50-per-cent increase in Canada's proved reserves of recoverable oil. Dome officials predicted 1985 oil deliveries from the Beaufort.

Eastern Offshore: In August, Chevron Standard Ltd. announced oil signs in its Hibernia O-15 well 200 miles east of the island of Newfoundland. And geologists speculated about 10 billion barrels lying off the Labrador coast. But economics were still unproved and deliveries before 1990 appeared questionale.

Progress was even more pronounced in natural gas, where some industry spokesmen contended surpluses had already been established that would justify export to the United States of a staggering seven trillion cubic feet — enough to earn $24.15 billion U.S. (more than $28 billion Canadian) at the current export price of $3.45 U.S. a thousand eubic feet.

In early December, the government approved exports of an additional 3.75 trillion cubic feet to the U.S. over the next eight years, a 40-per-cent increase over previous levels.

One trillion cubic feet could heat all of Canada's 2.7 million gas-heated homes for seven years.

Eastern offshore and Arctic gas discoveries matched oil finds in those areas, but plans for the Arctic were more advanced.

Two major applications to bring Arctic gas south got under way: the $1.5 billion Arctic Pilot Project plan to move 250 million cubic feet of liquefied gas in tankers daily from Melville Island; and the $7.1-billion Polar Gas plan for a Y-shaped pipeline tapping both the Arctic Islands and Mackenzie Delta.

Labrador Mining 'mystery buyer'

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of Labrador Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd. says his company has no plans to buy more shares of Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. of Toronto following the purchase of two million shares of Norcen last week.

Percy C. Finlay, who revealed that Labrador Mining was the mystery buyer of almost nine per cent of Norcen's stock on the Toronto stock market, also said his company does not intend to make changes in Norcen's operations.

Finlay said Labrador Mining bought the shares because "we think it's a good investment."

Labrador spent $64.2 million, or $32.10 a share, to buy the Norcen shares.

Labrador Mining, an iron ore producer, is 68-per-cent owned by Hollinger Argus Co., which is headed by financier Conrad Black of Toronto.

Norcen Energy Resources produces oil and natural gas and also distributes gas, primarily in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

$8M expansion plan set for 3M

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — 3M Canada Inc. has announced it is investing more than $8 million this year and next for an addition to its head office in London, construction of centres in Calgary and Montreal and a production plant in Perth, Ont.

The company said in a news release an expansion at the London headquarters has been completed and upgrading of existing facilities will be finished by next March. The London project is costing $2.2 million.

Construction of a $1.7-million sales and service centre in Montreal has started near Dorval Airport, with occupancy expected in March, the company said.

A similar centre in Calgary was expected to begin this month with completion planned for next May.

The company announced plans for a $4-million plant in Perth, Ont., 97 kilometres southwest of Ottawa, to produce "Scotch-Brite" scouring and cleaning materials. Construction is to start in April on a 78-acre site.

The plant will have 20 employees.

3M is a diversified company manufacturing products for industry, business, the professions and the consumer.

School breakin solved

A 25-year-old man caught inside Reynolds Senior Secondary School Sunday night was to be charged today with breaking and entering with intent to steal.

Saanich police said it was the latest of a number of school break-ins, including the former Mt. View High at 3814 Carey, now occupied by Camosun College.

Two boys aged 13 and 15 will appear in juvenile court charged with two counts of breaking, entering and theft at the Carey campus, and in connection with a burglary at a house on Whiteside and theft of a vehicle from a nearby service station.

Police are seeking help from the public in the daylight burglary of a house at 2801 Seaview between noon Tuesday and 1:30 p.m. Wednesday of last week.

About $20,000 worth of furniture, antiques and furnishings was stolen during the absence of owner Rosalind Simpson, apparently by two men aged 20-25 who were seen by a witness Wednesday.

They were driving an older model off-white or grey pickup truck, and judging from the quantity of goods missing probably made several trips to the house, police said.

Several rooms were stripped.

Clean up 'tricks', Bennett urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit party will have to act if Premier Bill Bennett does not clean up the dirty tricks and campaign expenses affair, a former party president says.

Les Keen, an unsuccessful candidate in the May provincial election, said in an interview he and many other party members are concerned about the recent affairs.

The statement preceded Bennett's announcement in Victoria of the resignation of Dan Campbell as director of intergovernmental affairs, the latest addition to the Socred casualty list.

Keen said political life is cruel and "those who make these mistakes are going to have to pay the price."

He said it was Bennett, not the party, who appointed a committee to run the event which started the dirty tricks controversy and who appointed the committee that handled campaign expenses.

It would be improper to identify those who made mistakes, Keen added, because of continuing inquiries by RCMP and the attorney-general's ministry into the affair.

He called for greater accountability of party fund-raising and election spending.

In reviewing the controversy, Keen said it was wrong to have civil servants — members of the Social Credit caucus research staff — interfering in party affairs and wrong to have an executive assistant to a cabinet minister organizing a 1978 seminar for constituency presidents.

It was at this seminar that caucus researcher Jack Kelly told the presidents: "We do play dirty and we don't really worry about that too much." Kelly also mentioned writing letters to newspapers under aliases.

Kelly and the executive assistant later resigned when the affair became public knowledge. Four other members of the research staff were fired on the grounds there was going to be a reorganization.

Ian Adams of Vancouver, the party's fiscal agent, said recently that two trust accounts, one controlled by him and one by Austin Taylor Jr., are used for funds raised by him and Taylor for the party, with the accounts feeding into a central fund.

Keen said he was not aware of the $65,000 spent by Campbell during the election, but not reported in the party's original spending figure because it did not go through the central fund.

Campbell, a cabinet minister under former premier W.A.C. Bennett, took a leave of absence from his job as Bill Bennett's director of intergovernmental affairs to run the 1979 campaign.

It was recently announced that Campbell would be placed in a new ministry run by Garde Gardom and be transferred to a B.C. House to be established in Ottawa.

Bennett announced Friday that Campbell had resigned following disclosure that Campbell had given a $1,000 bill to a caucus researcher to pay a hotel bill and not asked for a receipt.

The premier then asked Les Peterson, former Socred attorney-general and campaign chairman, to inquire into the handling of campaign expenses.

Globe replica given green light

A Victoria Shakespearean festival society will be given permission to build a model of an Elizabethan theatre on the Maltwood property, Saanich council decided after a special 4½-hour public meeting Saturday.

Council approved in principle a proposal by the Lord Chamberlain Players Society to build an exact replica of Shakespeare's Globe Theatre on the Thames.

The society will build the theatre on three acres in the northeast corner of the 7.7-acre property.

Saanich recently purchased the estate from the University of Victoria and the public hearing was to discuss 10 proposals for its use by Greater Victoria residents.

Council turned down two suggestions for neighborhood pubs in The Thatch and decided to invite more restaurant proposals for the heritage building to add to three submitted Saturday.

The Thatch was built as a restaurant in the 1930's and then became the home of art collectors John and Katherine Maltwood. The property and art collection was bequeathed to UVic.

Society president Konrad Boyce will prepare the working drawings, arrange financing and design a parking lot.

The open-air theatre will contain 800 to 1,000 seats. The stage and seats will be covered by a thatched roof.

Council expects the non-profit society to have its planning completed in seven months.

The $600,000 needed to build the 16-sided theatre will be raised through donations and government grants, Boyce said.

The world's first operating reproduction of the original Globe, built in 1599 and later destroyed by fire, should be ready by April, 1981, he said.

The Shakespearean touring company will travel around the province after the April-October season ends and the theatre will then be used by local groups.

Council also approved the idea of a medieval village proposal by Fred Kirkman, 521 Normandy.

Watches grabbed

Sidney RCMP report a smash and grab at Rust's Jewellers, 2443 Beacon, at 2:45 a.m. Sunday.

A passerby said he saw a youth run up to the window, smash the glass, take something and run off to the sound of an automatic alarm bell.

Three watches worth about $200 were stolen.

Bankrupt families?

Service wives are up in arms over rent hikes at Belmont Park

Rents for these married quarters are eating up pay increases, wives say

By PAT DUFOUR

Recent rent increases for married quarters at Belmont Park in Colwood are threatening to sink some financially-strapped families, an angry group of servicemen's wives says.

The wives say the increases, from $20 to $50 monthly, don't seem out of line with their civilian counterparts but point out pay increases in the armed forces have averaged only six per cent annually compared with eight per cent for most Canadians.

Basic pay for a private is $601 a month, $1,300 for a corporal, $1,500 for a sergeant, $1,681 for a warrant officer and $1,805 for a captain.

Rents at Belmont Park range from $150 to $400 monthly.

The women didn't want their names published because they fear retaliation from the military. They are particularly worried about smearing their husbands' service record and thus their promotion chances.

"We have no Landlord-Tenant Act we can turn to," said one.

"Our landlords are our husbands' bosses," said another.

Captain Colin Shaw, base commander of CFB Esquimalt, told the Times fears of punishment are nonsense.

He said the rents are not out of line and might even be low.

He also said Defence Minister Allan McKinnon has promised to review the increases.

But the wives say several families may have filed for personal bankruptcy by the time the review is finished.

The wives detailed their complaints after one of them called the Times.

She said her husband, a servicemen for 22 years, had just received his paycheque with the new raise but when the rent increase was taken into account the net gain was $5 a month.

"I never cried so hard in my life," she said. "I don't want to go out to work and leave my children. That's dangerous but I may have to."

She and seven of her neighbors gathered in her kitchen the next day to tell their story.

The Times agreed to identification by number to overcome their fears of harsh reactions from their husbands' superiors.

Many perks have been eroded

Wife No. 6 said the public is unaware a lot of things that helped bridge the gap between a serviceman's pay and other Canadians have been eroded since armed forces unification 10 years ago.

The list includes the former well-baby clinic, filling of prescriptions, provision of school supplies and their own schools.

Before unification, work clothes and uniforms were provided. This is no longer so, she said.

She said her brother had left the navy early and, at 23, earns $9.58 an hour grading wood in a local sawmill. It's more than her warrant officer husband earns after 15 years in the service.

She said she knows of seven Belmont Park families who are about to declare personal bankruptcy.

"The only way you can make it is to sew, crochet, make over furniture, do anything you can to make things last," Wife No. 5 said.

Getting a job is not easy, said Wife No. 2.

"If you're lucky maybe you can get part-time work. When they find out you are a service wife they ask how long you are going to be here."

She said her husband, after 22 years of service, will receive a $59-per-month increase in take-home pay spread over the next 18 months.

The rent hikes are based on surveys of civilian housing in the areas where married quarters are located but Wife No. 8 says because of defence budget restrictions, this is not a fair comparison. For example, only the ceilings of married quarters are insulated which means higher fuel bills, she said.

She referred to a letter from the base commander warning that financial restraints on the total operation of the Canadian armed forces means maintenance and repairs of married quarters will have to be reduced.

"I can assure you that I am not happy with this situation but it is a matter which is completely beyond my control, and thus I seek your support in assisting this base through this trying and difficult period," the commander told the families.

The wives also complained of cold houses and badly-fitting windows.

Wife No. 4 said she had 2½ feet of water in the crawl space of her home.

Regulations, too, are an irritant.

Wife No. 3 said anyone wanting to build a fence has to get official permission.

Wife No. 1 said children are forbidden to build go-carts because "they're an eyesore to the neighborhood."

Lawns must be cut once a week in the growing season.

"Otherwise they come along and do it and charge you," said Wife No. 6.

Wife No. 7 said unlicenced vehicles are not permitted in the park. Licences fell due when husbands were away on a recent trip and even wives who didn't drive had to arrange to get the licences or run the risk of having their cars towed away.

The wives also complained about the inside walls of the houses all being painted in basic colors.

Wife No. 4 said her husband had put up panelling in the living room. Under base regulations the panelling will have to be taken down when they leave. She said only thumb tacks are supposed to be used on the walls. Holes have to be repaired before they leave.

Asked why they live in married quarters, Wife No. 2 replied: "We have no choice when there's a one per cent vacancy rate in the area."

Commander is ready to listen

Replying point by point to the wive's grievances, base commander Shaw said he is always prepared to listen to legitimate complaints.

He said "most certainly" no action is taken against the husbands of wives who complain.

Shaw said the Central Mortgage and Housing Corportion had set the rental rates for married quarters to be on a parity with the private sector.

"It strikes me that in the current climate for accommodation in this area, these rents are in no way out of line and, in fact, I would suggest are on the low side," he said.

"Most certainly the annual heating charge is extremely favorable in this era of 70 plus cents a gallon for heating oil on the commercial market. This heating charge, approved by Treasury Board, takes into account a 15-per-cent reduction for the lack of insulation in the basements and crawl spaces of our married quarters and an additional 10-per-cent reduction as an incentive for our permanent married quarters occupants to conserve energy.

"The latter figure is open to review, so if our people fail to be conservers they can expect an increase in fuel costs next year."

Shaw listed some average rents to show they compare favorably with off-base accommodation.

A two-bedroom Belmont Park home of 655 square feet, for instance, rents at $240 per month with an annual cost of $132 for heating.

A three-bedroom side-by-side duplex of 880 square feet could be rented for $275 monthly and have an annual $177 heating charge while a four-bedroom house of 1,134 square feet could cost $300 monthly and have an annual heating charge of $228.

Regarding servicemen's pay and the withdrawal of some free services, Shaw said the policy since the early 1970s has been to have a serviceman's pay on a par with his civilian counterpart.

This responsibility falls under the defence department's review board in Ottawa and the Treasury Board.

On the complaints about the cost of uniforms, he said instead of having uniforms supplied servicemen now are given a $7.75 monthly clothing upkeep allowance and servicewomen receive $9.65 a month in addition to their pay.

High wages in B.C. cited

About the sawmill worker who received more pay than a warrant officer of 15 years standing, Shaw said this is a reflection of the typically high wages paid in B.C.

And he said the base's financial counsellor has not been informed of any pending bankruptcies in Belmont Park.

He said there are "multitudes of avenues" open to service families in financial trouble. These are in the defence department itself and through provincial government departments.

Regarding the complaints of cold houses, drafty windows and watery crawl spaces, Shaw wondered if they had been officially reported.

He said Belmont, with 690 married quarters, is like a small village that has to have regulations similar to municipal bylaws that govern such things as weed control.

"We have to protect those who care. We have never been that strict. Municipalities do the same."

Shaw said allowances are made when car licences fall due and husbands are away.

He said the wives' criticism on this count is nonsense.

"Dispensation was given. But old derelicts are not allowed and are removed if owners are not co-operative."

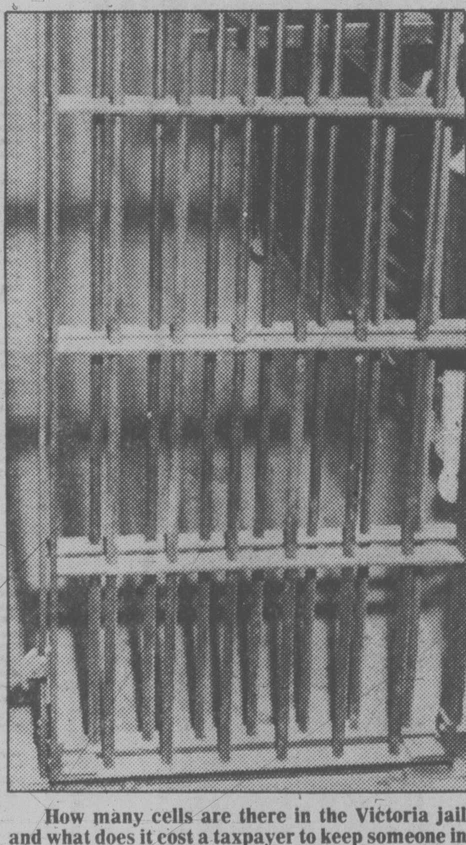
Three official styles of fences are accepted and will be approved on request, he said.

"Otherwise God knows what would go up."

On the complaint of over-all interior colors, Shaw said: "We have to have standard colors for mass living, color schemes to appeal to most people. Often the same is true in commercial apartments unless a long-term lease is signed or an agreement to repaint after departure if wild colors are used."

Shaw said panelling must be removed because new occupants may object to it. He said there is no rule that only thumb tacks can be used on walls. Normal picture hangers are in order.

In case you're wondering



How many cells are there in the Victoria jail and what does it cost a taxpayer to keep someone in one?

We hope you're not asking because a stay there is imminent. The fact is, there's lots of room with 29 cells for men and six for women.

The four core municipalities, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, subsidize the city jail and send most people there to await appearance in court on various charges.

The jail is actually classified as a lockup for overnight stay only.

Once a person has been dealt with by the court, he is sent to the Wilkinson Road jail, which has the facilities to hold prisoners for extended periods of time, to await trial if he hasn't been granted bail.

Saanich also has six cells. Central Saanich and Sidney each have two cells and the RCMP office in Colwood has two.

It's expensive to keep a person in a lockup. The tab works out to something like $20 a day for services such as food and bedding. That doesn't include the cost of guarding an inmate, which can run to $50 a day.

Meals are usually provided by a restaurant which has been awarded the catering contract.

Same voters' list Feb. 18 means $17 million saving

Chief returning officers for local constituencies will swing into action Jan. 2 in preparation for the Feb. 18 federal election.

They will be Eleanor Allan for Victoria, Malcolm Anderson in Esquimalt-Saanich and Beryl Fink in Cowichan-Malahat, which includes the western communities. They are the same officers who ran the May 22 election.

Each constituency office will have a budget of about $60,000, much of which will go to school boards and churches for rental of premises on voting day.

And each constituency will appoint 300 deputy returning officers and 300 polling clerks on a paid basis for the one day.

"Very little will change from the May election," Anderson said today. "Things have been simplified by the decision to go without a new enumeration."

He said cards will be mailed out early in the new year to all residences in each riding, notifying voters they are on the list and telling them where to vote.

"In Esquimalt-Saanich residents will vote the same place as last time. Nothing has changed."

People who have moved to Victoria since the last enumeration, that is, during the past eight months, likely will not be on the list.

Anyone who has moved to a new location within the riding will be on the list but will be voting at a new polling station.

They can have these problems sorted out by contacting the returning office.

Anderson said the decision to use the previous voting list will save Canadian taxpayers $17 million.

Anderson said that unlike provincial elections where the party in power makes a new appointment of returning officers for each election, federal returning officers have a lifetime job.

If one retires, however, the party in power names a replacement.

An earlier Times story wrongly stated federal returning officers are newly-appointed for each election.

On the political front, Donald Munro, the Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, will run for re-election at his party's nominating convention Dec. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Garth Homer Achievement Centre, 813 Darwin.

In Cowhichan-Malahat, Jim Manley, a United Church minister in Ladysmith, said he will seek nomination again for the NDP. He ran a close second in May to Tory Don Taylor.

Ryan leaving labor council after 13 years

RYAN

Veteran Victoria Labor Council executive Larry Ryan is stepping down after 13 years to work as a union organizer with the U.S.-based Service Employees International Union (SEIU).

"I'm going to be quite busy on the organizing front," Ryan said today. "It's an area that's really in need of attention, the area involving service workers."

The former postal worker is moving to one of the biggest unions in the U.S., the equivalent of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents municipal workers and others in the service field.

Ryan will remain as a delegate to the council as SEIU representative on southern Vancouver Island with his office in Victoria. But he hasn't made up his mind whether he'll run for one of the other positions on the executive. The council's annual election is Jan. 23.

Ryan, 60, also left Victoria city council this fall after serving for three years.

Ryan said jurisdictional agreements prevent the SEIU from going after workers in the municipal field so his new union will not compete with CUPE for members.

Membership in the SEIU is about 670,000 with 57,000 of that in Canada, mostly in Ontario and Quebec. There are 2,500 members in B.C., most of them in the Vancouver area, with another 200 Victoria members who work in hospitals, janitorial and waste disposal companies.

Blaze at bank deliberately set

Fire deliberately set at the rear of the Royal Bank's former main branch at 1108 Government caused extensive damage Saturday night, the third arson-type fire in Greater Victoria in a week.

Firemen see no connection between the bank fire and two fires at loading docks at the rear of Hillside shopping centre.

Deputy fire chief Fred Severson said the bank blaze started in a steel garbage receptacle under a carport with overhead styrofoam insulation. The plastic material caught fire and flames seared the outer building wall, breaking windows on two upper floors and filling the bank with oily smoke.

Damage was estimated at about $100,000, including furniture, drapes and two $18,000 business machines.

Manager John Macintyre said no banking records were lost, the safe deposit boxes are intact and the computer banking system will be operating normally when the bank re-opens Tuesday.

A cleanup crew today removed charred wood and smoke stains from the three-storey building which had just been redecorated. Monday is the bank's regular closing day.

Severson said an alarm was turned in at 7:52 p.m. A cleaning woman at work in basement offices on the opposite side of the building from the blaze smelled smoke and started toward the source. She had to duck under a layer of fumes to reach the upper floor where fire was already glowing in an office area. Police were at the front door when she appeared.

"We feel it's incendiarism," Severson said.

"There's no doubt in our mind it started in one of those garbage receptacles."

A $25,000 fire early Saturday at the rear of Zeller's store in the Hillside Mall has been attributed to industrial waste placed in an empty tractor-trailer.

"Definitely arson," the deputy said.

The material was taken from a nearby receptacle, put in the trailer and lighted in a deliberate way.

The previous Sunday fire in a Simpsons-Sears truck backed up to the rear of the store caused $5,000 damage. A small car was seen leaving the scene quickly before firemen arrived.

Q. Did lynching ever occur in B.C.? F.H.

A. There is only one recorded incident — in 1884, but it was not carried out by Canadians. It involved an Indian who killed a white man in Washington apparently in self-defence. He fled into B.C. but was captured and kept in custody in a house in Sumas Prairie. A mob of about 80 armed Americans took the man by force. The next morning he was found hanging from a tree.

Druids take note: It's a great year for holly

The druids thought it warded off evil spirits, but modern man likes a few sprigs of holly around the house this time of year because of its Christmas colors.

And most of it comes from a narrow strip along the east coast of Vancouver Island, stretching from Victoria past Nanaimo, where the mild winters encourage the spiky-leaved trees with their small red berries to grow.

Much of the land around Victoria once planted in holly has been subdivided and blacktopped, but Canadians will still be able to deck their halls this Christmas because of a good crop.

Mrs. Suzanne Stewart of North Cowichan, who helps her husband harvest crops from 2,000 holly trees on Amblecote farm — the largest on the Island — said today it's been a very good year.

Friday the last of several thousand boxes were shipped from the farm, which has been growing and selling Christmas holly since 1895.

Artificial decorations don't seem to have cut into their business. "I think the more plastic holly people see, the more they want the real thing," said Mrs. Stewart.

The Island produces about 90 per cent of Canada's holly crop. The rest comes from the Lower Mainland.

The holly industry in Victoria has gone through considerable change in the last five years. Many of the growing enthusiasts of the early 1970s, several of them from Britain where holly plays a big role at Christmas, have died or retired.

Longtime grower Ron Nutter, whose Hollyoaks farm at 1565 Mount Douglas Cross Road in Saanich was the largest in this area, served as a spokesman for growers but died two years ago. His operation continues under the name Victoria Holly.

Meanwhile, the growth of Saanich has meant encroachment of residential subdivisions on land which once produced holly. R.D. Pemberton's Queen Alexandra farm in Gordon Head — once had 6,500 holly trees.

Many growers, especially those nearing retirement, found there was no comparison between the money they could make from holly production and the income they could get by selling off chunks of land to developers.

A further blow came when the Vancouver Island Holly Growers' Co-operative, which had existed for years among the growers, collapsed due to dissension among the members, ending a marketing system which by the mid-1970s was shipping 160,000 pounds across Canada, with some going to the U.S. and even Britain.

It is difficult to tell how much holly is produced. Growers are reluctant to say how much they have harvested this year and what prices they are getting.

"We just leave each other alone now," says Mrs. Leslie Foxall of Koksilah, near Duncan.

She says the co-operative failed because some of the larger producers decided they could get better prices on their own and some undercut the established price by giving discounts to bulk purchasers.

Some larger producers decided they could do better by subdividing their property into housing lots.

The growers, located in the Victoria, Duncan, Sooke and Parksville areas, now sell their crop to wholesalers who distribute them to florists across Canada. Much of the production goes eventually to church groups in Ontario and Quebec who use it for money-raising campaigns.

Climate accounts for the concentration of holly on the Island. After the first frost, which turns the berries red, the ideal temperature for holly is just a few degrees above freezing.

If the mercury drops below the freezing point for many days, the leaves blacken.

After the holly is clipped in 30- to 46-centimetre lengths, it is taken indoors to prevent frost damage and dipped in a hormone solution to prevent berries and leaves from falling.

Holly bushes bear berries only every two years.

Mrs. Foxall, who has 300 trees, says her production this year has been "fantastic," with huge berries. "We've sold the limit."

Grower John MacArthur has 500 trees on five acres in Brentwood.

He, too, says the crop has been good this year and there has been an exceptional demand.

TUXEDO NIGHT in Winnipeg Saturday brought out the best in everyone including the zamboni driver. About 1,000 fans at the National Hockey League game between Winnipeg Jets and Montreal Canadiens showed up in tuxedos. The class rubbed off on the Jets, who whipped the Canadiens 6-2.

Penguins, Bruins block Flyer way

By The Canadian Press

Pittsburgh Penguins are the lone obstacle impeding Philadelphia Flyers' march to a share of the National Hockey League record for consecutive games without a loss.

And the way the Flyers have been storming the league this season, Boston Bruins had better be prepared because they're next in line after the Penguins if the Flyers get a chance at a new mark.

Said Flyers' coach Pat Quinn in looking to the game in Philadelphia against the Penguins: "We'd be classified as idiots if we said we're not playing Thursday to tie the streak."

The Flyers won their season opener Oct. 11 and lost their second game, 9-2 back on Oct. 13 to the Flames in Atlanta. That score was a bit embarrassing and the Flyers got mad — and haven't lost in 27 games since.

Sunday night, the Flyers came out of Madison Square Garden in New York with a 1-1 tie against the Rangers. The Flyers had won 3-2 at home the night before over Buffalo Sabres — with the second-best record in the NHL and entering the game with nine straight victories, the one team that might have killed Philadelphia's hopes of prolonging the string.

The record for most consecutive games without a loss is 28, set during the 1977-78 season by Montreal Canadiens, the current edition of which might very well wish time had stood still two years back.

Their coach quit last Wednesday, the Canadiens lost in Edmonton on Friday and lost again Saturday, 6-2, in Winnipeg to the Jets. With four setbacks in a row, the defending Stanley Cup champions now find themselves doing something unfamiliar — looking over their shoulders in the Norris Division.

In other Sunday games, Chicago Black Hawks dropped Detroit Red Wings 7-3, Winnipeg capped a productive weekend with a 4-3 win in Edmonton over the Oilers, Boston went into Buffalo and won 5-1 over the Sabres and Quebec Nordiques beat Pittsburgh 4-1.

Despite the low score, the Flyers and Rangers played aggressively, with outstanding goaltending of Philadelphia's Phil Myre and New York's Steve Baker highlighting the game.

"Bill Barber's first-period short-handed goal was the only shot to elude Baker, who stopped 37 shots.

Steve Vickers scored for the Rangers during a power play in the first period.

Barber praised Myre. "That's why we're winning, " he said.

If Philadelphia gets past Pittsburgh, a consecutive-game undefeated record could be set Saturday in an afternoon game at Boston.

Our Selects beaten again

MOSCOW (AP) — Canada suffered its second beating in the Izvestia hockey tournament today, dropping a 7-2 decision to Sweden.

The Canadians, who lost their opening match 10-1 to Czechoslovakia on Sunday, managed to keep today's game scoreless through the first 20 minutes but the Swedes opened it up with five goals in the second period.

Steve Tambellini, in the final moments of the second period, and Kevin Primeau, with the last goal of the game, were the Canadian marksmen.

The Czech national team opened the scoring just 45 seconds into Saturday's game and led 5-1 by the end of the first period.

Canada held the Czechs to just one goal in the second period but gave up four in the third.

The Canadians, a mix of professional and amateur players, arrived Saturday following two losses to Finland's National B team last week. They face Russia on Wednesday. Their final game comes against Finland on Friday.

Tom Watt, one of three Olympic team coaches said he did not change tactics in the second period, when Canada hemmed in the Czech attack much of the time. "We just kept trying to do the same thing all the time, but we had trouble executing it."

Canada's lone goal came from John Devaney of Edmonton, one of nine members of Canada's Olympic team playing alongside 13 NHL-owned players.

The Canadians forechecked their opponents heavily but left themselves open to three-on-two and two-on-one attacks that led frequently to over-the-shoulder shots being scored on the Canadian goalie.

In another Saturday game the Soviet Union defeated Sweden 5-1.

Jan Lindstroem of Sweden scored Sweden's goal at 12:33 in the first period.

In the second period, however, the Soviets took over with Helmut Balderis, Viktor Zhluktov, Boris Mikhailov, Alexander Maltsev and Alexander Golikov scoring.

Bears win big, ride in on wild Dallas victory

By The Associated Press

It's Chicago at Philadelphia and . . .

And we'll find out the rest tonight when Denver Broncos visit San Diego Chargers with a National Football League division title at stake.

The loser winds up with the wild card and a trip to Houston. The winner gets the American Conference West title.

Chicago Bears can thank their lucky stars — or, rather, the blue stars on the silver helmets of the Dallas Cowboys — that they're in the playoffs at all.

Thanks to the NFL's tie-breaking system to determine playoff teams, the Bears not only had to beat St. Louis but had to win big, and needed some help from Dallas. They got it all.

First, they routed the Cardinals 42-6 to wipe out Washington's points scored-points allowed edge — a 33-point differential. Then, they watched the Cowboys beat the Redskins 35-34 in one of the most thrilling NFL games of recent years. Had Chicago scored one less touchdown against the Cards — in fact, one less touchdown the whole season — Washington would have gotten the second wild card and faced the Eagles next Sunday.

Dallas' Roger Staubach threw three touchdown passes, two of them — 26 yards to Ron Springs and eight yards to Tony Hill — in the closing minutes to wipe out Washington's 34-21 lead and propel the Cowboys to the championship of the National Conference's East Division. Staubach's floater to Hill and Rafael Septien's tie-breaking extra point came with 39 seconds to play.

Two other division champions were crowned Sunday. Pittsburgh Steelers, already guaranteed their eighth straight playoff appearance, locked up their sixth successive title in the AFC's Central Division by beating Buffalo 28-0. And in the NFC's Central Division, Tampa Bay's once-laughable Buccaneers shook off a choke collar, halted a three-game skid and, in a near-monsoon, beat Kansas City 3-0 to nail down first place.

Philadelphia, already assured a playoff berth, defeated Houston 26-20. The Oilers are at home for the AFC wild-card game next Sunday at 4 p.m. EST. The Chicago-at-Philadelphia NFC wild-card affair is scheduled to kick off at 12:30 p.m. EST.

The Rams, NFC West champions, bid farewell to Los Angeles (they move to Anaheim next season) by losing 29-14 to New Orleans.

Oakland and Cleveland, two other teams that nurtured slender AFC wild-card hopes, saw them dashed, with the Raiders losing to Seattle 29-24 and the Browns falling to Cincinnati 16-12.

Elsewhere, Atlanta beat San Francisco 31-21 with O.J. Simpson playing his final NFL game for the 49ers, New England defeated Minnesota 27-23 and Baltimore blasted the New York Giants 31-7. On Saturday, New York Jets beat the AFC East champion Miami Dolphins 27-23 and Green Bay Packers defeated Detroit 18-13.

The usually placid Staubach had seen just about everything in his 11 years in the NFL — but nothing could match the Cowboys' game against Washington.

"We were out of it . . . then we were in it . . . then we were out of it . . . then we were in it. I've never played in a game like that before," said Staubach, who passed for 336 yards against the dazed Redskins. "I can't remember when I've ever gotten so excited in a football game. This beats them all."

Bears 42 Cardinals 6

"We had to go out and win by more than 33 and we did it," said Chicago coach Neill Armstrong. "I never gave up because . . . I thought something good was going to happen."

Just about the only thing the Cardinals were playing for was rookie Ottis Anderson's chance for the NFL rushing title — but the Bears held him to 39 yards before he left in the third period.

Anderson finished with 1,605 yards while Walter Payton gained 137 yards and scored three TDs for the Bears to finish with 1,610. But neither of them won the rushing title.

Seahawks 29 Raiders 24

Jim Zorn threw two touchdown passes, one of them covering 65 yards to Sam McCullum, as Seattle dashed Oakland's playoff hopes. McCullum caught eight passes for 173 yards. Dan Doornink caught the other scoring strike, a 17-yarder that broke a 17-17 halftime tie.

Eagles 26 Oilers 20

Earl Campbell did — for the second successive year — with 1,697 yards following his 134-yard, one TD showing against the Eagles. Quarterback Ron Jaworski ran for Philadelphia's first TD and his backup, John Walton, passed for the winner.

Steelers 28 Bills 0

Pittsburgh did what it does so well — smother the opposition — by permitting Buffalo just eight first downs, and three of them came on penalties. Meanwhile, Franco Harris ran for TDs of one and 11 yards and Lynn Swann made an acrobatic scoring catch of a 20-yard Terry Bradshaw pass.

"We have the confidence we can take it all, but we have to go into the playoffs like it's something new," said defensive tackle Joe Greene of the Steelers, shooting for a fourth Super Bowl title.

Bucs 3 Chiefs 0

For Tampa Bay, the playoffs are, indeed, something new. Four years ago, the Buccaneers were winless, lovably laughable. But when Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 19-yard field goal with 8:50 to play, they became the fastest-rising expansion team in NFL history.

"This makes it worth all those Johnny Carson jokes and the other stuff," said linebacker David Lewis. "We are champions."

Saints 29 Rams 14

Mike Strachan scored from the 10 and the one on short runs and Archie Manning passed eight yards to Tinker Owens as the Saints, finishing with their best record ever, 8-8, took advantage of six turnovers to beat Los Angeles.

Bengals 16 Browns 12

Cleveland's even slimmer hopes of a wild card went under when fullback Pete Johnson and rookie quarterback Jack Thompson each ran for a touchdown for Cincinnati.

Falcons 31 49ers 21

O.J. Simpson finished his magnificent career with 11,236 rushing yards — just 12 of them Sunday in two rushes for San Francisco — but went out on the losing side once again as Steve Bartkowski's seven-yard TD pass to Jim Mitchell and Robert Pennywell's 39-yard interception for another score gave the Falcons their victory.

Patriots 27 Vikings 23

The Patriots' Steve Grogan came up with a 40-yerd TD pass to Harold Jackson in a 20-point fourth quarter to turn back the Vikings.

Minnesota's extraordinary defensive end, Jim Marshall, ended his NFL career by playing his league-record 282nd regular-season game.

Colts 31 Giants 7

Don McCauley scored on a pair of one-yard runs as the Colts closed out the season by snapping a five-game losing streak.

OH, MY ACHING HEAD was story of Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw in Sunday's National Football League game against Buffalo Bills. Bradshaw holds his head after losing his helmet and suffering a brushburn. Bills' rookie linebacker Jim Haslett was ejected for kicking Bradshaw in head. Haslett denied it. Bradshaw doubted it. Steelers won 28-0.

New Saints' boss?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Times-Picayune says Steve Rosenbloom, former executive vice-president of Los Angeles Rams, will be named general manager of New Orleans Saints.

Quoting an unnamed source close to the National Football League team, the newspaper says Rosenbloom would be named to the job next week, probably Thursday.

Eddie Jones, the club' administrative vice-president, said a news conference would be called Thursday but he refused to confirm that Rosenbloom would join New Orleans.

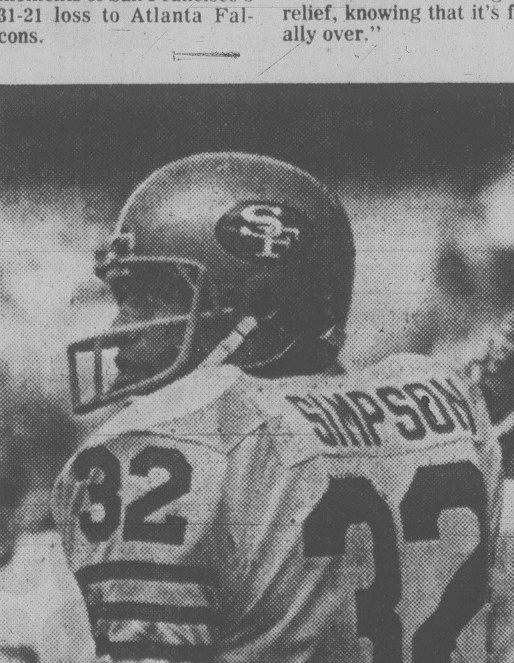
Jones is leaving the Saints to take another job in the business empire of the John Mecom family, owners of the Saints.

The 'juice' went 10 on his final carry

ATLANTA (AP) — With the crowd chanting "Juice, Juice, Juice," O. J. Simpson's 11-year National Football League career came to an end Sunday when the ball-carrying legend slithered for a 10-yard gain in the final moments of San Francisco's 31-21 loss to Atlanta Falcons.

"I was thinking about breaking it before some guy hit me real good," Simpson said of his final carry.

"I almost broke it, but I did get the first down and I was happy with that," he said. "When I got to the sidelines, it was almost with a sigh of relief, knowing that it's finally over."



LOOKING BACK, O.J. Simpson plays his last game

Simpson, the NFL's second leading rusher in history, carried only twice in the contest for 12 yards, closing out his career with 11,236 yards. Former Cleveland Browns' great Jim Brown holds the record of 12,312 yards.

Simpson made his first appearance by winning the pre-game coin toss. He then came in for one play in the opening period, gained only two yards and fumbled. But a team-mate recovered.

"I was beginning to worry about it (the fumble) and I really wanted to get in one more time," Simpson said. "I didn't want to go out remembering that as my last run. I would have never been able to forget it."

The Atlanta Stadium crowd of 37,211 began the chant of "Juice, Juice, Juice," midway in the third period but it wasn't until 1:31 remained that Simpson would make his final run.

Simpson, who played nine years for Buffalo Bills before being traded to San Francisco two years ago, however, had no regrets about this season or his career.

"Right now, looking back, the nine years with the Bills went rather quickly," he said. "The last two, like me, slowed down."

"I had hoped to play O. J. more," said '49ers coach Bill Walsh. "He made a 10-yard gain and that was the way I wanted him to come out. It was a good way to finish."

"I'm leaving happy and satisfied with my career," said Simpson, who admitted disappointment in not making it to a Super Bowl or having played with a winning organization.

"But I take pride in my accomplishments and what I did under the circumstances," he said.

Options denied By Russians

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (CP) — "When you're down a couple of goals, you're not left with many options."

That's how Clare Drake, head coach of Canada's Olympic hockey team, described the predicament his squad found itself in as it got blown out in the final period Sunday and ended up losing 5-1 to the free-wheeling squad from the Soviet Union in the opening game for both at the Olympic tournament.

"The style of a game is dictated to a great degree by the score," said Drake. "If you have a two- or three-goal lead, it's a distinct advantage. You can gamble a little more or play conservatively — you've got that option."

The Canadians were left with no recourse but to open things up in the final period after the Russians had scored in the dying seconds of the second period with a power-play goal and then popped two quick ones past goaltender Ron Paterson in the first 2:17 of the third.

It was a frustrating conclusion to what had been a close and very encouraging game for the Canadians, who held their own in the first period, which ended even 1-1, and dominated the second, outshooting the Russian squad [illegible]

However, both Drake and fellow-coach Lorne Davis felt a turning point in the contest — in addition to the late Russian goal in the second period — was Canada's inability to score during a two-man advantage early in the middle session, which lasted for 49 seconds. Defenceman Don Spring bounced a slapshot from the left point off the goalpost, but that's as close as the Canadians came during the power play.

Igor Orlov gave the Soviet Union a 1-0 lead but Paul MacLean got the goal back for Canada before the end of the period.

Nikolai Makarov's goal at 19:31, with Roger Lamoureux off for tripping, was the only goal of the second. The Russians broke it open when Victor Shalimov Valeri Evstifeev scores within a 57-second span at the start of the final period.

The youthful Canadian side was no match for the well-conditioned Russian squad during the final 20 minutes and the free-wheeling Europeans actually appeared to let up in the closing minutes of the game for fear of running up the score.

However, Russian head coach Anatili Kostrjukov was the true diplomat at a post-game news conference, refusing to criticize the Canadians and actually taking the oppostunity to chastise his own players for taking the penalties which created the Canadians' two-man advantage.

The victory ties the Russians for first place in the week-long tournament with the United Stats, a 4-2 winner earlier in the day over Sweden. Czechoslovakia, the fifth team in the invitational event, sees its first action tonight against Sweden, while Canada tangles with the U.S.

Three unanswered goals — by Eric Strobel, John Harrington and Mike Eruzione — in the final period carried the U.S. to its win over Sweden. Neal Broten scored the first U.S. goal while Ivan Hansen and Keif Karlsson accounted for the Swedish scoring.

Gutoski's foursome advances

By BILL WALKER

It will be three up-island rinks and one from Victoria in the Pacific Coast Curling Association men's seniors playdowns at Esquimalt Curling Club next month.

Former B.C. men's and mixed champion Glen Harper of Duncan and Howie Christopherson of Nanaimo qualified for the final two places from "B" event of the Island zone playoffs at Esquimalt Sunday.

Former Brier skip (1958) Tony Gutoski of Victoria Curling Club and Clarence McLean of Port Alberni earned "A" berths Saturday.

Harper needed a draw to his own stone in the front of the back eight-foot ring to edge Vern McDougall of Victoria Club 7-6 while Christopherson stole single points in the ninth and 10th ends to sneak by Gerry Walls of Victoria Club 8-7 Sunday.

Gutoski defeated Christopherson 9-4 in one "A" final Saturday while McLean handed Harper a 5-4 defeat in the other.

In Sunday's play, both finals went down to the final rock in two well-played games.

Harper had a 4-0 lead after two ends against McDougall, but the Victoria Club skip who had eliminated last year's PCCA finalist Dave Johnston 7-6 in an earlier game Sunday, fought back to tie the score 5-5 by the sixth end.

With his first rock in the 10th, McDougall drew partially behind cover to the front of the four foot ring leaving Harper second shot in the eight foot at the back of the house. Harper wrecked on his first try and McDougall immediately plugged the hole. But Harper was equal to the test and came around a stone in front of the house to his own rock for shot.

Christopherson, who saw Walls steal single points on the sixth and seventh ends to take a 7-4 lead, replied in kind.

After getting a deuce on the eighth, he stole a single point on the ninth to draw even. On the 10th he got a rock behind cover early and kept it guarded throughout forcing Walls to try a difficult draw shot through a narrow port to the four foot for the win.

Walls negotiated the port but was about two feet heavy.

The PCCA final will include two rinks each from Zones two and three and will take place at Esquimalt, Ja. 25-27 with the winner to meet the B.C. Curling Association champion in a best-of-three final, also at Esquimalt, Jan. 28-29.

BARRY PEDERSON
. . . five-goal weekend

Great Falls franchise folds; Pats hold off Cougar threat

Great Falls Americans faded out of the Western Hockey League picture today and the only benefit, albeit a minor one, will be an unexpected day of rest for the Victoria Cougars.

Winding up an arduous road trip, the Western Division-leading Cougars were to play in Great Falls on Tuesday. But with today's demise of the Montana entry, the Cougars get an extra day's rest.

Cougars, who managed a split of weekend games in Brandon and Regina, play their next game in Billings on Wednesday and then wind up their journey by meeting the Winter Hawks in Portland on Saturday.

Sparked by the four-goal, one-assist performance of centre Barry Pederson, the Cougars recorded the fourth of six travelling decisions by clipping the Wheat Kings 7-4 in Brandon on Saturday. Regina Pats tagged the Cougars with a third defeat Sunday, defeating Victoria 3-2 before 3,829 fans in Regina.

But the big news today was the folding of Great Falls' team.

Victoria co-owner and general manager Paul Panchyshyn, contacted in Regina Sunday, said the franchise will be maintained by the present owners and the team will be relocated in another centre next season.

The league, however, will operate with only 11 teams for the balance of the 1979-80 campaign.

Players on Great Falls' active roster will be put up for grabs today in a dispersal draft. New Westminster Bruins, with only three victories in 31 games, will have the first two choices. Each other team in the league then can claim one player.

Panchyshyn said Cougars do not intend to claim anybody. With 48 points out of 33 games, Victoria's first choice would come after 12 players have been drafted.

"Anyone left," he said, "certainly isn't going to help us."

Great Falls played its final game Sunday in Calgary. The Eastern Division-leading Wranglers' 7-4 victory tagged the sad-sack Americans with their 25th loss in 28 starts.

League governors have agreed to let all decisions involving Great Falls stand.

Remaining games scheduled against Great Falls will be made up against divisional rivals.

Cougars, who have not yet played the Americans, have four games to make up — two at Memorial Arena and two on the road.

Panchyshyn said Victoria's home games — Feb. 5 and Feb. 12 — will be played against Seattle Breakers, providing arena dates can be approved by manager Jack Morgan. The two road games will be made up in New Westminster and Seattle, with the dates still to be determined Victoria's rivals.

In Regina, defenceman Jeff Marshall's sliding shot from the point beat a screened Grant Fuhr at 7:06 of the final period and stood up as the winner.

Cougars, who spotted Pats the first two goals and then tied the game on efforts by Pederson and Bob Smith, had a glorious chance to force overtime when they finished the game with a two-man advantage for the final 37 seconds but were unable to get a decent shot at Regina netminder Bart Hunter.

Regina's Darren Bobyck was assessed a five-minute major at 18:56 for boarding Victoria defenceman Tony Feltrin. Mike Blaisdell followed his teammate into the penalty box 27 seconds later but the Cougars were unable to connect despite pulling Fuhr in favor of a third extra attacker.

Feltrin suffered a cut on the head but the injury was not serious.

Victoria coach Jack Shupe felt travel took its toll "in this one more than any other game. They didn't have that extra step when they needed it."

Pederson certainly had the "extra step" in Brandon when he ran his goals total to 26.

Greg Adams counted his 31st goal of the season and Bob Smith fired two goals during the third period, both on breakaways, to complete Victoria's scoring. Dave McDonald, Don Dietrich, Steve Patrick and Mike Winther replied for Wheat Kings.

Wranglers built 1-0 and 4-1 period leads but had to survive a third-period rally by Great Falls which twice narrowed the gap to one goal.

In other Sunday games, Lethbridge defencemen scored four goals in the third period to lead the Broncos to a 5-3 victory over visiting Billings while rookie Gary Yarmenchuk scored twice as Portland defeated the Bruins 6-3 in New Westminster.

Ralph Andreesen scored three times, including one into an empty net, to pace the Lethbridge victory.

Portland surged ahead with four goals in the final period while Bruins only managed to reply once in the last minute.

ANNOYED at antics of John McEnroe of the United States in Davis Cup final against Antonio Zugarelli of Italy at San Francisco, Sunday, an Italian fan expressed his displeasure his way. When McEnroe, upset by jeers from the audience, stretched out on court in protest, a fan, who identified himself only as Serafino and being from Milan, Italy, did likewise in an imitation of McEnroe. It took three men about two minutes to get the Italian on his feet and back to his seat. U.S. won the series 5-0 and the cup. (AP wirephoto).

Antics on court fail to stop U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The United States Davis Cup tennis team, having won the trophy for 1979, poured it on the Italians on Sunday with a straight-set victory by John McEnroe against Antonio Zugarelli.

Vitas Gerulaitis completed the whitewash, stopping Adriano Panatta 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

McEnroe, winning 6-4, 6-3, 6-1, relied on his strong service which gave him four aces and 38 points on service returns. Zugarelli, who had never played the American lefthander before, appeared baffled by McEnroe's serve and alternated his receiving position from two feet behind the baseline to four feet in front.

But nothing worked for the Italian, a last-minute substitute for Corrado Barazzutti, who was injured in the first match of the final Friday against Gerulaitis.

The Americans clinched the cup Saturday in the best-of-five final when the doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz defeated Adriano Panatta and Paolo Bertolucci 6-4, 12-10, 6-2 after Gerulaitis and McEnroe had won their singles Friday.

McEnroe's victory extends to 28 the number of consecutive sets he has won in Davis Cup singles in the last two years.

The match was enlivened in the second game of the second set when McEnroe disputed a linesman's ruling that Zugarelli's had hit the line on a service return.

McEnroe appealed to the referee, who over-ruled the linesman and gave the point to the American.

As McEnroe began to serve the second point, the crowd's whistling and hooting distracted him and he tilted forward until he fell to the court in a mock trance.

A self-appointed cheerleader for the Italians, packing about 400 pounds and adorned with a sweatban, ambled out of his front-row seat and approached McEnroe. Not to be outdone by the cheerleader's antics, McEnroe feigned fright and ran to the American bench where he jumped into the first row of spectators.

At that point, the cheerleader sprawled on the court like a beached whale. It took three ushers to help him overcome the weight of his huge belly and regain his feet so that he could lumber back to his seat.

McEnroe went on to win the game at love.

Meanwhile, in Sao Paulo, Brazil advanced to the South American final of the 1980 competition when it took an unbeatable 3-1 lead over Chile Sunday. Carlos Kirmayr clinched the win for Brazil with a 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 7-5 victory over Chile's Ricardo Auna.

Hack with Cubs for 16 seasons

CHICAGO (AP) — Stan Hack, third baseman with Chicago Cubs from 1932 to 1948, has died at the age of 70 after an extended illness.

Hack, who managed the baseball club for three years, starting in 1954, played 1,938 games in his 16 seasons with the Cubs.

Spartak finds tour a breeze

Times News Services

Moscow's touring Spartak team continued at the weekend to ride roughshod over Western Hockey League opposition.

The first division Soviet Union squad scored three power-play goals en route to a 5-1 exhibition victory over Saskatoon Blades before 3,426 spectators Sunday in Saskatoon.

Defenceman Aleksandr Kulikov and winger Arkadij Rudakov each scored twice for the Spartak, undefeated in six starts against WHL teams.

Aleksandr Kozhevnikov scored the other Spartak goal while Mark Habscheid replied for the Blades in the second period.

The Russians also had an easy time Saturday in a 9-2 romp over the Tigers in Medicine Hat.

Alekei Kostylev and Vladmir Kucherenko each scored twice with Alexander Yakushev, Sergei Sheplev, Renat Baimukametov, Kozhevinkov and Valeri Bragin adding the singles.

Curt Broadhead and Brad Kempthorne, a pickup from Brandon, scored for Tigers.

Moscow concludes its tour with games Tuesday in Brandon and Wednesday in Regina.

Austin collects $100,000

TOKYO (AP) — Tracy Austin of the United States, the 1979 U.S. Open champion, easily beat Martina Navratilova 6-2, 6-1 and won a $200,000 international women's tennis tournament Sunday.

The 17-year-old Austin's precise baseline play and speed prevented Navratilova, the 1979 Wimbledon champion, from mounting an attack.

Austin collected $100,000 for the victory.

Billie Jean King of the United States outlasted Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 7-6, 7-6 for third place.

Fromholtz captured the first two games, but King's strong passing shots and volleys helped her rally and take two tie-breakers before a capacity crowd of 6,000.

American juniors score cup victory

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Scott Davis and Ben Testerman outlasted Hans Simonsson and Stefan Svensson of Sweden in a deciding three-set doubles match Saturday as the United States won the Sunshine Cup junior men's tennis championship.

The winners, both 18, beat the Swedes 7-6, 8-6, 4-6, 6-4 to give the U.S. team the title.

In singles, Davis beat Simonsson 6-4, 0-6, 6-3. Svensson nipped Testerman 3-6, 7-6, 7-4, 6-7, 8-6 to send the match into the doubles.

In the final set of the doubles, each team held serve through nine games, but the Americans broke Simonsson's serve in the 10th game to earn the victory.

Athletics set to go to Denver

OAKLAND (AP) — American League baseball owners plan a special meeting early next month, apparently to tackle the long-running attempt to move Oakland A's to Denver.

The Tribune reported Sunday that American League president Lee MacPhail said, when asked if A's owner Charles O. Finley has come to terms with Denver oilman Marvin Davis, "I think that's substantially the case."

Finley would not comment, however.

MacPhail said the meeting will be Jan. 3 or 4 in Chicago, where Finley lives.

If the league owners approve a sale of the club, there still will have to be a settlement with the Oakland Coliseum. The A's lease, with specific wording prohibiting the team from moving, runs eight more years. Baseball is reported to be ready to offer $4 million in buy-out money.

Oak Bay fourth

VANCOUVER — Oak Bay Bays defeated reigning provincial champion Burnaby South Rebels 66-58 Saturday to finish fourth in the eight-team Killarney high school boys' basketball classic tournament.

Dean Straith scored 14 points to lead the Bays while Charlie Wuester added 13.

Oak Bay has beaten Notre Dame of Vancouver 79-58 after dropping a 73-61 decision to Eric Hamber of Vancouver in the opening round.

Olympian quartet cleans up in pool

Four members of the Victoria Olympians came up with multiple victories in the Vancouver Island regional all-levels swim meet Saturday and Sunday at the Crystal Pool.

Shelley Cuppage claimed wins in the 15-17 girls' 400-metre individual medley, 200 freestyle, 100 butterfly and 50 freestyle events; Neil McKinlay won the 13-14 boys' 400 freestyle, 200 individual medley and 100 backstroke events; Wayne Kelly won the 15-17 boys' 50 freestyle and 100 butterfly; and Gillian Roberts topped the 10-and-under girls' 50 freestyle and 200 individual medley.

Three Victoria Flying "Y" members emerged with two or more victories. Simon Bicknel won the 10-and-under boys' 50 back and freestyle, the 200 individual medley and freestyle and 100 breaststroke; Boyd Grealy won the 11-12 boys' 100 backstroke, 100 butterfly, 200 individual medley and 100 breaststroke; and Rachel Addison won the eight-and-under girls' 50 breaststroke and backstroke.

Juan de Fuca Cohos dominated the 11-12 girls' class. Maria Eis won the 100 freestyle and backstroke; Kelly Dwordwick won the 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly and Kim Dyke won the 100 breaststroke and 400 freestyle.

Killarney wins

Killarney downed South Delta 72-62 Saturday to win the annual Ramblers high school girls' basketball tournament at Mt. Douglas High.

The host Ramblers finished third by tripping Port Alberni 80-51 while Kamloops finished fourth after a 52-37 win over Abbotsford.

Marina Scott of Mt. Douglas was selected to the all-star team with Cheryl Kelsey and Shani Claridge of Killarney, Leslie Sacre of South Delta and Lori Clarke of Abbotsford.

Lori Favor of the Ramblers received honorable mention along with Glenna Hazeldine and Jamie Nystrom of South Delta.

GAME RESCHEDULED

ATLANTA (AP) — A National Hockey League game between Atlanta Flames and Buffalo Sabres postponed on Nov. 30 has been rescheduled for Jan. 21.

'Old guard' still sharp

Times News Services

It was a profitable weekend for Gary Player, Don January and Ray Floyd, three of golf's best-known veterans.

Player, the 44-year-old South African, scored his fourth successive victory on his country's Sunshine circuit Saturday, winning the Sun City event in Johannesburg with a 10-under-par 278 for the 72 holes.

Player finished four strokes ahead of compatriot Bobby Verwey on a course he designed. Player won $18,000.

Verwey finished at 282, with Nicky Price, also of South Africa, third at 284 while Des Smyth of Ireland was fourth with 286.

In Miami, January, who grabbed the first-round lead and lost it only once over the next three days, fired a 67 Sunday to post an eight-stroke victory in the $100,000 PGA National Seniors championship.

January became eligible for the event a month ago when he celebrated his 50th birthday.

George Bayer was second with 278.

January's 18-under-par 270 was the second-lowest total recorded since the annual event began in 1937.

Dan Sikes Jr. and Bill Johnston tied for third at 282, while host professional Julius Boros was fifth at 286. Gardner Dickinson eagled the 16th hole to gain a sixth-place tie with Dow Finsterwald and Art Wall.

Floyd's iron play on the Cariari Country Club course earned him a $12,500 payday Sunday in the $50,000 Costa Rican Friendship Cup tournament at San Jose.

Floyd shot a two-under-par 69 for a 72-hole total of 275. Peter Jacobsen settled for second place and $8,000 after shooting a 69 for 278.

David Graham, closing with a 68, was third at 280. D. A. Weibring shot 71 — 282, Tom Weiskopf 75 — 283 and Curtis Strange 74 — 284.

Moore quartet in PCCA final

LAKE COWICHAN — Stacey Coomber of Nanaimo and Barry Moore of Esquimalt earned berths in the Pacific Coast junior curling playdowns Dec. 27 at Powell River with victories in the eight-rink Vancouver Island zone playdowns which ended Sunday at Cowichan Lake Curling Club.

Coomber, who skipped last year's B.C. championship rink from Powell River, won "A" event and collected the Island title with a 5-4 decision over Dale Garraway's Racquet Club of Victoria quartet, which included Ross Kitchen, Don Fraser and Tony Tuson.

Moore, who called the shots for Randy Miller, Brent Ward and John Hayd, downed Garraway 7-3 in the "B" final to claim the other berth.

One rink from the Pacific Coast championship will advance to the British Columbia playdowns Jan. 19-20 in Salmon Arm.

Ross McGowan (Dave Young, Greg Rasmussen, Darcy Eyres) of the Racquet Club won the "A" title in the Island juvenile playdowns held at the same time.

McGowan and a Nanaimo foursome, which topped the "B" event, also head for Powell River for the juvenile Pacific Coast playdown.

Powerlifting record

JASPER, Ala. (AP) — Tom Hardman of Gainesville, Ga., set a world powerlifting record when he bench-pressed 591.5 pounds in the heavyweight competition of the Heart of Dixie championships Saurday.

Hardman, 26, won the 275-pound class with a lift of 545.5 pounds. He broke the record on his second attempt at 591.5 pounds. He then tried and failed to bench press 601 pounds.

Bucks Break out in style; Brown gives Sonics edge

By The Associated Press

When Milwaukee Bucks break out of a losing streak, they do it right.

"I think we're over it, whatever it was," said Marques Johnson after scoring 21 points to lead the Bucks to a 104-79 National Basketball Association victory Sunday night over Utah Jazz.

The Bucks had lost six straight games before their latest victory. They didn't look particularly well through the first quarter Sunday night, when they fell behind by 10 points at one stage, but coach Don Nelson told Johnson: "Hey, the shots will fall."

They eventually did, with Johnson contributing most of the key points. Before long the Bucks were off and winging.

"We weren't playing with any confidence," Johnson said of the team during its losing streak.

Elsewhere Sunday, Boston Celtics beat New Jersey Nets 115-112 in overtime, Kansas City Kings edged Indiana Pacers 107-105, Seattle SuperSonics turned back Denver Nuggets 123-121, Los Angeles Lakers beat San Antonio Spurs 121-119, San Diego Clippers beat Detroit Pistons 133-126 and Portland Trail Blazers hammered Houston Rockets 123-101.

Fred Brown's running jumper with two seconds remaining lifted Seattle over Denver.

After falling behind by 10 points in the first quarter, the Bucks soon cut the margin to 25-19 on jump shots by Junior Bridgeman and Johnson as the quarter ended. They rallied to 30-30 on two free throws apiece by Sidney Moncrief and Bridgeman with 7:26 left in the half.

After a shot by Utah's Don Williams, Bridgeman tied the score again and Dave Meyers put the Bucks ahead to stay 34-32 on two free throws, Johnson got four baskets to pad a 47-34 lead before Terry Furlow's jump shot got the Jazz to within 47-36 at halftime. The Bucks scored the first four points of the third quarter and built a 20-point lead.

Larry Bird's 19 points helped Boston beat New Jersey, despite a season-high 52-point output by guard Mike Newlin of the Nets.

The Nets had a 112-107 lead after Newlin's shot with 1:36 left in overtime. But Chris Ford made a three-point goal from the left corner 13 seconds later for Boston.

After the Nets' Winford Boynes missed a jumper, Nate Archibald drove for a basket and was fouled. He converted the three-point play with 36 seconds left, giving Boston a 113-112 lead.

With the Celtics double-teaming Newlin, Eddie Jordan missed a jump shot with 24 seconds left and Archibald made two free throws six seconds later for the 115-112 margin.

Medals elude Canadians after good training runs

VAL GARADENA, Italy (CP) — Despite excellent training times all week long, Canada failed to win any medals Sunday at a World Cup downhill ski race in this Tyrolean resort town near the Austria border.

World Cup downhill champion Peter Muller of Switzerland, who was second here twice last year, placed first with a time of 2:03.94.

Canada's best was a 7th by Ken Read of Calgary. He was clocked in 2:05.96, more than three seconds slower than his time on Saturday's training run, where he recorded the fastest time.

Conditions for the race were less than ideal. More than a foot of snow fell on Friday and more snow came again Saturday night, slowing the course down. The Canadian team prefers to ski on an icy course.

"In our sports you get a lot of different variations which effect results," Read said. "Today it was the weather. I made a few minor errors but nothing outrageous."

"All the guys who did well today are what we call gliders. They let their skis slide on the snow."

Read also suffered the misfortune of having to start first on the soft course.

"It was extremely disadvantageous to have number one, but that's the way she goes," Read said.

By winning, Muller upset Austrian hopes for a second straight win. The 22-year-old ace scored the second World Cup win of his career, ahead of Norwegian Erik Haaker.

Four Austrians, Werner Grissmann, Uli Spiess, Franz Klammer and Josef Walcher took the next four places.

Muller mastered the 3,615-metre long course, dropping 839 metres, in 2:03.94 minutes, leaving Haaker nearly .08 of a second behind.

Haaker, who had bested Muller in a World Cup downhill on the same track here last year, was timed in 2:04.72.

Grissmann took third place in 2:04.84.

Dave Murray, of Abbotsford was 11th with a time of 2:06.45. Canada's other skier in the first seed, Steve Podborski of Toronto, placed 45th with a time of 2:08.69.

"I made a big error in the meadows," Podborski said. "In fact, I almost killed myself. That wasn't the only reason for my slow time. I just had a rotten day."

One Canadian who was delighted with his result was Tim Gilhooly of Kelowna who scored his best World Cup placing ever when he came down with start number 46 to finish 8th with a time of 2:06.37.

"I had good results in training," Gilhooly said, "so I knew I could do well here. It was a good psych to know that conditions would still be good when I came down the hill."

Robin McLeish, of Kanata, Ont., also scored his best World Cup result ever, placing 17th in 2:06.77.

Chris Kent of Calgary was 40th in 2:08.56, Mike Irwin of Calgary 25th in 2:07.62, Craig Podborski of Toronto 58th in 2:09.48 and Bob Stuyan of Vancouver 47th in 2:08.82. Dave Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., was 56th in 2:09.39.

Muller's win was not the only Swiss success of the day as defending World Cup champion Peter Luescher took first place in the combined standings, considering results of downhill and of a giant slalom race held in Madonna di Campiglio on Wednesday.

Luescher piled up 37 points in the over-all World Cup standings, failing, however, to threaten the 75-point total of Swedish superstar Ingemar Stenmark. The Swede has taken all three Cup slaloms held so far this season.

Former Olympic champion Franz Klammer, who placed fifth in 2:05.51, behind team-mate Spiess, fourth in 2:05.03, showed to have recovered some of his past condition and winning spirit.

Happy ending for Cool Clyde

NEW YORK — (AP) — Walt Frazier, New York Knicks' all-time leader in scoring and assists and the playmaker on their 1970 and 1973 National Basketball Association championship teams, was honored in a special ceremony prior to Saturday night's game against Boston Celtics.

Frazier received a standing ovation from the capacity crowd of 19,591 at Madison Square Garden when he was introduced before the game, the applause lasting nearly three minutes. He was presented with several plaques, a silver platter, a portrait and a replica of his uniform jersey No.10, which was retired by the Knicks.

"This a very proud moment for me, a moment I'll never forget," said Frazier.

Frazier, 6-4, a seven-time NBA all-star, was New York's top draft choice in 1967 after leading Southern Illinois to the championship of the National Invitation Tournament.

He spent nine seasons with the Knicks, establishing a reputation as one of basketball's premier defensive players and setting club career records in eight categories — most games, 759; minutes played, 28,995; field goals attempted, 11,669; field goals made, 5,736; free throws attempted, 4,017; free throws made, 3,145; assists, 4,791; and points, 14,617.

During that time, Frazier built the image of Cool Clyde, implacable both on and off the court. But he says he didn't always feel that way.

"Inwardly I would get angry and curse myself out," he said, "but I don't think I ever showed it. I found I could not play as well when I got angry."

Pentathlon star down to business in pursuit of gold

TORONTO (CP) — It's all business for Diane Jones Konihowski. Her target date is July 24 and her sights are on Olympic gold.

Konihowski, 28, is ranked seventh in the world in her speciality, the pentathlon; but that suits her just fine.

"I'd rather go into the Olympics as an underdog than on top," Konihowski said. "Anyway, I've beaten all of the contenders at one time or another so I'm pretty confident I can beat them again.

"I wouldn't be going to my third Olympics if I didn't think I could win."

Part of her confidence comes from the honing of her skills.

Three weeks of solid training in Poland enabled her to clean up her poor hurdle technique. On Dec. 30 she is leaving for New Zealand with husband John to spend the next four months training in Auckland.

"Besides the availability of warm wether training outdoors, going to New Zealand will also take me away from all the distractions here at home," said Konihowski, winner of the pentathlon gold at the 1979 Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico.

"The European athletes train hard seven days a week. They know they must perform well. It's a business to them. And I guess it's a sort of a business with me right now."

Her immediate goal is to get her hurdle times down from 13.76 seconds to 13.3 by the time she hits Moscow.

"Training under Slowomir Nowak in Poland helped immensely," Konihowski said. "I was wasting a lot of time in the air when I went over the hurdles.

"Now I'm going over more efficiently. A lot of improvement had to do with getting in better condition than I had been in. Nowak got me to do a lot of gymnastic tumbling. It's always been a key part of the European track training."

In 1978 Konihowski was ranked No. 1 in the world with her Commonwealth Games total of 4,768 points. The world record of 4,828 points is held by Nadyezhda Tkatchenko of the Soviet Union who has been suspended until March for taking drugs.

"I don't know how much of an effect her suspension will have on her performance," said Konihowski. "Another girl I have to be concerned with is Ekternina Smirnova, who has come within four points of the world record.

"But the big difference between them and me is my hurdles," she said. "I'm faster than Smirnova in the 800 metres (21.2 seconds) and I can jump higher in the high jump (1.88 metres). She's better than me in the hurdles, but we're equal in the long jump (6.55 metres) and the shot put (16.24 metres).

"East Germany's Kristina Nitzsche also has to be watched because she can do 1.96 metres in the high jump."

Brawling ref fined by NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Larry O'Brien of the National Basketball Association has fined referee Earl Strom $2,500 as the result of an altercation between Strom and fellow referee Dick Bavetta.

The altercation took place off the court at halftime of a game between Denver Nuggets and Boston Celtics in Boston on Nov. 28.

Following an investigation of the matter, Strom acknowledged that he instigated the incident.

Aussies find bat power

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — Australia finally found some batting form Sunday to take a strong grip on the first cricket test against England.

At the close of the third day the Aussies were 168 for two, giving them a lead of 184. Earlier England was all out in the first 90 minutes for 228 in reply to Australia's total of 244.

With two days remaining after today's rest day, Australia looks certain to set England a big total to win the opener of the three-test series.

England almost got back into the game Sunday when its tailend batsmen held on to get within 16 runs of the Australian first-innings total.

Captain Mike Brearley was out with only eight runs added to the overnight score of 177 for seven.

Agressive middle-order batting saves India

BOMBAY (Reuter) — Aggressive middle-order batting pulled India out of trouble on the opening day of the third cricket test against Pakistan.

The home side recovered from 129 for five Sunday to reach 232 for six with a seventh-wicket stand of 78 runs between Syed Kirmani and Kapil Dev the highlight of the Indian recovery.

Left-arm spinner Iqbal Qasim, who had tormented the top-order batsmen, ended the day with four for 96.

India and Pakistan drew the first two tests in the six-match series.

Own style works for Canada

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian players returned to their own style of play Saturday and trimmed the United States 75-60 to win the four-country International Challenge women's basketball tournament and avenge an earlier drubbing at the hands of the Americans.

In the opening round, the U. S. thrashed the Canucks 84-68, handing out what Canadian coach Don McCrae said was the worst loss since he took over the national squad.

"After that game we didn't prepare for our opponents. Instead, we studied the video tapes and looked at our mistakes," he said. "It worked because we started playing our own game again."

Bulgaria, paced by Nadka Goltcheva's 18 points, beat Cuba 92-74 to win the bronze medal. Forward Carida Despaigne scored 17 points in a losing effort for the Pan-American champions.

American coach Phillis Holmes said her team at the four-day competition had only a few players who represented the U. S. at two other major international tournaments this year.

"What obviously showed was that we did not come with the same number nor the depth of the players that the other teams in the tournament had," she said.

"Canada was able to use its bench quite freely . . . and we just didn't have the stamina for the four days."

Forward Chris Critelli, a 5-10 native of St. Catharines, Ont., played a strong game at both ends of the court in the sudden-death final.

She scored 20 points and helped hold U.S. captain Carol Blazejowski to 12.

"Because I came to training camp late, I had a difficult time melding in," said Critelli, who was named the most-valuable player in the tournament.

"Coach McCrae used Deb Huband in my spot during the first game and I started to feel more comfortable with each game we played."

Critelli had only six points in the opening-day loss to the Americans; scored 29 points in Canada's 105-69 win over Cuba; and added 16 points to help down Bulgaria 82-69. She finished with 71 points.

Blazejowski, who netted 100 points in four days of competition, did not score her first field goal in the final until more than 22 minutes into the game.

Also turning in strong efforts for Canada during the tournament were Luanne Hebb and Carol Turney-Loos, both members of the University of Victoria Vikettes.

The Americans, who trailed 45-30 at the half, came within five points with about 10 minutes to play. But turnovers and hot outside shooting by Canada club ended the rally.

In the bronze-medal final, Bulgaria led from the opening whistle and was ahead 46-42 at the half.

The Cubans tried to pressure the Bulgarians with a full-court zone press early in the final period. However, the agressive Bulgarian team easily broke the press, frequently with underhanded passes the length of the court, to pull away.

Cuba's Carida Despaigne finished the tournament with 98 points while Bulgaria's Panka Stoyanova, regarded as one of the best centres in the world, scored 69.

Quick start by Owls too much for Bears

By Canadian Press

Syracuse and Temple returned to the post-season scene Saturday and chalked up triumphs as United States college football moved through the early stage of its schedule of bowl games.

In the Independence Bowl at Shreveport, La., Syracuse made its first bowl appearance since 1966 and whipped previously-unbeaten McNeese State 31-7.

In the Garden State Bowl at East Rutherford, N.J., Temple made its first post-season appearance in 45 years a successful one by defeating California 28-17.

Temple scored on its first three possessions with two touchdown runs by Kevin Duckett and a seven-yard touchdown pass from Bryan Broomell to Wiley Pitts as the 20th-ranked Owls stormed to a 21-0 first-quarter lead over the penalty-plagued Golden Bears.

After California climbed to within 21-17, Broomell clinched the victory with a five-yard touchdown pass to Gerald Lucear, capping a 78-yard march with 6:47 remaining.

Rich Campbell lobbed a 12-yard TD pass to Matt Bouza and a 14-yarder to Gerald Rose to account for most of California's points.

Syracuse's victory was paced by tailback Joe Morris who had a bowl-record 155 yards rushing. The Orangemen led 3-0 at the half but scored on two long drives following intermission to put away the Southland Conference champions.

The Orangemen went 94 yards on the first possession of the second half and cashed in on a one-yard run by Ken Mandeville. Syracuse capped a 73-yard touchdown drive on the next possession when Bill Hurley threw a seven-yard touchdown pass to Art Monk.

Linebacker Jim Collins intercepted two passes to set up the final Syracuse touchdowns in the last four minutes of the game. Hurley scored on a one-yard run and Tom Matichak scored on a six-yarder.

Gary Anderson opened the scoring for the Orangemen with a 40-yard field goal early in the second quarter. McNeese got its touchdown in the third quarter on a four-yard run by qarterback Chad Millet.

Chan-Hee keeps crown

PUSAN, South Korea (AP) — Unbeaten Park Chan-Hee of South Korea retained his World Boxing Council flyweight title Sunday, knocking out Mexicos's Guty Espadas at 2:28 of the second in a scheduled 15-rounder.

Espadas knocked down the champion with a left hookearly in the first round, but quickly ran into trouble himself. The Korean knocked down Espadas twice in the first round before knocking him out in the second round.

Ron Waples reaches Canadian milestone

TORONTO (CP) — It had been a long time coming, but harness driver Ron Waples scored his 400th Canadian victory of the year at Greenwood Raceway on Saturday afternoon.

Waples, 35, of Rockwood, Ont., started the day with 397 victories. He scored quickly with Holland in the free-for-all handicap and followed that with another victory in the fourth race with Sea Mac Paul. The 400th win came in the seventh with Flora's Pride.

"I'd like to go right back out and win the next race," said Waples after accepting cheers from the fans following his milestone victory.

Waples, the first harness driver to win 400 races in Canada, has 414 victories on the year, including triumphs in the United States.

ELECTION EXCITEMENT has no place in the thought of these youngsters, though the same may not be true for their famous father. Eight-year-old Justin Trudeau (centre) and brothers Sacha (left) and Michel are seen here attending Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer's annual Christmas party Sunday. Justin reads over a carol sheet while his brothers watch the entertainment provided by the Ottawa Boys and Girls Club.

Trudeau still undecided as election race begins

OTTAWA (CP) — Just 38 weeks after federal politicians began campaigning officially for the country's 31st general election, they are getting set today to start again on national tours, speeches and knocking on doors for votes.

But in contrast to the campaign that began late last March, when plans and tactics had been in preparation for two years, the political parties are scrambling to organize after the sudden parliamentary defeat of Joe Clark's minority Conservative government last Thursday night.

The Liberals, seeking to regain power after half a year in opposition, were trying to persuade Pierre Trudeau to reconsider his decision to quit the leadership. The party's parliamentary caucus met late into Friday night and the 36-member national executive conferred through the weekend.

Trudeau spent most of the weekend in the Montreal area but returned to Ottawa Sunday night to confer with party brass for two hours at his official residence, Stornoway.

Senator Alasdair Graham, national Liberal party president, left the meeting saying he and other key party officials had pressed Trudeau to remain as leader.

The former prime minister likely will announce his decision today or Tuesday, Graham said.

The Conservatives, after first announcing that Prime Minister Clark would start the re-election campaign today in Gaspe, Que., changed the launching place to Montreal. Late Sunday, organizers were looking for speaking dates on a Clark tour they say will take in London and Kitchener, Ont., Edmonton and his own riding of Yellowhead, Alta., as well as Vancouver and Winnipeg in his first week.

The New Democratic Party also changed plans several times for leader Ed Broadbent, then said Sunday he will start out Tuesday in Toronto, moving on to Halifax, Montreal, Vancouver and Winnipeg.

But for all parties, organizers are well practised: This is the 10th federal election in less than 23 years. The organizational plans of last spring have barely had time to collect dust. And the chief electoral office will even use the same lists of voters enumerated for the election last May 22.

The Conservatives were six seats short of a majority when the 282-member House of Commons was dissolved Friday for the Feb. 18 election. Conservatives held 136 seats, Liberals 114, the NDP 27 and Social Credit five.

Clark called the election after losing — 139 to 133 — a key vote repudiating his government's first budget. The Liberals and NDP combined in opposition while Fabien Roy's Socreds abstained.

The Clark cabinet serves as a caretaker administration during the nine-week election campaign.

By launching the national campaign in Quebec, the Conservatives hope to underline their drive to gain strength in the province that denied them a majority last time. The party won only two of the Liberal-dominated 75 Quebec seats last May and gained another when Social Credit MP Richard Janelle crossed the floor later.

Conservative campaign strategy, outlined in statements by Clark and party officials, will concentrate on three themes — blaming the Liberals and NDP for the winter election, stressing a list of unfinished government business as "the foundation of Canada's growth in the 1980s" and defending the tough tax and energy pricing measures in the defeated budget as essential for long-term economic recovery.

The Liberals and NDP, who both gained in a November national opinion poll while the Conservatives slumped and who split the victories in two federal byelections Nov. 19, are pushing the line that the Clark cabinet proved itself unfit to govern.

Spokesmen for both opposition parties charge that Clark reneged on the campaign promises that won him last spring's election.

Budget to stand Crosbie warns

OTTAWA (UPC) — A re-elected Conservative party will come right back with the 18-cent per gallon gas tax and other budget measures that led to their defeat in the House of Commons, says Finance Minister John Crosbie.

The tough-talking Newfoundlander told CTV's Question Period Sunday that a "conscienceless" Liberal party had been motivated not by distaste for his budget but by greed for power when they brought down the government Thursday night.

"They've forced us into an election when their own leader has resigned," Crosbie said. "They're rudderless and they're leaderless and they're conscienceless and they forced this election for what reason I don't know." The senior cabinet minister described suggestions the Conservative Party masterminded its own defeat as "twaddle," adding that the Liberal's "power mongery" had reached epidemic proportions.

Crosbie defended his budget, which would have hiked oil prices $4 a barrel in the next year and raised the gasoline excise tax by 18 cents a gallon, and said he had done nothing to hurt the consumer. "We're hoping to bring it back," he said.

He said events rather than his policies were to blame for the bitter medecine in his economic blueprint. "It's the fact that oil and gas are running out, that they're not renewable resources, that has done it," he said.

Crosbie denied the Conservatives had invited an unwanted winter election by attempting to govern as though they had a majority despite their tentative grip on power.

"The public elected us or gave us a plurality . . . to try a new approach, not to have a hash, or a mash or a mishmash of NDP and Social Credit and Liberal policies, and that is why we've gone ahead," he said.

Crombie to remain in hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Health Minister David Crombie will likely remain in hospital for two weeks as a result of a mild heart attack, his wife said Sunday.

Shirley Crombie said her 43-year-old husband was awaiting advice from doctors about how active he can expect to be in the federal election campaign.

Mrs. Crombie said her husband might have to take it easy, but he intends to campaign. He was admitted to Toronto General Hospital on Saturday after complaining about indigestion.

Gillespie bows out

TORONTO (CP) — Alastair Gillespie, energy minister in the former Liberal government, said Sunday he will not be a candidate in the Feb. 18 federal election.

"I was there for 11 years and four elections," Gillespie said. "It's somebody else's turn. I've done my share."

Gillespie was defeated in the May 22 election in Etobicoke Centre by Conservative Michael Wilson, later named minister of state for international trade.

Henry Ford III will testify in a liability lawsuit involving a Ford automobile, despite his lawyer's argument that the reitred chairman of Ford Motor Co. has "nothing of merit" to offer in the case. Ford will testify in the Los Angeles case of Ford Mustang owner Frank Fisher, whose legs were crushed in a 1973 accident.

Entertainer George Burns has donated commercial property worth $400,000 to a home for retired show business people. A grocery in Los Angeles' Canoga Park, including the lot on which it is built, was signed over to the Motion Picture and Television Fund for the benefit of the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital.

Gielgud

Tied to a chair for three hours at a time and locked alone in a tiny room, Oberlin, Ohio, radio disc jockey Scott Miller says he thinks he is getting a feeling for what the 50 U.S. hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran, are going through. Miller has spent three days of self-imposed isolation inside station WOBL. Much of the time he stays in a barren room with a U.S. flag on the wall. He says he finds feelings of anger and frustration welling up inside him.

Mayor John McGee of Falls City, Ore. (pop. 752), could give New York some advice on how to handle the problem of potholes. He sells them. Like most places these days, Falls City is feeling the pinch, and there was no money to pave over the potholes. So McGee instituted a program of selling the potholes as Christmas gifts "for people who have everything." For a regular repaving job the purchaser pays $10, while the $20 deluxe job comes with the recipient's name embossed in fluorescent orange paint on top of the patch. Purchasers receive a certificate describing their pothole sites and the date each was filled.

For Sir John Gielgud, 1980 marks his 48th year as a film star and he's still going strong. He's just finished Murder by Decree with Christopher Plummer, James Mason, Susan Clark, Anthony Quale and Genevieve Bujold, and for his anniversary piece he'll costar with George C. Scott, Marlon Brando and Marthe Keller in MGM's The Formula. The setting is the Second World War, but the theme has a contemporary ring. It's all about an international oil conspiracy.

Dear Abby:
I belong to a weekly card club consisting of eight intelligent, interesting women. While playing cards we concentrate on the game, but when we sit down to eat, one lady in the group always monopolizes the conversation with long, drawn-out stories about herself, her children, her opinions, her this and her that, etc.

I see the other women in the group, all waiting for a chance to talk, but 'Mrs. Motor Mouth' never gives anyone else a chance to say a word.

Impatient

Dear Impatient:
Until someone in your club tells her to idle her motor, prepare to be a captive audience.

Dear Abby:
Please print this in your column without mentioning my city or province since this problem is one I have turned over in my mind so many times I can't think clearly anymore. Perhaps your ojbectivity can help.

A gentleman and I attended the same social occasion not long ago but, unfortunately, we were not introduced at the time.

I have been following his career quietly since then, and found that we have much in common — neither one of us has ever been married, and although he is quite a bit older than I, we share the same religion, ethnic background, educational level, hobby (gardening) and long-time interest in government and business. We both hold respected and responsible positions, but live and work miles apart.

The dilemma: Since I don't know a mutual friend who could make the introduction, how can I express my admiration and interest in this man without appearing tasteless or forward?

Unheralded Admirer

Dear Admirer:
For openers, write him a friendly, dignified, brief letter, mentioning the 'social occasion' you both attended so he won't think you're some kook coming out of left field. Then ask for his opinion (or advice) concerning one of the many areas of mutual interest.

If your letter is sufficiently impressive, it could open the door.

(P.S. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It's not only thoughtful, it will increase your chances for a reply.)

Dear Abby:
Charlie and I have been married for nine years. We have eight kids. (No twins.) He just told me that he is trying to think up some minor crime to commit so they'll lock him up — he says the noise around this house is driving him crazy. Help me.

Charlie's Wife

Dear Wife:
If Charlie is joking — laugh. If he's serious, you'd better get him to a doctor.

For Christmas shopping, a new dimension

This year, as usual, we went down to Victoria to finish off our Christmas shopping. We pulled out of the home access road in the early-morning darkness, greeted the dawn between Parksville and Qualicum, and arrived in the capital with most of a store-junketting day still before us.

We applied ourselves busily to the task, allowing only the merest break for a sandwich lunch, and barely pausing to listen to the oompa-oompa brass band that was belting out Christmas carols in Eaton's mall.

Finally, over late-afternoon coffee, I ran an eye along the column of crossed-off squiggles on my shopping list.

"That's it for me," I announced. "I've got it made. How are you doing?

"Fine," Win said, consulting her own list. "Only do you realize we've forgotten someone important?"

I couldn't think who, and told my dear one so.

"Christopher," Win said. "We haven't got him a thing." She finished her coffee, then said in pleased tones, "Now we'd better get busy and hunt him up some presents!"

Christopher is our son Ron's and our sweet daughter-in-law Keiko's wonder-child. He is now five months old, a happy, healthy little boy with a smile like the morning sun, and we love him dearly.

New vistas opened. It's been a long time since we plunged into the joyous business of Christmas shopping with a child in mind.

"I guess we'd better head for Toyland," I said.

Win smiled indulgently, and shook her head.

"That can wait," she said. "First, I want to get him some little vests and some sleepers. He can't have too many of them."

We bought some mouse-sized shirts for Christopher, also some woolly sleepers, with feet.

"Toyland now?" I asked

"Not yet," Winsaid. "Now we have to find him a Jolly Jumper."

Time reversed itself. I could see our Susan, a plump little butterball, bouncing up and down ecstatically in the Jolly Jumper we bought for her own first Christmas.

"You mean they still make those rigs?" I asked.

But Win was already picking her way purposefully among the cribs, walkers and carriages that cluttered the floor.

We found a Jolly Jumper.

"Okay," I said. "Toyland, here we come!"

Unfortunately, the range of toys for five-month-old babies is narrow. I yearned to get Christopher cars, and lingered over an interestingly-realistic popgun that gave off a flash and a loud bang when the trigger was pressed.

But Win vetoed both notions.

"He's much too young," she said. "Come on over here and look at the cuddly animals."

"Listen," I protested, "The kid already as about six Teddy-bears!"

But Win only smiled.

"There's always room for one more," she said comfortably, and began to delve into a basket heaped with stuffed creatures.

We settled on an engaging skunk, made sure that its eyes were secured too firmly for Christopher's fingers to pull loose, then shoved off with our purchases.

The strains of the oompa-oompa band reached us distantly: they were playing "We Three Kings of Orient Are". The air carried a frosty nip. It felt like Christmas coming.

I lingered to look in a sporting goods store window.

"We could get him that little trout reel," I suggested. "It'd make a nice rattle. He could crank the handle and listen to the click."

"That will come later," Win said. "So will the Cowichan sweater I'd love to get him. We've got to remember he's only a very little boy."

And so he is . . . a fact that over-eager grandparents incline to forget. But by next Christmas, he will be a year older, and no doubt walking and talking. Then we can really let ourselves go!

Old hand revives sawmill

Christian Science Monitor

To help a "dusty" developing nation run a sawmill was not part of Karl A. McDivitt's original idea of retirement.

But when the Oregon lumber expert realized that his years of technical experience could make a small difference in a country such as Turkey, he took the opportunity. He spent several months in 1977 in the city of Adana, sharing his old-hand knowledge of band saws with newcomers to the sawmill trade.

The result: The Turkish company he worked with increased its market 100 percent. In particular, one piece of German-built equipment, which the supplier could not get operating correctly even after one year, was made to run at full production within two days.

McDivitt's journey and task were sponsored by the 15-year-old International Executive Service Corps, a quasi-governmental group that draws on the nation's top business leaders in retirement to help speed economic progress in developing nations.

Such trips allow retirees "to pay back to America and to the world what they have gained," says the group's president, Frank Pace Jr. And the payback is in management skills that are more enduring than handing out money, he adds, calling the program "the human side of technology transfer."

Most projects help small firms, such as an Indian bakery, a Greek toy company or a Honduran tomato processor. More than 7,000 projects in 64 countries have been conducted by the corps since 1964. Foreign clients pay a little over half of the organization's $9 million budget, while the U.S. Agency for International Development picks up the rest.

"We find age is not a barrier. In fact, it is more respected abroad than it is here," Pace says. Sometimes even "living in less than clean conditions, these people are so excited about what they are doing, we have few projects aborted because of health.

"Certain people are prepared to handle a retirement of leisure--one in four, maybe," Pace said in his New York office. "But today the majority of people who retire want to do something further."

With a waiting list of nearly 9,000 older Americans, the corps has spawned a similar program, known as the National Executive Service Corps (Similar to CESO — the Canadian Executive Service Overseas), to help non-profit organizations in the U.S.

McDivitt is now mayor of Coburg, Oregon.

"I'm not one to sit around in retirement," he says.

Check diet for cause of heartburn

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

I am a chronic sufferer of heartburn. I've tried to find out the cause, but no success. Sometimes it happens after lunch, sometimes it wakes me during the night. Are there any particular foods that you think could be causing this because they are hard to digest?

Mr. J.W.

Dear Mr. W.:
Heartburn is one of the most frequent and recurring complaints that is brought to the attention of doctors. A very characteristic observation is that heartburn is related to the digestion of some foods.

The esophagus is the tube which carries food into the stomach. At the junction where they meet there is a tight, protective muscle which prevents the stomach acids from being pushed into the esophagus. For any of several reasons, this tight muscle might tend to relax. Then, the hydrochloric acid and the digestive juices in the stomach enter the lower portion of the esophagus and produce the unpleasant symptom of heartburn.

Coffee is one of the great offenders. It can produce heartburn by directly irritating the esophagus. Alcohol and tea have also often been incriminated. Fried foods, spicy foods, and fatty foods are well-established as trouble-makers.

A number of patients I know have rightfully attributed their heartburn to relishes, pickles and hot, peppery foods. Some individuals are sensitive to foods that do not bother other people. There are some who find radishes, even tomatoes, "hard to digest." Garlic and onions are also prime culprits.

If after an examination there is no evidence of a "hiatus hernia" or a duodenal ulcer, concentration on your diet may help relieve your symptoms.

A diet high in protein and low in fat is helpful. Dr. B. Chernow and D.O. Castell, of Bethesda, Md., state, "Broiled or baked beef, chicken, ham, fish, skim milk can provide the basis for protein in the diet. Potatoes, corn, apples, bananas rarely cause heartburn. Skim milk, water, apple juice and, sometimes, de-caffeinated coffee, are suitable fluids." They also feel that frequent small feedings are better than a single huge meal. They have found, too, that the loss of weight in obese people can reduce the symptoms of heartburn.

The use of alkaline antacids is an important addition to the control of repeated bouts of heartburn.

With proper care, most patients are able to review their dietary intake and to pinpoint the exact cause of their distress. Anyone who is bothered by regular attacks of heartburn deserves to have ruled out the possibility of an existing heart and lung condition.

U.S. moves to tap seniors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has appointed members of a new White House Conference on Aging, which he said would find ways to tap the "tremendous resource" of older Americans.

The elderly, said Carter, "have a broad perspective, having seen crises come and go ... and have a perspective because they have seen how they have been handled."

Carter announced the appointments in a ceremony in the Cabinet Room.

Named to chair the third aging conference, to be convened in 1981 as authorized by Congress, was Dr. Sadie Tanner Mossell Alexander, 81, of Philadelphia.

Carter said the two previous White House conferences on aging in the past 20 years took constructive steps by helping to change Americans' stereotypes of senior citizens.

"It's very important that we recognize the need for elderly people to have self determination," he said.

The conference, to cost $3 million out of the Department of Health Education and Welfare budget, is intended to improve the lives of senior citizens by increasing their earning power, job prospects and health care system. The project is also supposed to encourage scientific research into the aging process and establish a national retirement policy.

City life better?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Life in the city may become more attractive than suburban living in the 1980s, says a recent study done by Emhart Industries Inc. The cost of new homes, combined with smaller families, is making the three-bedroom suburban home obsolete.

School has unique benefits

elizabeth forbes

Marnie Spencelayh, with Michelle Hoitsema, Lisa Baker and Tony Stachowski

You have a boy or girl between the ages of five and 15, with a special learning problem that makes it difficult to adjust within the regular school system.

If so, that young person could perhaps benefit by the extra help available at Discovery School, situated in the former Saanich War Memorial Hospital in the Royal Oak area.

It's basically a remedial school with a low teacher-pupil ratio, less peer group competition and a warm, caring atmosphere.

Principal Marnie Spencelayh started it in September, 1976, at Christ Church Cathedral hall. The following year she changed to a Davie Street location and two years ago moved to the present site.

Why did she open the school?

"Because I was aware there were children who needed to develop a sense of positive self-growth and self-confidence in their relationships with others, as well as responsibility in their academic performance," she tells you.

Her main goal centres around facilitating return of such children to the regular school system, if possible.

Other aims include helping these children develop basic skills in language arts and mathematics through individual programs based on the provincial department of education curriculum; also developing a co-operative partnership with parents in order to reinforce and encourage the child's progress.

That she has considerable success is easily discovered through those parents.

One mother told me her son had no confidence in himself before he was enrolled at Discovery School last summer.

"Now, in less than five months he is a changed person," she says. "He's ready to take on anything."

Marnie adds: "He is the kind of youngster the school was set up for, the kind that makes it with some help.

"We have others, of course, with problems that take longer to control, and a few with learning difficulties that could prevent them from going back into regular school system."

Discovery School is divided into three classes, primary in charge of Elaine Dyment; intermediate headed by Marnie herself, and junior high up to Grade 9, with Sharon Ocello the teacher.

Part-time assistants are Dorothy Dobson, a former public school teacher, and Teresa Stachowski.

Jane Gibbons, Robbie Gole, Aaron Doran, Scott Lowden and school's toys

Present enrolment is 22 pupils. "We could take more," Marnie says.

Recently, in response to a request from a mother, a kindergarten class has been started, two afternoons a week.

There's a qualified teacher, Ann Fracy, but at the moment only the one child.

So, the aim now is to get eight or 10 more little ones with learning problems to fill out this kindergarten class.

Field trips are included in the school program in order to utilize resources within the community to broaden the children's learning experience.

Money for such outings is found through garage sales and car washes in which teachers and pupils all take part.

"This year we even went in the Kinsmen Skate-a-thon," Marnie tells you with a reminiscent laugh. "It proved a very successful venture."

A little over a week ago a Christmas bazaar was held in the school where toys, ornaments, games and calendars, made by the pupils, were sold with home cooking and other articles, and the money added to the field trip piggy bank.

The building is rented through Saanich Municipality. To help meet that monthly assessment, rooms on the main and top floors have been turned into living quarters for people in sympathy with the project.

All the lower floor, with easy access to the grounds for outdoor play, is occupied by the school.

The teaching staff has the full co-operation of parents. They attend all parties and take part in the fun and games. They are ready with transportation when it is needed and they help with many other needs.

There's a board of administration made up of 10 men and women who help to conduct the business of the school.

"Actually what we have here is an independent elementary school which offers individualized programs of instruction to children with special learning problems," Marnie Spencelayh explains.

Then she concludes with "we are also a charitable agency, registered with the Societies Act. That makes us eligible to accept donations."

Fashionable and very useful: a muff

PATCHWORK MUFF
No. KF - 1111

patchwork & quilting

A muff means a lot of different things to different people. It might conjure up memories of times past, perhaps it reminds you of a muff that Mother or a favorite aunt wore, or maybe it's just the very special feeling one gets when one puts their cold hands into a warm, cozy muff. In any event, in our part of the world, a muff is not only a fashionable object, it is a practical accessory to our winter wardrobe.

Using fur to make this muff would be an excellent idea, but if you don't have any, the next best thing is fake fur. There are many varieties around — some look so genuine, it's hard to tell them from the real thing. The type that's often for sale, ends of rolls about 8"x60" (20x152 cm), would be ideal. You could also use scraps of velvet and velveteen. If you haven't any, go to a shop that will let you purchase a small amount of several different colors. An upholstery shop may even give you a few samples of some beautiful quality fabrics. Don't pass up the luxurious corduroys and brocade velvets. For lining, you could use the 'fur' or a piece of velvet or velveteen, or perhaps you'd prefer a slippery fabric such as satin, taffeta, or velour.

This patchwork muff is made using 'crazy' patchwork. You will notice in the illustration that the piecework of the body of the muff is joined every which way at odd angles. This is accomplished very simply mostly by machine, or by hand if you prefer. A base piece of material is used, usually muslin, with a piece of batting placed on top. The pieces of velveteen, or whatever fabric you have chosen, are placed one over the other, turning the edges under as you work. Using the machine involves sewing by the strip method in which the right sides are placed together, a seam sewn, then the top piece is folded out covering the seam. It is then the bottom piece for the next piece and the next seam. All of these techniques are fully illustrated and explained in the pattern.

Once the crazy patches are sewn onto the base, the embellishment stage begins. Using rich colors of embroidery floss, perle cotton, or yarn to match the several colors of your patches, simple embroidery stitches are done over each seam. A few of these are illustrated just in case you've forgotten the ones you used to do, or want to try a few new ones. You might want to use a single unifying color, perhaps in a shade to match your coat or the fur.

Once the embroidery is done, the stuffing (with plain polyester quilt batting) and lining stages begin. The final step is to add the fur trim for each side, again sewing right sides together, turning the edge in and hand hemming the edge to the lining.

With winter upon us, you're sure to appreciate this very unique, but practical and cozy accessory. You can even add a hidey-hole pocket if you want to use your muff as a substitute for a handbag.

If you give one as a gift, just watch the smile come over the recipient's face as she puts it on.

Inflation alters attitude

the fourth quarter

"IBM offered their U.S. employees with 25 or more years of service a bonus of two years' salary (to be paid over a four-year period) as an incentive to take early retirement. Few accepted — another indication that inflation may be changing attitudes about retirement," writes Globe and Mail reader Davida Mitchell.

She was commenting on my recent columns on forced versus voluntary retirement, particularly on recommendations that you be permitted choice as to the date you retire — provided always that you still are capable of doing your job to the satisfaction of your employer.

"Due to inflation, employees given the option of retirement will stay on the job," she argues. "Early retirement to be attractive should have pensions fully indexed to the consumer price index. Without this women and minorities, particularly, will raise the costs of social benefits in Canada.

"If workers' pensions could be handled through non-profit groups, more money could be used for early retirement payments and help to keep in step with inflation.

"Financial companies in the pension field take a big slice of investment profits. The investment of pensioners' money is not the complicated matter we are led to believe it is. If the mechanics of investment were explained in simple language to working men and women, I believe they could select people with adequate knowledge for non-profit operations. They would have a personal interest in best returns on their money because this would be their income during retirement years."

Mitchell invites your comments.

"Not to be used for money-making," Mrs. J. K., Borden, P.E.I., warns me as she sends me one of her poems — writing them being one form of therapy she uses successfully after "being widowed and left alone some seven years ago."

"Another help is your weekly column in our Island paper. You urged lonely people to join seniors' clubs; I did and you are right; they are a great help, believe me.

"You helped persuade me that I just had to make a new life of my own and carry on. I started going out more; I'm active in a church group and in the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

"I now know that staying home and feeling sorry for one's self is no remedy. For greater therapy I knit, have a growing postcard collection and an interesting scrapbook — and I'm also into writing poetry, just for fun.

"I now play cards, go to bingo and dance when there is music to my liking; I can't keep up to disco! Keep up your great work."

Marijuana millions foil the 'Black Tuna' gang

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — In a trial whose record reads like a spy thriller, the U.S. government is trying to convince a federal jury that eight men fashioned a cash-rich empire around smuggled marijuana and a shadowy Latin American playboy called "Black Tuna."

Federal prosecutors plan to present final evidence today in the three-month-old trial of eight men who they say were members of the Black Tuna gang, alleged smugglers who wore Black Tuna medallions minted from gold. Defence testimony could take weeks.

Prosecutors allege that the gang:

— Smuggled $300 million worth of marijuana in a single 16-month period, at one point providing one pound out of every 12 brought into the United States.

— Maintained a private army, an armada of ships complete with a yacht broker, and a fleet of airplanes — and once dreamed of stealing a Boeing 727 jetliner to ferry a once-in-a-lifetime marijuana haul.

— Plotted to assassinate the judge and to murder a government witness as a way to halt the trial.

— Nearly succeeded in buying off a juror.

— Hatched various schemes to escape, including one in which an accused man received court permission to visit his family but instead vanished in the Caribbean.

"I've never seen anything like this," says Arthur Nehrbass, special agent in charge of the Miami FBI office. "It's the most bizarre, gigantic operation I've ever seen."

The Black Tuna's alleged capers, he said, are the product of "people who have no social conscience."

On April 30, a federal grand jury indicted 14 people, charging the ring smuggled one million pounds of marijuana into the United States. The ring's take in one period of little more than a year was nearly a third of a billion dollars, the government said.

"The money," Nehrbass said, "was their downfall. They made too much."

In Miami, computer experts with an FBI-Drug Enforcement Administration task force called "Operation Banco" were meticulously checking bank records for money made illegally. The printouts led agents to two auto dealers, Robert Jay Meinster, 38, and Robert Elliot Platshorn, 37.

The grand jury said Meinster and Platshorn got into the marijuana trade in Milwaukee in 1974, moved operations to Miami two years later and built a powerful organization.

Operating out of lush waterfront homes or a Fontainebleau Hotel suite, the two established a relationship with a Colombian businessman, Raul Davila-Jimeno, 32, the man code-named "Black Tuna," prosecutors said. Davila-Jimeno was indicted but never caught.

Trial testimony retold the grand jury's allegations of cloak-and-dagger adventures in the big-money drug trade. But unexpected developments proved more explosive.

On Dec. 6, seven people were arrested in what the FBI called a million-dollar plot to disrupt the trial. The FBI said it recorded discussions of what an agent testified were plots to assassinate U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King, murder a witness and bribe a juror.

The new indictment named both Meinster and Platshorn, along with Platshorn's wife, Lynne, and 22-year-old Randall Gene Fisher, another defendant. A New York man and two New Jersey residents also were charged.

Six days later juror Karen Ann Youvas, 25, was indicted on a charge of obstruction of justice. She is accused of agreeing to vote acquittal for $3,000.

Meanwhile, prosecutors told King that defendant Carl Jerry London was missing.

London, a 38-year-old pilot from Clarkesville, Ga., received permission from King to visit a brother in Georgia but instead headed for Colombia in an unsuccessful effort to get a load of marijuana, prosecutors said.

He was arrested during a fuel stop on the Caribbean island of Aruba on charges of having improper airplane papers. King said he thought the U.S. state department was keeping an eye out for London's release from jail there.

But somehow, London was turned loose with an airplane ticket and vanished.

Mystery theft baffles police

NEW YORK (NYT) — The safe with the money was in a room guarded by police officers at all times. To enter the room, one had to get a key from a separate safe. To unlock the safe with the money, two persons were needed, each of whom had half the combination. Yet $600,000 was stolen from the safe.

The theft was reported last July at New York City Transit Authority headquarters in Brooklyn.

"It's a puzzler," says Inspector Nicholas Cuccia, commander of the city's transit detectives. An inside job? Elementary, the inspector indicates. Lie-detector tests have been given to all persons who had access to the money, he says. Results? "I'd rather not comment on passing or failing."

At one time up to 20 police investigators were checking clues. Cuccia says he still keeps six full time on the case. They are retracing paths already combed two and three times. All who could be suspects continue to work for the Transit Authority.

Is a break near in the case? Long pause. Some hesitancy. "We're staying with it," the inspector says. "We do feel that if we maintain the intensive investigation, we'll come to a solution."

Fire alert downs DC-10

CHICAGO (AP) — An American Airlines DC-10 en route here from San Francisco landed safely at O'Hare International Airport Saturday after one of its engines was shut down because the pilot's instrument panel indicated it may have been on fire, an airline spokesman said.

The plane, Flight 160, landed safely at 5:08 a.m., only seven minutes late. Mechanics inspected the rear engine and found no sign of fire, Raynesford said.

Raynesford said mechanics determined that a defective sensor in the plane's fire detection system set off the warning light.

"There was no loss of power. It was shut down as a precautionary measure," said Raynesford.

Missile-powered car nears sound barrier

ROGERS LAKE, Calif. (Reuter) — Stuntman Stan Barrett rode his 48,000-horsepowered rocket vehicle across this dry lakebed at a record speed Saturday in preparation for an attempt to break the sound barrier on land.

The vehicle, boosted by a missile, reached a record 1,148.88 kilometres-an-hour during the trial run.

Barrett, 36, the fastest man on land, reached the previous record speed of 1,090 kilometres-an-hour Dec. 4 and had hoped to reach 1,158.7 kilometres-an-hour Saturday, but mechanics said his fuel ran out before he completed his run.

Barrett, the father of three children, revealed as he pulled himself out of his tiny cockpit of the red needle-nosed rocket vehicle that he almost aborted his run at the start because of the buffetting he received.

"The vehicle started veering to the right side of the course and I was really getting a lot of vibration," the slim, dark-haired Barrett said. "But the faster I went, the smoother the ride became."

Nuclear plant leak 'minor'

HADDAM, Conn. (UPI) — A control valve malfunction at Connecticut Yankee, the most productive nuclear power plant in the U.S., Sunday released radioactive gas estimated to be 40 per cent above federal limits.

The 5:48 a.m. incident at the rural plant on the Connecticut River caused no injuries and did not interrupt operations, said Northeast Utilities, operators of the facility.

Karl Abraham, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in Philadelphia, said based on information he received from the plant, the accident "was minor."

He said the radioactive release was "very, very small and posed no danger to anyone."

Northeast spokesman Gary Doughty said the radioactive gas — mostly xenon — was released for about 45 minutes through an exhaust stack when a liquid level-control valve malfunctioned.

"The instantaneous release of the gas through the stack to relieve the pressure was 40 per cent above federal limits," he said.

Atmospheric measurements in the area after the accident "counted only .4 millirem," Doughty said, noting it compared to 40 millirems from a chest X-ray. He said humans receive an average of about 100 millirems a year from all sources.

Another Northeast spokesman, Robert Winkler, said no employees were exposed to the radioactive gas, the plant kept operating and "for all practiical purposes, the radioactivity is gone."

The plant, in operation 11 years, was cited last week by the NRC for violating federal safety precautions during a refueling process and fined $27,500.

The NRC said the plant failed to properly follow procedures to protect workers from possible radiation during refueling.

The unit that malfunctioned Sunday takes radioactive water out of the system and removes gases from the water.

Doughty said about 880 gallons of radioactive water accumulated at the bottom of the stack due to the accident. He said the water was drained into holding tanks, and will either be re-used or deactivated and returned to the river.

He noted that an investigation had begun to determine why the liquid control valve malfunctioned.

State police in Hartford said they were notified of the accident about 2 p.m. — more than eight hours afterwards. Doughty said because the accident was termed "not serious," notification was not made to state police, the Office of Civil Preparedness or the governor's office until tests were completed.

"The consequences of the accident were small in the first place," he said, "but it was larger than being insignificant."

The Connecticut Yankee reactor was Connecticut's first and the nation's sixth nuclear plant to be built.

Metal spine world's first

New York Times

Life without vertebrae was bleak for 33-year-old Jessie Thomas early last summer. She had to lie motionless in a special stretcher day and night. Her spine had been removed after the discovery of a rare bone tumor that had caused paralysis from the waist down.

Last Sept. 1 Mrs. Thomas received a new spine.

The University of Maryland in Baltimore announced that Dr. Charles Edwards and a medical team at its hospital had completed the world's first surgery to replace the human vertebrae with a metal prosthesis.

Because he believed the odds were "maybe 1 per cent" that Mrs. Thomas might walk again, Dr. Edwards added hours to the operation to keep the woman's spinal cord intact. The complete surgery took more than 19 hours.

Edwards says now that it is "quite unlikely" that Mrs. Thomas will walk, but that she still can have an "acceptable" life in a wheel chair.

At present, "she is able to sit comfortably" in bed with the metal spine, the surgeon says, adding: "We do hope to have her up in a wheelchair over the next couple of weeks."

War hero 'Intrepid' honored once more

WINNIPEG (UPC) — Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon has congratulated Second World War spy chief Sir William Stephenson who was to receive an honorary University of Manitoba doctorate Sunday at his Bermuda home.

"On behalf of people and government of Manitoba I send congratulations and good wishes on occasion of award to you of doctorate from University of Manitoba," read the telegram Lyon sent to the 83-year-old Stephenson.

Stephenson, a Canadian who was known during the war under the code name of Intrepid, pursued a career in electronics except for military service. Sir William was also decorated as a fighter pilot during the First World War.

University of Manitoba president Ralph Campbell and Chancellor Isabel Auld were authorized last month to break with tradition and award the degree to Stephenson at his home, since he was not well enough to travel.

Last spring, Stephenson received an honorary doctorate from the University of Winnipeg.

TORONTO (CP) — Globe and Mail employees, represented by the Southern Ontario Newspaper Guild, have ratified a three-year contract with the newspaper.

The agreement for about 450 editorial, maintenance-delivery and inside circulation employees provides an average increase of 9.5 per cent when compounded over the term of the contract. It will put the five-year rate for a reporter at $510.47 on July 1, 1981.

New Air Canada bid to slash some fares

MONTREAL (UPC — Air Canada has applied to slash fares to the United States and abroad by up to 53 per cent as part of an expanded winter seat sale for trips of a 1,000 miles or more.

The Crown airline said ticketing will begin Dec. 29 if Canadian and U.S. regulatory authorities have not objected to the sale by that date. Sales would apply to outgoing flights between Jan. 14 and Feb. 29, 1980 with all trips to be completed by March 14.

"We genuinely want to make these low fares available to consumers on both sides of the border," Air Canada vice-president for marketing Guy Chiasson said.

"But with the possibility of a regulatory body expressing dissatisfaction, we decided against selling tickets until after the Dec. 29 deadline."

The airline was unsuccessful in an earlier bid to cut winter fares to points in the United States and was forced to refund passengers. But Chiasson said "the mood is now better and we are optimistic."

The sale requires passengers to book 30 days in advance with a seven-day minimum stay and 30 days maximum. Flights of between 1,000 and 1,300 miles would be discounted 48 per cent on Canadian dollar purchases and those of 2,401 or more 53 per cent.

Art sale a loser

OTTAWA (CP) — Christmas shopping apparently was more important than peace on earth Saturday.

Operation Dismantle, a group lobbying for world disarmament, lost $1,100 on what it had hoped would be a fund-raising art auction.

About 30 persons attended the event at the University of Ottawa. However, only six works were sold and the money raised fell far short of the cost of organization and publicity.

"It was terrible," said Jim Stark, president of the group. "We had one painting by Tom Wood, an Ottawa artist, go for $250 and he normally sells for $600 or $700."

Pension hikes effective Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Increases in Canada Pension Plan and old age securities effective in January have been announced.

Canada Pension Plan benefits will rise by nine per cent as a result of increased contributions and to compensate for increases in the cost of living.

The maximum retirement pension will be $244.44 a month. The maximum disability pension will be $240.58. The maximum benefits for children of disabled contributors will be $57.25.

The basic old age security pension will rise to $182.42 monthly from the current $179.02.

The maximum guaranteed income supplement, paid to poor pensioners on an income-tested scale, will rise to $149.76 from the current $146.97 for a single person or a married person whose husband or wife is not a pensioner and is not receiving a spouse's allowance.

The maximum guaranteed income supplement for a married couple, both pensioners, will increase to $124.52 each from $122.20.

The maximum spouse's allowance rises to $306.94 from the current $301.22. This allowance is paid to spouses, mostly women, between age 60 and 65 married to old age security pensioners.

Canada 2, Quebec 1

MONTREAL (UPC) — Quebecers would vote more than two to one to keep their province part of Canada if the sovereignty-independence referendum were held at once, the latest poll says.

The survey, published Sunday in the French-language weekly Dimanche Matin, also found Claude Ryan's Liberal Party could sweep Quebec in a provincial election and that 83 per cent of Quebecers want Pierre Trudeau back as prime minister.

The poll, conducted by the private Institut Quebecois de l'Opinion Publique, said 45.8 per cent of Quebecers would vote "no" to Premier Rene Levesque's limited independence scheme compared to just 20.3 percent in favor.

Another 8 per cent of those polled were undecided about how they would vote on sovereignty-association, and 25.6 per cent said they were unable to express an opinion until the question is announced.

The institute questioned 803 people between Dec. 5 and 12, shortly before the Conservative government dissolved Parliament for a Feb. 18 federal election. They were asked: "If the referendum on sovereignty-association were held tomorrow morning, would you vote yes or no?"

Levesque, who released the Parti Quebecois' white paper on sovereignty-association last month, was expected to announce the wording of next spring's referendum question on Friday.

The poll said the PQ would have received 35.4 per cent of the vote in an immediate provincial election compared to 55.9 per cent for the Liberals, who led the survey in all regions and among every age group in Quebec for the first time since 1976.

Asked whether they preferred Trudeau or Prime Minister Joe Clark as a federal leader, the respondents chose overwhelmingly in favor of their fellow Quebecer, with 83 per cent opting for Trudeau.

The rest of the survey was devoted to the political popularity of the two leaders and their parties. A total of 45.4 per cent expressed satisfaction in the government — the highest percentage since the PQ was elected Nov. 15, 1976. A total 54.4 per cent were unsatisfied.

Offer for FP expires

TORONTO (CP) — Financier Conrad Black's offer to buy FP Publications Ltd. will expire today but can be extended without difficulty, FP president George Currie says.

In an interview from Vancouver on Sunday, Currie said there were no developments on the offer and he has not spoken to Black, chairman of Argus Corp. Ltd., for "three or four weeks."

Black has denied that his offer was tied to an expiry date, but said he wanted some indication by today of reaction to his bid to buy the eight-newspaper chain.

Finally. . .settlement in bitter press strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Journal and the union representing the last 16 men still walking picket lines from a bitter strike which began more than three years ago have reached a tentative settlement.

The paper's management and the Ottawa Typographical Union refused to release financial details of the settlement, which they said they hope to sign Jan. 21.

Three of the former printers will be allowed to return to jobs at the Journal. Both sides will work with Canada Manpower officials to find work for seven others. Five have reached retirement age since the strike began and one is disabled.

The pact includes provisions for retraining the 10 strikers who will be going back to work somewhere. They have been collecting $150 per week strike pay.

The agreement is not a contract and the union will not represent workers in the Journal composing room, said Allan Heritage, vice-president of the International Typographical Union.

However, an organizing attempt may be made at some future date, he added.

Dick Weatherdon, president of the Ottawa Typographical Union, said he will ask other unions to end their boycott of the Journal when the final settlement is signed.

The union had 86 members at the paper when the strike began but most found work elsewhere. It was the last of the five unions involved to reach agreement in the dispute which began in October, 1976, over the introduction of computer typesetting technology.

Arson fires rise 300% in B.C.

TORONTO (CP) — There is a story that insurance agents love to tell about the driver who claimed a tree passed him on the highway and caused him to crash.

His insurance company checked and found that there were gale-force winds that day and an uprooted tree could have been the culprit.

The firm could not disprove it, so the claim was paid.

But it's a story that becomes increasingly serious when added to a fast-growing list of frauds that take in arson and car theft.

And it means the insurance industry is facing rip-offs of monumental proportions, with arson alone accounting for $500 million a year in lost property, wages and taxes.

An example is British Columbia where fires attributed to arson have risen 300 per cent in the last few years. One fire in four is classed as arson in B.C., compared with one in six in Ontario.

Just last week an adjustor, the person who checks the validity of claims, posted what is believed to be Toronto's largest reward — $50,000.

It was offered for information leading to the arrest of an arsonist responsible for a $2.5-million July fire at the All Nations Trading Corp. Ltd.

Police said 23 fires had been set in various parts of the building.

As well as increases in claims for stolen jewelry and art, the insurance industry reports a dramatic rise in the number of small economy cars disappearing from streets and turning up on the thriving black market.

Large cars also disappear.

Insurance firms attribute the missing-car phenomenon in part to the fact that they reimburse owners by up to $1,000 more than the owner would get on trade-in. As a result, some will pay $300 to have their cars torched and still be ahead of the game.

"I suppose there's a little larceny in all of us," said one company official. "But these claims are getting beyond a joke."

While many think arson is one of the easiest crimes to get away with, the general manager of the Insurance Crime Prevention Bureau disagrees.

Pat Collins, an ex-RCMP officer, says there are at least 10 charges that can be brought against a suspected arsonist.

"The chances are pretty good of us getting an arsonist on at least one of them."

Ronald Horrocks, vice-president of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs, says that between 1966 and 1975 there was an average of 2,900 arson fires a year in Canada — costing an average of $23.6 million annually.

By 1977 it had jumped to 9,000 fires, causing direct property losses of $125 million yearly.

Montreal was Canada's arson capital with 626 fires set in 1977, the latest figures available. It was an increase of 145 per cent over 1976 and Montreal police estimate a third of the fires were meant to defraud insurance companies, with the others motivated by vandalism or revenge.

In Toronto, there were 323 cases of arson in 1977, out of a total of 1,233 for Ontario.

"But as bad as things are, we should be grateful that the combination of arson and corruption has not yet reched the epidemic proportions current in the United States," says John Lyndon, president of the Insurance Bureau of Canada. South of the border, arson losses add up to more than $3 billion a year.

In the auto line, there were 82,000 cars stolen in Canada last year with all but 12,150 recovered — accounting for $75 million in losses.

And, Collins maintains, "Many of these losses were fraudulently motivated."

Collins believes higher gasoline prices will mean a continuing increase in the number of fraudulent claims for auto losses as people try to unload their large cars.

Sexist switch

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The United Nations has reissued its standard reference book under a new title — instead of Everyman's United Nations, it now is Everyone's.

Officials said the change was made because of charges that the former title was sexist.

Council budget pinch to hit orchestras

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada Council will cut off grants to symphony orchestras that do not reduce their accumulated deficits to less than a third of their annual budgets by June, 1981, council chairman Mavor Moore announced Thursday.

It is the first time the council has set a formula for terminating grants in its 27 years of distributing federal funds to the arts.

Faced with continued federal budget restraints, mounting inflation and rising demands from an expanding arts community, the council also announced freezing two of its major programs, and suspension of others.

Moore, himself a veteran of a lifetime in the theatre as actor, director, playwright and producer, said all of the country's 15 leading orchestras are running substantial deficits.

An Orchestra that cannot raise funds to reduce a deficit that amounts to more than a third of a current year's operating budget seems no longer to have the support of its own community, he said.

No new orchestras or theatre companies will be added to the council's roster of grant recipients in the fiscal year starting April 1, he announced.

He also said the council's budget of $2.5 million for touring, and $1.4 million for grants exploring new forms of artistic endeavor will be frozen for 1980-81.

Grants totalling $200,000 a year for senior performing artists to study and refresh their skills, and $50,000 to help in the writing of memoirs, will be suspended for the year as well.

Reynolds tops at box office: theatre owners

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For the second straight year Burt Reynolds is king of the box office, an honor bestowed by the only people who really count — the men and women who own theaters.

Reynolds' arched eyebrow charm, wicked laugh and handsome kisser captivate women. Men are able to identify with his laid back, good old boy image, not to mention his sexual success with his leading ladies.

The 48th annual Quigley Publications (a trade publishing house) poll of U.S. exhibitors, representing every part of the country, voted Reynolds the biggest marquee draw in the country.

Reynolds' popularity in 1979 can be traced to the reception of "Starting Over" with Jill Clayburgh and residual receipts of "Smokey and the Bandit," the third most popular box-office film of all time behind "Star Wars" and "Jaws."

Actor Reynolds' private life — a swinging bachelor who dates actress Sally Fields — apparently attracts as much attention as his antics on screen.

It was Reynolds' seventh appearance in the poll, going back to 1973 when he was voted No. 6.

This year Reynolds narrowly beat out Clint Eastwood for the No. 1 spot.

Eastwood has been a regular in the Quigley poll for the past 11 consecutive years, including first place in 1972 and 1973. He scored mightily at the box office this year with "Every Which Way But Loose" and "Escape From Alcatraz."

Curiously, "Every Which Way But Loose," a comedy in which Eastwood costarred with an orangutang, earned more money than all of the actor's "Dirty Harry" pictures combined.

The balance of the top 10 in the exhibitor poll: Jane Fonda (3), Woody Allen (4), Barbra Streisand (5), Sylvester Stallone (6), John Travolta (7), Jill Clayburgh (8), Roger Moore (9), Mel Brooks (10).

Fonda and Allen enjoyed big hits this year — Fonda in "The China Syndrome" and Allen in "Manhattan."

Stallone, who was No. 1 in 1977 thanks to "Rocky," placed sixth this year because of the overwhelming popularity of "Rocky II." Clayburgh's appearance with Reynolds in "Starting Over" accounts for her No. 8 spot.

Roger Moore made the list on the strength of "Moonraker," his most recent appearance as superhero James Bond.

But the inclusion of Streisand, Travolta and Brooks is incomprehensible unless their old pictures are being rerun in theaters. Streisand and Brooks did not appear in new movies during 1979.

Travolta, who may or may not be a flash-in-the-pan, was second in the poll last year because of the success of "Grease" on the heels of "Saturday Night Fever." His most recent film, "Moment By Moment" with Lily Tomlin, was an unqualified box-office disaster.

It's possible theater owners rate box-office power by past performances which would acount for the presence of Streisand (A Star is Born) and Brooks (Silent Movie). Perhaps it's a projection of their future potential.

This theory is apparently borne out by the 15 stars who comprised the top 25 in the annual poll of theater owners.

Robert Redford, winner in 1976 for the box-office success of "All The President's Men," was No. 11 this time around although he hasn't starred in a film for three years.

Following Redford in the top 25 were Diane Keaton (12), Sally Field, (13), Warren Beatty (14), Robert De Niro (15), Jon Voight (16), Al Pacino (17), Richard Dreyfus (18), Peter Sellers (19), Dustin Hoffman (20), Jack Nicholson (21), George Hamilton (22), Nick Nolte (23), Paul Newman (24), Peter Falk (25).

Theater owners obviously are unimpressed by Academy Award winners.

Not a single Oscar winner among actors made the top 10. However, Fonda and Streisand are Academy Award holders. Fonda, in fact, won the Oscar last year for "Coming Home."

De Niro, who won best actor Oscar for "The Deer Hunter" last year, didn't rate above 15th place in popularity with the theater owners.

While Reynolds and Eastwood would appear likely to remain high in the poll for several years to come, both have a long way to go to match John Wayne and Gary Cooper.

Wayne was in the top 10 for 25 years and rated No. 1 at the box office four times. Cooper made the list for 18 years. Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Cary Grant each compiled 11 years in the top 10 on the poll.

Perhaps most interesting of all is the results of the original poll in 1932 when Marie Dressler was No. 1. The character actress topped the poll the following year, too.

The other nine stars in that first poll were Janet Gaynor (2), Joan Crawford (3), Charles Farrell (4), Greta Garbo (5), Norma Shearer (6), Wallace Beery (7), Clark Gable (8), Will Rogers (9) and Joe E. Brown (10).

Tipsy granny scores Yule hit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One year it was chipmunks. Another year it was singing dogs. This Christmas the big hit record just might be by the Shropshires, whose recording of Grandma Got Run Over by a Reindeer is selling like hotcakes around San Francisco.

"When we found her Christmas morning at the scene of the attack,
She had hoofprints on her forehead and Claus marks on her back."

Those are sample lyrics from the tale of an inebriated granny who gets trampled by Santa and his sleigh when she staggers outdoors against the advice of her family.

"She'd been drinkin' too much eggnog and we begged her not to go,
But she forgot her medication and she staggered out the door."

Sonoma County ranchers Elmo and Patsy Shropshire, who recorded the song written by a friend, Texan Randy Brooks, couldn't give the discs away at first. Record executives wouldn't give the Shropshires the timeof day.

"They wanted to be rid of us so fast," Shropshire said. "I don't think they even listened to it. We got all those printed rejection slips, you know? We were just picking names out of books and sending the tape around."

But their bluegrass band, The Homestead Act, kept performing the song, and they finally spent $2,000 recording the song and having 600 copies printed.

"We were just selling them off the stage," Shropshire said.

Then came a bit of Christmas magic — a fan gave a copy to a disc jockey, he played it on the air, and a record store which had taken 200 copies on consignment sold out in one day.

Suddenly the record moguls woke up, and now there are plans to push the catchy tune up and down the West Coast and across the United States — at 98 cents a copy.

"It's not Christmas without Grandma, all the family's dressed in black;
And we just can't help but wonder, should we open up her gifts or send them back?"

"If anybody doesn't believe in Santa Claus," Shropshire said, "what happened to this song is proof that he exists."

CALL FOR TENDERS

Sealed tenders, clearly marked "Lakes — Stamps — Martin Watermain" will be received by the Corporation of the District of North Cowichan at the Municipal Office, 7030 Trans-Canada Highway, North Cowichan, B.C., up to 10:00 a.m. local time on January 25, 1980. They will be opened in public at that time and date.

The work consists of the supply and installation of approximately 5,650 lineal feet of 6- and 8-inch diameter watermain, complete with appurtenances. Tenderers are required to supply alternate bid prices for ductile iron, asbestos cement, and polyvinyl chloride pipe.

Specifications, General Conditions of Contract, Form of Tender, and all other documents and drawings may be seen on or after December 19, 1979, at the office of the Corporation, the Construction Association of Victoria and the Nanaimo Construction Association.

Copies may then be obtained from the Corporation of the District of North Cowichan on payment of $25.00 for each copy requested, which sum should be made payable to the Corporation of the District of North Cowichan. The deposit will be refunded upon return of the drawings and specifications, in good condition, within two weeks of the closing of tenders.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Perk holiday menu with garden treats

Running the risk of overlapping this garden column with cooking information, is a reminder to gardeners that valuable green vegetables in their gardens have a definite place in Christmas and New Year menus.

If thinking of eating out, it will be brussels sprouts that are likely chosen to go with either browned or baked potatoes, but eating at home you may have the potatoes in your own storage, and if not sprouts in the garden, there may be one or more other green vegetables.

Did you sow the seeds of Collards, Kale, Winter Cabbage Savoy this past year? These are all fine sources of winter vitamins A and C when freshly gathered and cooked lightly. Enjoyed in small quantity raw as saladings they are even better. The rich minerals contained in an assortment of green leaves from Collards and Kale perk up every menu in which they are used.

It is only recently that we added Collards to our own winter vegetable list. Now we value them for their delicious flavor of delicate cabbage.

Collard plants seem to grow slowly in summer, but with plentiful moisture in humus-rich soil they really get started at the end of August. It is almost October before the plants begin to branch out. The top of each one was pinched off around mid September. It was after that, as weather cooled, we noticed that branching began to fill out each plant.

The heads of Collards are of loose, rather crinkled small leaves, the stems as sweet and tender as the young leaves. From the appearance of the three plants that survived early summer neglect, the supply is likely to continue throughout winter unless a killing prolonged frost occurs. They are however, in a protected spot, for we had no idea of their tolerance of hard frost.

How to cook these delicacies? Wash, shred, and pan-cook in frypan, uncovered, or in a wok with a little soft margarine or oil, for a few until tender. Serve with a touch of lemon juice.

The Curly Scotch Kale is treated in a similar way for best food values, Its curly leaves never go smooth like spinach. This is a great advantage for non-spinach eaters. Serve also with lemon juice and a little piece of margarine.

Only the next to youngest kale leaves are taken from the plants at any time, leaving the more mature ones to feed the top which continues to produce young leaves regardless of winter weather. The entire top are not cut off for use until near the end of February; then side shoots lower down are formed late in spring.

The crisp small leaves are good finely cut with salads of various kinds, and also as a substitute for parsley if none is in the house when wanted for sprinkling over other foods as garnish.

The Winter Savoy cabbage is another fine winter vegetable. As with kale it holds its crispness to some degree when lightly cooked. And don't forget that green lettuce leaves from a surplus garden crop will substitute for the previous green vegetables—though with lesser values of minerals and vitamins.

Let us still remember not to waste the riches that we have grown in our vegetable gardens. They will taste twice as good during the next weeks.

Test missile sputters

KOUROU, French Guiana (AP) — A test missile bearing Western Europe's hope of entering the space age failed to lift off Saturday from its launching pad in the jungles of French Guiana on the northeastern coast of South America.

The rocket remained on the ground spewing white smoke as the countdown passed zero at 9:30 a.m., EST. Technicians said a lack of pressure in one of the missile's four engines apparently was to blame.

Yves Sillard, director of the Space Studies Centre outside Paris, said it would take at least 10-15 days before a new launch attempt could be made.

The Ariane missile project, funded chiefly by France and West Germany, is intended to compete with the U.S. space shuttle. At stake is the business of delivering space satellites.

Ariane is the latest bid by Western Europe to follow the United States and the Soviet Union into space. About $1.6 billion have been spent in the last 18 years, about half on a series of launch attempts in the early 1970s.

The European Space Agency, which runs the Ariane project, has announced the international Intelsat communications organization has placed a firm order for a 1981 satellite launch and has an option on a future launch.

Saturday's grounded missile carried only an instrument package to monitor its performance. Three test launches planned next year will carry European satellites for scientific, meteorology and communications, as well as a special satellite for radio amateurs.

Killer squad strikes

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Five people were machine-gunned in a village square Sunday following their convictions by a "people's" court of participation in a rightist organization, officials said.

A band of about 50 heavily armed people, believed to be members of a leftist guerrilla group, took over the town of El Canton La Esperenza, about 25 miles east of San Salvador in the state of Cuscatlan.

While some members sealed off escape routes, others barged into homes and dragged people into the street. Five villagers were taken to the town square for a "people's" trial.

In the plaza, members of the armed band shouted that the five were guilty of associating with the ultra-rightist National Democratic Organization. The group then fired rifles and machine guns, instantly killing the five.

Eight other villagers also were injured when the armed band riddled several houses with bullets.

"We had to hide under the beds and in nearby bushes," one resident said. "There was continuous gunfire."

By the time government soldiers arrived, the armed band had fled. Officials said no guerrilla organization has taken credit for the killings.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	2 NT	3 ♣
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead — six of diamonds.

This dramatic deal occurred in a playoff match to determine the team to represent the United States in the 1973 World Championship.

At the first table, Grieve (playing with Rapee) overcalled two notrump with three clubs, intending to show a genuine club suit. But Rapee, justifiably or not, read three clubs as an artificial bid (the so-called Landy convention) showing length in both majors. Accordingly, he jumped to four spades.

This response did not sit well with Grieve, who retreated to five clubs. After two passes, East — with 21 high-card points including the A-K of trumps — doubled. This proved to be a grievous error when it turned out that the contract was unbeatable. Declarer won the diamond lead with the ace, played the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart, ruffed a spade, ruffed another heart on which the king fell, and gave up two trump tricks to make five clubs doubled.

At the second table, the bidding went as follows:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 NT

Swanson, playing with Soloway, was South at this table and elected to pass two notrump because he, also, was playing the Landy convention and knew that North would read three clubs as an artificial bid.

When the bidding died at three notrump, Swanson passed again — this time because he thought there was a good chance to beat the contract with a club lead. This proved to be an illusion when declarer won the club queen with the king, returned the king of diamonds, and thus romped home with nine tricks to produce a gain of 1,350 points for his team.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, December 18, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on communication, travel, long-range projects. You make numerous contacts and some will prove valuable. Display versatility, sense of humor. Accept invitation to social affair. Special correspondence is on agenda.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You break new ground. Be willing to tear down for ultimate purpose of rebuilding on solid structure. Revise, review and establish basic principles. Scorpio, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Count your change!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Open dialogue with one whose views may be opposite your own. Accent on contracts, public relations, partnership and marriage. Hold off on direct confrontations, important decisions. You do best now by playing waiting game.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep recent resolutions concerning nutrition, health. Accent on basic services, pets and people who depend upon you. Employment or work procedures command spotlight. Major domestic adjustment is necessary. Know it and act accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emotions could cause havoc where routine and logic are concerned. Key is to protect interests, to feel without losing instinct for personal needs, survival. You have chance to conclude a favorable land, real estate transaction. Yes, love has star billing!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Leo message—build, select durable material, establish a claim—and a relationship. One who is volatile means well, but is not telling all. Know it, do some personal investigating. Be positive concerning appraisal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work with available material, be gracious to relatives but don't believe everything they say. Aries, Libra natives figure prominently. Short trip is likely to be on agenda. You learn how to get rid of burden.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New approach to savings, investment program could lead to significant gain. Leo, Aquarius persons play key roles. You can locate what had been misplaced or deliberately hidden. Member of opposite sex is on your side and proves it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Intuition is on target—you sense what is to occur, you can be at right place at crucial moment. Take initiative—welcome contacts, challenges. Cancer, Capricorn, Aquarius natives figure in scenario.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You might have reason to celebrate! What had been a source of doubt, fear is removed. Check behind scenes, be discreet, pay attention to "dream symbols." Gemini, Sagittarius natives figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on desire, rebuilding, establishing a "significant" relationship. Another Aquarian, a Scorpio and Leo play prominent roles. Recent investment pays dividends. Romance, fantasy, creative endeavors command more-than-usual attention.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on career, basic goals, parent of opposite sex, budget in connection with travel, publishing. Gemini, Scorpio, Sagittarius persons play key roles. Gain indicated via written word. Member of opposite sex aids in "opening doors."

IF DECEMBER 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are spiritual, creative, willing to fight when cause is right. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. You have concern for underdog; you are a natural humanitarian and others are drawn to you during crisis periods. You are fiery, dynamic and capable of inspiring others to live up to their potential. Although it is not done intentionally, you do seem to create controversy. People choose up sides, some defending you while others toss barbs. Your life, to say the least, is representative of striving, straining reaching for a personal niche.

Dracula counted among Romania's heroes

By JOHN DARNTON
New York Times

BRAN, Romania — The castle rises above the misty Transylvanian pine forest like some malevolent specter. A path winds up the craggy promontory, past gnarled pines and sheep grazing beside a murky pond.

At the top is a long stone staircase. It leads to an ancient wooden door, which creaks as it opens, slowly, into a gloomy antechamber. There are cobwebs on the wrought iron chandelier.

Bran Castle is still the perfect Bela Lugosi setting. But the old place just does not seem the same now that Count Dracula's ghost is no longer around.

The Romanian government has officially rehabilitated the count, whose historical name was Vlad III, or Vlad Tepes — The Impaler. He is now regarded as an early nationalist who fought domination by the Ottoman Empire and espoused a kind of centralization that was a precursor of modern Communist rule.

As a result, Vlad's grim-faced, mustached portrait is to be found among the pantheon of Romania's five or six heroes, along with such leaders as Michael the Brave and the current president, Nicolae Ceausescu.

In exchange for this historical plum, the government is having to forego, with an air of slight reluctance, the more tangible proceeds of a lively, if somewhat ghoulish, tourist industry.

"We were aware for a long time that this could be a gold mine," said Renato Iliescu, head of the press department in the ministry of tourism. " With all these Dracula films and plays, we could have made our share of money very easily."

"We had to ask ourselves the question: Should we sell Vlad III for money ? We decided we should not do that, to preserve our true historical reality."

In years past, thousands of vampire fans were lured to Transylvania to follow, as the ads in Swiss newspapers put it, "the spoor," or trail, of Dracula. The authorities cooperated with Western travel agencies to cater to such groups, and local artisans worked up a whole cottage industry of Dracula dolls and souvenirs.

Most of the tourists came to the forbidding fortress here, erected in 1377, and approached it as a shrine. Some even wore bags of garlic around their necks for protection.

Bran Castle was presented as Dracula's home, probably because it seemed to fill the bill so well and because the count's real castle at Poienari, many miles away, is little more than a heap of crumbled stone.

Later the government suggested that while Dracula did not actually live here, he took refuge in the castle from the invading Turks, or at least was a frequent visitor. Now the government has come clean. It turns out that Dracula never even set foot in the place.

The real Count Dracula, who lived from 1430 to 1476, was not one to shy from harsh methods. His favorite way of punishing his enemies, which he picked up during two years of confinement at the Sultan's court, was impaling them upon stakes. In one of his most celebrated, if perhaps apocryphal, exploits, he is said to have impaled 3,000 people on a single afternoon and to have observed the spectacle while savoring a picnic lunch.

But there is nothing in the historical record to suggest that he developed a literal taste for blood, even from young women. This was a bit of poetic licence in Bram Stoker's famous novel of 1897, and it is a touchy point in Romania today.

"Stoker never even came here," said Iliescu. "He just looked at a few documents in the British Museum. In this idea of vampires, he was injecting into his novel the superstition of the Irish people and mixing it up with important facts of our national history.

"The real Dracula was very different. He was one of the most valiant of Romanian kings. He fought off the Turks. He was a good organizer, advanced compared with the ideas of his time. He was promoting the idea of a centralized state."

Ironically, the government's decision to decommercialize Dracula comes at a time when there is a glut of Dracula plays and films in the West. None of them are allowed to be shown here.

The Dracula souvenirs are almost gone from Bran Castle now and the brochures do not even mention his name. But a guide can be coaxed into a narration about the Count's days — or nights — in the castle and, with little encouragement, will point to a 17th-century canopy bed and describe it as Dracula's favorite spot.

A quick look at the jottings in the guest book tells why most of each day's hundreds of visitors come. "After years of being a Dracula fan," reads a typical entry, "I have at last visited his lair."

Only one scrawl, written in a tiny German hand, indicated disappointment. It read: "We were at Dracula's house, but he wasn't at home."

PLO officials shot in Cyprus

NICOSIA (AP) — A gunman using a weapon equipped with a silencer shot and killed two officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization as they were getting out of their car in Nicosica on Saturday, police reported.

Police said Samir Toukan, 33-year-old second secretary of the PLO office in Nicosia, died in hospital from two bullet wounds in the head. His companion from Beirut, Lebanon, identified by police as Abu Safwat, was shot four times and died instantly.

An official of the organization's Fatah guerrilla group in Beirut said Safwat's real name was Ibrahim Abdul Aziz Raghif. He declined to give Raghif's position with Fatah.

A spokesman for the local PLO office charged Israeli agents were behind the killings that occurred at 5:30 p.m. in front of a building where Toukan lived on a street, off embassy row.

Toukan's wife, Kyproulla, a Greek-Cypriot, told police her husband had opened the door of his car and was unlocking the rear door for Raghif when the gunman approached, shooting Toukan from one metre away and then Raghif.

Police said it is believed the killer used a weapon with a silencer because nobody in the neighborhood heard the shooting. Toukan's wife told investigators she was leaving the house and witnessed the killings.

She said the gunman then ran to a small white car parked nearby where another man was waiting and they drove off.

Police reported the car passed through a roadblock where officers were checking odd and even licence plate numbers under a partial weekend traffic ban to conserve gasoline. They said the car had ZJJ plates, meaning it was rented and exempt from the ban.

Mrs. Toukan described the killer as tall and heavily built.

Dr. Vassos Lyssarides, leader of the Greek-Cypriot Socialist party, claimed Israel is responsible for the killings and demanded the Israeli Embassy in Nicosia be closed.

In Beirut, a guard of honor stood at attention this morning as the bodies of the two PLO vitims were returned Sunday to the Lebanese capital.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli newspaper claimed one of the slain PLO men had been in Cyprus to organize terror attacks on Israeli and Egyptian targets.

Watery fight with enraged ostrich

NIGEL, South Africa (UPI) — An enraged ostrich attacked a farmer and held him underwater for several minutes during a life and death struggle on a duck farm, police said Saturday.

Carel Lotter was feeding his ducks when the ostrich attacked him from behind, knocking him into the duck pond. The ostrich then jumped on Lotter and held him under the water for several minutes.

During the struggle Lotter grabbed a stick floating in the pond and struck the ostrich on the side of the head, killing it.

Lotter was admitted to the Nigel hospital with cuts and a bruised back.

Portuguese electorate takes swing to right

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The center-right Democratic Alliance was on the verge of its second ballot box victory in two weeks today, underscoring the young democracy's clear shift to the right.

With 1,083 of 4,042 precincts reporting on Sunday's voting in local elections around the country, the three-party alliance took an early lead with 54.6 percent of the votes, followed far behind by the Socialists with 26.5 percent and the Communist-front United People Alliance with 14.5 percent.

The early returns gave the Democratic Alliance or its member parties, which ran separately in some areas, 2,674 seats in rural parish assemblies. The Socialists gained 856 and the Communist-front 340.

Election officials estimated that 70 percent of the 6.9 million electorate cast ballots in contrast to 87 percent in interim parliamentary voting 16 days ago.

They said most of the tabulated ballots came from traditionally conservative areas and expected the alliance surge to slacken once urban precincts reported.

But most observers predicted the center-right coalition — composed of the centrist Social Democrats, the conservative Center Democrats and the Popular Monarchists — would stage an encore to its legislative election victory of Dec. 2.

In that vote, the alliance grabbed 45 percent of the ballots and a three-seat majority in the 250-member legislature, while the once-pivotal Socialists sank almost 8 percent from their 1976 tally to 27 percent and the Communist-front took 19 percent, a 4.4 percent rise.

The center-rightist triumph — displacing the Socialists as the nation's pivotal force — was the first in five elections since the 1974 revolution restored freedom after 50 years of rightist dictatorship.

Five other tiny parties, three to the left of the Soviet-line Communists, joined the three major contestants in the Sunday election in fielding a total of 550,000 candidates for 65,955 three-year posts in 305 city councils, over 4,000 parish assemblies and a variety of other local government bodies.

Estimating that one in every 103 voters would be chosen for some post, the Communist daily newspaper O Diario said, "No other country in capitalist Europe equals Portuguese democracy at this level of popular participation."

China conducting N-missile tests

PEKING (Reuter) — China is believed to have conducted at least six missile tests so far this year, the last on Nov. 26 from a launch site in one of its central provinces, diplomatic sources said today.

They said the site in Shanxi province has been used for at least four missile tests this year, while at least one test firing was made from a region in Gansu province, further to the west. The sources said another test took place on Oct. 18, also from the Wuzhai area of Shanxi.

The impact area for the firings was in the Xinjiang region northwest of Lop Nor, the country's nuclear test site, they said.

They said the range from the Shanxi launch site to the impact area was about 2,000 kilometres , suggesting the rockets tested on this course were intermediate-range ballistic missiles.

China is also believed to have deployed some operational limited-range intercontinental ballistic missiles with a range of up to 6,500 km.

Western sources have said China has developed a credible regional nuclear-strike capability with its missiles, which they said are primarily targeted against the Soviet Union.

Polish authorities detain dissidents

WARSAW (Reuter) — Police have detained 51 dissidents in several Polish cities to try to prevent demonstrations on Monday's ninth anniversary of bloody worker riots, dissident sources said Saturday.

The dissident Self-Defence Committee, in a statement deploring the police action, said: "Police reprisals will not obliterate the people's memory the same as machine-gun salvos could not supress the will of the nation struggling for its rights."

Requiem masses will be said today and Monday in Warsaw, Wroclaw, Poznan and Gdansk for more than 40 workers killed in riots on the Baltic coast. The riot toppled Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka.

A committee spokesman said police had been tearing down the committee's posters calling on people to join in prayers and wear black arm-bands to mark the occasion.

Pope pleads for boy

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II has appealed to the kidnappers of a 10-year-old Italian boy to release him in time for Christmas.

The pope's appeal for the release of Marco Furgione, abducted near his home in the southern town of Cosenza last month, came after he hummed along with thousands of Roman elementary school children singing Christmas carols in St. Peter's Square Sunday.

"I appeal to the kidnappers in the spirit of the Christmas season to turn back from their project and return the dear ones to their families," the pope said.

"His (Marco Furgione's) voice and those of others in the same sad condition reaches our hearts and those of their families," John Paul said.

Guerrillas sign Rhodesia peace accord

LONDON (AP) - Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, today initialled arrangements for a Rhodesian ceasefire and political settlement, a spokesman for the front said. The accord would open the way for peace in the British colony.

The British additionally agreed to instruct their governor in Rhodesia, Lord Soames, to open new assembly areas wherever the Patriotic Front could produce 1,000 or more fighters, the spokesman said.

"That suits us fine," the front spokesman told reporters. "We know we can produce the fighting men and so we cannot refuse the precise British assurance."

The spokesman said arrangements are being made for a ceremonial signature meeting Wednesday when the over-all peace settlement will be formally concluded.

Official British comment was not immediately available.

The British concession apparently met the front's demand for more and safer guerrilla assembly areas once Rhodesia's bush war which began seven years ago is brought to a halt.

Under Britain's original ceasefire plan, the white-led Rhodesian forces fighting the black nationalist guerrillas were given 40 assembly areas, most of them around their long-term operational bases.

The front, however, was given only 15 assembly points, all of them in frontier regions far from Rhodesia's big cities. And five were located within easy military reach of South Africa, whose government is bitterly hostile to the guerrillas.

It was clear that the purpose of the British plan was to keep the front as far away as possible from major population areas and transportation routes. But the guerrillas would have none of it.

Nkomo and Mugabe demanded at least 31 assembly areas, with several in the Rhodesian heartland where they claimed they now operate with many of their fighters in a position to attack the major cities. The 16th base is in this Rhodesian heartland.

Rains, slides wreak havoc

Pete Stellingweff surveys his mud-swamped Port Moody apartment suite from the kitchen counter

Heavy rains forced the closure of at least 12 roads on the Lower Mainland today and more flooding is forecast for tonight.

About 40.8mm. of rain fell in a 30-hour period from 10 p.m. Saturday to 4 a.m. today with another 15 forecast through midnight tonight.

The Lougheed Highway was closed, forcing motorists to use alternative roads already clogged with traffic.

In Victoria, where 172 mm. (six inches) of rain has fallen in the past eight days, another 50 mm. (two inches) is expected to fall overnight but the only detour so far is in Esquimalt at Lampson and Lyle.

"I'm afraid it's going to get a hell of a lot worse," said a Burnaby RCMP spokesman.

Other Burnaby trouble spots were Byrne Road off Marine Drive; Royal Oak at Gilpin and Gilmour between Dawson and Still Creek.

The Low Level Road in North Vancouver, opposite waterfront grain terminals, was closed due to a dirt slide from an adjacent bank.

In Coquitlam, Schoolhouse Road and the Cape Horne interchange were closed while in Surrey the intersection of 84th Ave. and 152nd St., and 168th St. between 64th Ave. and 67th Ave. were closed to traffic.

In Vancouver City, flooding closed Yukon at Commercial Drive and Marine Drive at Knight Road. There was also flooding in low-lying areas near First Ave. at the Highway 499 freeway exchange, police said.

At Port Moody, residents were still digging out following Friday's massive mudslide — and the unnamed creek which started it all was swelling again from overnight rain.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said Sunday after touring Port Moody with Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe that the provincial government will offer any assistance it can to slide victims.

No one was hurt in the slide but one home was destroyed and several others badly damaged. Residents of about 30 other homes had to be evacuated as a precaution.

Officials from the Provincial Emergency Measures Program conducted a survey on the weekend and arranged temporary housing for people forced to leave their homes.

"They will assess the damage and give us an overview and we will respond to that. We will advise the government to give all the assistance that the provincial government can give," McCarthy said.

PEP co-ordinator Frank Clegg surveyed the area Sunday and ordered provincial works crews and engineers into the area to clean up the mess.

Port Moody mayor Ian Young and Coquitlam mayor Jim Tonn have asked the government to proclaim a disaster area where the mud struck. The pair sent a joint telegram to Wolfe Sunday requesting immediate aid in clearing away the debris and asking that "full compensation" be given to people who suffered losses.

Young said municipal workers have determined the chances of another massive slide occurring in the area are limited but they have cautioned those removed Friday not to return to their homes until the situation has been cleared by experts.

Wolfe said it is still too early to declare the area as a disaster area.

"The government stands ready to support that if proper determination is made," he said. "It's provided for under legislation but after all, we have to have some assessment made by those who are experts in this field."

Wide rift appears over U.S. hostages

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The armed militants holding the U.S. Embassy clashed angrily with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh today and declared their 50 American hostages would not be home by Christmas but would be tried as spies.

Ghotbzadeh, who said he was speaking with Ayatollah Khomeini's authority, told reporters at least some of the hostages may be freed in time to spend Christmas with their families while the others would be held to "testify" before an "anti-imperialist" commission as witnesses — but not as defendants.

He said the shah's departure from the United States had opened the door to a resolution of the crisis.

But the militants holding the Americans hostage for the 44th day contradicted Ghotbzadeh's remarks and insisted that all of the Americans would be hauled before an Islamic court and tried as spies — a charge punishable by death.

"We will try to do our best to defuse the crisis; I certainly don't want to have this crisis forever," Ghotbzadeh told The Associated Press.

"We take it as the first victory for our determination in this case and obviously the atmosphere is being changed to some extent," the foreign minister said. "A part of the process of defusing the crisis has presented itself and we hope by that, with the other positive steps taken with the United States and the international community, we come to resolve this problem."

OPEC ministers discuss price rise

CARACAS (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets in this Venezuelan capital today to raise its base price for crude oil again but many of the cartel's 13 members have jumped the gun and boosted their prices as much as 33 per cent.

World oil prices were about 100 per cent more than they were last year as the cartel's oil ministers convened.

"The industrialized countries can pay whatever we ask," Libyan Oil Minister Izzedin al Mabruk told a reporter. "They have shown they can stand a price increase."

Libya, which breached the OPEC ceiling of $23.50 U.S. a barrel in October, announced another price increase Sunday and said it would decrease production next year. It increased the price of its high-quality crude oil — prized for its high yield of gasoline — by $3.73 to $30 a barrel retroactive to Nov. 1.

Rebates for oil firms?

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark may announce this week a proposal to give Canadian oil companies rebates from a special tax on oil revenues, Conservative party officials said Sunday.

The rebate — which would give back part of Clark's proposed energy self-sufficiency tax to Canadian companies — would allow greater expansion by Canadian companies in the domestic oil industry, now dominated by foreign-owned multinationals.

The proposal was to have been unveiled this week by Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn as part of a comprehensive energy policy but the defeat of the government and the calling of the Feb. 18 election now moves the announcement from the sphere of government policy to that of campaign promise.

Clark will be first off the mark in the campaign this week, leaving today for a cross-country tour with his wife Maureen McTeer and key advisers.

He will be in Vancouver Thursday.

Clark intends to hammer away at the long list of proposed legislation that died with the defeat of his government.

Soggy Yule in the cards

If you're doing any dreaming these days, don't dream about a white Christmas.

The Victoria weather office is expecting a soggy one.

"With the present weather pattern the chances are very remote that it will snow for Dec. 25," forecaster John Yarema said.

"The chances are strong it will rain."

But, he added, that's hardly surprising because it has snowed for the holiday only twice in the past 20 years.

And there has been a drizzle or worse for 10 of the 20 years.

Yarema said golf clubs or fishing rods are a more practical gifts than sleds in Victoria because on the remaining eight occasions the weather has been mild and sunny enough for outdoor sports.

Europe battered

LONDON (AP) — At least 11 people were killed as hurricane-force winds, snow and heavy rain swept across Britain and parts of western Europe at the weekend.

Winds gusting to more than 190 kilometres an hour were reported in Ireland and Scotland. On the Continent, trees were felled, roofs were ripped away and structures toppled by the fierce winds.

In Glasgow, a woman was struck and killed by a falling chimney. In Sussex, southern England, winds blew a light plane into a quarry, killing the pilot.

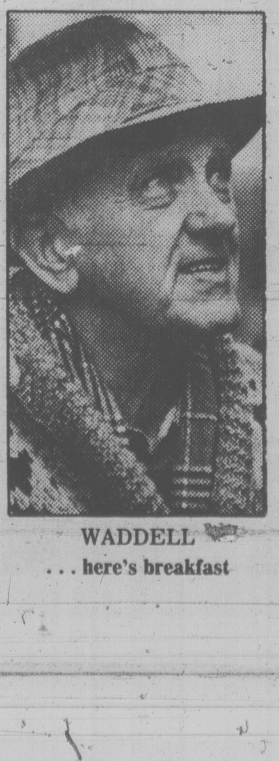
One Danish seaman was reported missing when he was swept off the deck of his vessel at sea.

In France, a woman was killed when her car was hit by a falling tree branch and a workman died instantly when he was blown off a house under construction.

In Liege, Belgium, police said a woman was killed when heavy winds blew a wall down on top of her.

In central Norway, five buses skidded off icy highways Saturday, killing three youngsters and injuring 30. In the Valais alpine region of Switzerland, a bus carrying 26 children skidded off a road and plunged into a meadow, injuring seven.

Sidney man, seagull meet every day for breakfast



WADDELL
. . . here's breakfast

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Each morning, rain or shine, Jim Waddell leaves his home in Sidney and drives into Victoria with a basket of bread crusts and herring by his side.

At Finlayson and Douglas he looks up at a lamppost and spots the one-legged seagull peering down on the busy street from its perch.

The bird recognizes the car. He gives his tired old wings a flap and follows behind.

Waddell, 68, drives to a house in the 500-block Frances nearby.

He gets out and approaches a garage.

The seagull has landed on the peak of the roof and let's out a mild squawk as if to say: "You're late."

"Come on old friend," Waddell cajoles and casts a herring on the shingles. The bird, unable to walk, slides down the roof on his tail and takes the offering in one swift gulp. The rest of the herring and the bread crusts are similarly dispatched.

The feeding done, the gull flies off. Some days he can barely make it over the clothesline crossing the property next door. His wings have clipped it more than once. But that's because of his age. The bird is at least 25 years old.

The morning ritual has been going on ever since a cold January day in 1955 when Waddell and his wife Doris spied a young gull, its right leg missing above the knee, trying to compete with the other gulls for the food the Waddells threw to them from the lawn of their house at 511 Frances.

The bird hopped about but got practically nothing and the Waddells took pity.

Gradually they got the crippled bird to stay behind after the others had flown off and trained it to go on the roof of a garage next door.

Waddell would climb on to a coal shed and push herring bits toward it.

Eventually they gave the bird a name — Stumpy, of course.

Stumpy, often accompanied by his mate, a white and pale grey gull like him, has become a fixture on the block. Sometimes they bring along the brown mottled chicks they've raised over the years.

If Stumpy isn't on the roof,

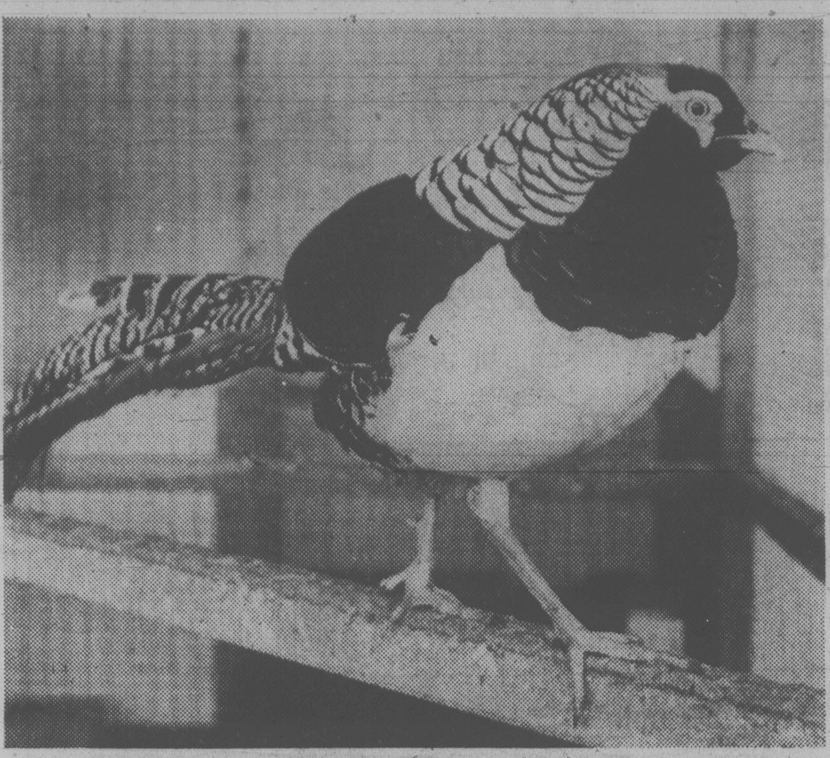
Stumpy. . . a ritual that started 25 years ago with the one-legged seagull



NEED A FRIEND? A bird in the hand could be worth another one if you'd like to provide a home for this fine-feathered specimen, a domestic fancy pheasant. The bird was picked up as a stray and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would prefer to see it go to someone experienced at looking after birds, possibly a home where pheasants are already kept. Anyone filling the bill can contact the SPCA's Victoria animal shelter at 3150 Napier Lane, 388-6627. (John McKay photo).

Laury fights to free a 'killer'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twice a week, three times if it's a holiday weekend, Laury Lewis leaves her house in suburban Surrey and drives to the Fraser Valley community of Agassiz.

Usually her three children accompany her on the three-hour round trip to Mountain Institution, a federal maximum-security prison.

She's been making the trip for three years, since her 40-year-old husband, Jim, was given two life terms for the so-called kettle-bomb slaying of a newly-wed East Indian couple in New Westminster in 1972.

He was convicted of mailing Gurmail and Parmjeet Sidhu a bomb concealed in a kettle on behalf of the girl's father, Santa Singh Tatley, who objected to her marrying a commoner. Tatley was also convicted.

Besides raising William, 17, Bobby, 13, and 11-year-old Patricia, Mrs. Lewis works full-time as an assistant office manager for the highways department.

When her regular working day is over she assumes a multiple role that includes advocate, clerk and law student as well as persistent and passionate petitioner on behalf of the husband she believes to be unjustly imprisoned.

Since Lewis was convicted the family has tried — and lost — almost every avenue of appeal, including one to the Supreme Court of Canada earlier this year.

"Oh it was discouraging, all right," says Mrs. Lewis. "But I found that instead of getting down about it, I kept getting mad . . . and I guess that kept me going to the next step."

Last Friday the family tried the last avenue open to them — they applied to the federal justice minister for a new trial.

Vancouver lawyer John Laxton's letter to Justice Minister Jacques Flynn requesting the retrial challenges the credibility of a key prosecution witness who said Lewis mailed a parcel and told the witness to listen to the radio for news about "a boom or blast." It also questions evidence about delivery of a parcel to the Sidhu home.

Mrs. Lewis says prison staff have been among the most helpful in her campaign to clear her husband's name, allowing her longer visiting hours while she was preparing appeals and even bringing her lunches.

And several residents of Merritt, the central B.C. community where the family lived at the time of Lewis' arrest, have offered to be character witnesses for him.

Mrs. Lewis says the lowest point in her battle was just after her husband was convicted.

"We just couldn't believe it. It took me several months to get over the shock. It took the kids longer, especially Patricia."

Patricia still cries about the situation, but not as often.

"She's quite open now; she'll tell her friends each weekend that she's off to see her dad at the Agassiz jail."

Fire guts B.C. school

CASTLEGAR, B.C. (CP) — A weekend fire which destroyed the Kinnaird Elementary School in this southeastern B.C. community has resulted in an extra week of Christmas vacation for 270 students.

The blaze, which fire department officals believe was deliberately set, started shortly before midnight Saturday and reduced to ruins the one-storey school valued at $1.3 million. There were no injuries.

John Dasch, secretary-treasurer of the Castlegar school board, said this week's classes will be cancelled and students will not have to return until Jan. 7. Half of the students will take classes in the Kinnaird Hall, adjacent to the school; the rest will go to seven vacant classrooms in other schools in the district.

Firemen said that when they arrived on the scence they noticed fire had broken out at three different points in the one-storey building.

"The fire ran from one end of the building to the other as fast as you could run," said fire chief Rene Archambault. "We believe it was arson the way it went. I'd strongly suspect it."

"It was an inferno. The whole building was engulfed within 10 minutes after we got the call."

Star Trek isn't bad, but its no Old Yeller

Paramount Pictures in Hollywood said on the weekend Star Trek — The Motion Picture grossed a record first week box office total of $17,060,837 in the United States and Canada.

That must have meant the Capitol Theatre, where the movie is playing in Victoria, was busier than it's ever been for an opening, right?

Not necessarily, said Capitol manager John McRae, although there have been long lineups.

Opening night was the closest the movie came to filling the 1,307-seat theatre for ST—TMP. About 1,250 Trekkies showed up.

Attendance at the last show was around 1,000.

"There have been busier shows," McRae said.

There was Old Yeller, for instance. For that Walt Disney favorite, McRae said there would be lineups at the theatre when he arrived at 9 a.m., and even with two extra showings a day, there would still be people around at midnight.

"There's no doubt, though," McRae said today, "that business is very good."

And it should stay that way, with matinees starting when the kids get out for the Christmas holiday.

"We did set a box office record the first week."

But "box office" means money, and McRae shared an interesting view of the record first week record of more than $17 million. He suggested it's a good idea to "remember the depleted dollar." Adults are now paying $4 to get into a first-run movie. There was a time when they paid $1.75, and kids were paying something like 50 cents.

So in terms of numbers of people actually showing up to see a movie, maybe it isn't as great as it sounds.

For McRae, the original Rocky and One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest were "great box office."

Fill the woodbox high

. . . after all the presents were opened, my Father and I would bundle up against the cold and fill the woodbox beside the big black and nickle plate stove to overflowing. "Mother needs a good steady fire to cook old Tom turkey," my Father said, loading my arms with pieces of bark. Soon the house was filled with the tantalizing smell of sage and onions and the sizzle of the turkey roasting.
